GAIN PART OF STRONG POST

Heroic German Defense is Unequal to Task at Important Point.

BERLIN DISCOUNTS CLAIMS BY LONDON

Says Slight Advantage to English Cost Them Heavy Loss.

Today's War News Given in Summary

London today reports new and important advantages gained by the British in their fight for Pozieres, the present focal point of their attack in the Somme region. Despite a stubborn German defense of the town, which has been turned into a strongly fortified post, a large portion of it is now in British hands. The place is considered of great tactical importance as blocking an advance of the British lines toward Baupaume along the road on both sides of Foreaux wood to the east.

The heavy fighting yesterday was followed by comparative calm at night but besides the successes at Pozieres Gen. Douglas Haig reports gains of ground near Hig wood and in the vicinity of Guillimont on the British left flank. The repulse of German counter attacks between Highwood and Guillimont is reported.

Paris announces the continuance of bad weather along the French front in the Somme region and a cessation for the time being of active operations there.

Special dispatches from Petrograd emphasize the importance of the Russian offensive in the Riga region, where at one point Field Marshal von Hindenburg's forces are reported to have been driven back twelve miles. The Russians are said now to be consolidating the ground gained in this offensive movement which extends along a thirty mile front.

Petrograd officially reports Russian advance guards within fifteen miles of the Turkish fortress of Erzigan, upon which Grand Duke Nicholas' armies are steadily advancing.

Engagements between German torpedo craft and a British force of small vessels in the North sea are told of in a British admiralty statement. In a running fight with six German destroyers repeated hits are declared to have been secured by the British. One of the British vessels was hit and two men wounded. The Germans succeeded in reaching the Belgian coast.

London, July 24.—(1:50 p. m.)—British troops have captured a large part of the village of Pozieres, says the official British statement issued this afternoon. They also gained some ground near High wood in the direction of Guillemont. The night, the statement adds, was comparatively calm.

Driven Back Twelve Miles.

The Germans have been driven back twelve miles at a point on the Riga front, according to a Reuters dispatch from Petrograd. Progress for the Russians is claimed on a front running from the Gulf of Riga to Uxkull, a distance of more than thirty miles, the greatest advance being made along the coast line.

The dispatch says that fighting went on without pause for four days prior to Sunday. It has now halted as the Russians require time to consolidate the ground they have gained and the Germans are waiting for reinforcements being brought from other sectors of the eastern front.

COASTER MADE OUT OF DAMAGED AUTO

Police were called to the corner of Brackenridge and Harrison streets Monday morning, where youth was making merry with the ill-fated automobile in which James Hoppel was critically burned and Fireman Brandt injured Sunday night when the machine caught fire.

The car was a light Saxon machine, the property of H. L. Wagner, of Ohio. It stood by the side of Harrison street Monday morning. The seats were burned and the back of the machine damaged. About it hung the fire glamor, and the fact that it was an automobile and stood on four wheels. Several children gathered around the car. A hill was just ahead. The brakes were removed. Six sturdy boys pushed the machine to the crest of the hill. Away they went down the grade. Not once, but several times. Somebody became alarmed and called the police. The youths scampered away and the automobile was taken to a garage.

WILL SAIL JUST AS SOON AS SHE'S READY

Deutschland's Agents a Bit More Specific Regarding Submarine.

Baltimore, Md., July 24.—Asked today when the German merchant submarine Deutschland would sail on her return voyage to Germany, Paul G. L. Hilken, member of the Eastern Forwarding company, the boat's American agency, said she would start "just as soon as we can get her ready, and that will not be much longer."

Hitherto any and all questions of persons connected with the Deutschland about her sailing plans have been met with evasive replies or pointblank refusals to discuss them.

From a source regarded as most reliable it was ascertained today that the Eastern Forwarding company had successfully closed its negotiations for a large consignment of gold to be taken back on the submersible. It was said the gold will be put aboard today and that the boat will then be ready to leave. Nothing could be learned as to the amount or from whom it was obtained except that it was through negotiations with "one of the largest American banking institutions."

The Deutschland's wireless equipment was sealed today by a government radio inspector. When Captain Koenig entered his arrival at the customs house on the 10th inst. he was informed by customs officials that if he stayed in port more than two weeks his wireless would be sealed. The two weeks' limit expired today.

BREMEN NOT BELIEVED NEAR.

Norfolk, Va., July 24.—Only one of the allied warships patrolling the Virginia capes waiting for the German under-water liner Deutschland or her sister ship Bremen was in sight early today and she was cruising far out to sea.

Seafaring men who had been expecting the arrival of the Bremen within the last two days now say she cannot be anywhere near the capes. The weather during the last forty-eight hours has been ideal for a dash into the harbor. The sea has been rough, the sky has been overcast almost continually and rain has been falling. If the big submersible were near, the shipping men say, she would have taken advantage of those conditions to come in. Persons in German circles who predicted the coming of the Bremen yesterday admitted their disappointment, but thought the boat had been delayed in starting. They recalled that the Deutschland was more than a week overdue.

PUT MORE SPEECHES ON HUGHES PROGRAM

New York, July 24.—Chairman William R. Willcox, of the republican national campaign committee, on his return from Bridgehampton today said that the itinerary of Mr. Hughes' approaching western trip has virtually been determined upon, but the announcement would be delayed until it could be so arranged that in going to the Rocky mountains for a week's recreation the candidate would not be compelled to deviate to any extent from his speaking route. The itinerary has undergone considerable change since first outlined and instead of the ten speeches there will be at least twelve and possibly fifteen, said Mr. Willcox. It has been decided that the nominee shall make two speeches on the night of Aug. 9—one in St. Paul and the other in Minneapolis.

PEARL FISHER SELLS RIVER PRIZE FOR $500.

GIVES WILSON MUCH CONCERN

HOKE SMITH SEES SETTLEMENT NEAR

England's Partial Reply on Mail Seizure Protest Will Not Answer.

Washington, July 24.—President Wilson told callers today that the British "blacklist" against some American firms was causing him a great deal of concern, but indicated that details of the plan of the American government to meet the situation had not been decided upon.

Senator Hoke Smith, who said he spoke only for himself, declared after seeing the president that he thought the issue would be settled either by withdrawal or modification of the blacklist.

Reply Is Unsatisfactory.

Great Britain's partial reply to the American note protesting against interference with neutral mails is regarded by officials as unsatisfactory, principally because it deals with specific cases instead of the principles involved. Officials infer from the communication that Great Britain is determined to uphold her attitude which the United States regards as unwarranted and without authority in international law.

Acting Secretary Polk said he would cable Ambassador Page acknowledging receipt of the British communication and repeating the request for an early reply to the last American note. He said the memorandum would be given out for publication later in the day. It now is before President Wilson.

Sees Another Propaganda.

Senator Husting, who led the movement for the investigation of the telegraphic propaganda several weeks ago, deluged congress with demands for action to warn Americans off armed ships, received evidence today of another propaganda being organized to ask congress

ANOTHER GAIN IN DEATHS BY PLAGUE

New York, July 24.—Another gain in the number of fatalities and decrease in the number of new cases was reported by the health department today when the epidemic of infantile paralysis entered its fifth week. During the 24 hours ending at 10 a. m. today, there were 31 deaths and 89 new cases reported in the greater city as against 23 deaths and 115 new cases during the corresponding period yesterday.

Thirteen additional cases of infantile paralysis were reported to the department of health today from different places in the state outside of New York City, making a total of 224 cases of the disease. Two deaths were also reported increasing the number of fatalities to 25.

MAY RETURN WITH MOBILIZATION ORDER

John C. Scheffer and Luther Mertz Visit Adjutant General Monday.

By request of Adjutant General Bridges, Captain John A. Scheffer and Luther Mertz of Battery D, went to Indianapolis early Monday morning to hold a conference. It is presumed that the two officers who will come back to Fort Wayne Monday evening will return with specific orders of mobilization. Captain John E. Miller accompanied the two men to the capital city.

The local battery has almost reached peace strength and has now a membership of one hundred and twenty-four men and five officers, just nine minus the required number.

Dr. C. R. Dancer, of this city, medical examiner, spoke highly of the physical fitness of the Huntington boys and declared that he had seldom examined a more perfect lot. Only one man was rejected out of those who applied for enlistment. Dr. Dancer will go to Huntington, Wednesday, to examine other applicants for enlistment.

KING CONSTANTINE'S VIEW IS CHALLENGED

Venizelos Questions Belief That Germany Cannot Be Defeated.

Athens, Via London, July 24.—(10:05 a. m.)—Former Premier Venizelos, openly challenges King Constantine's expressed belief that Germany cannot be defeated, in an article which appears in today's Herald. Venizelos quotes an interview given by the king to an Associated Press representative last January in which the monarch declared that the war would result in a draw.

"Who is now so blinded by prejudice," asks the statesman, "to believe still in German victory? Who today after the recognition of the value of the Russian advance and the organization of Kitchener's army by which England is raised to the rank of a great military power, still imagines that the war can be ended by a bastard peace in which there will be neither victory nor vanquished?"

In the interview referred to by former Premier Venizelos, King Constantine said: "If economic exhaustion does not force Germany to sue for peace, I believe it will be very difficult, if not impossible to conquer her in a military way." Asked as to what he believed would be the outcome of the war, the king replied:

"A draw—don't you?" The interview was given on January 20.

VISITOR BRINGS DREAD DISEASE

Little Girl, from Newark, N. J., Found to Have Infantile Paralysis.

When little Mildred Lamborn, 3 years, came to Fort Wayne from Newark, N. J. for a visit with relatives at 1719 Harrison street, she brought the germs for the first case of infantile paralysis to break out in the city this year.

She became ill Saturday and Dr. Wiley Thimlar was called. He said the girl had infantile paralysis. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lamborn objected to the finding. Dr. John Gilpin, of the health board was called. He concurred with Dr. Thimlar and ordered the patient removed to the county isolation hospital. The house at 1719 Harrison street is under quarantine.

The child is in no serious condition, doctors say. The paralysis case is a very light one, although all evidences of the disease are present. The girl will survive without a doubt, Dr. Gilpin reports. The child has been in contact with but few children since she came to Fort Wayne four weeks ago, Gilpin says, and there need be no fear of general infection from her presence here.

RUMOR WHOLLY UNTRUE.

No Warships to Convoy American Merchantman Across Atlantic.

Washington, July 24.—Minister Van Rappard, of the Netherlands, called at the state department to inquire about published reports that the United States was contemplating using warships to convoy its merchantmen across the Atlantic. Acting Secretary Polk told him the reports were wholly without foundation.

PRESIDENT WILSON EXPRESSES SORROW.

Washington, July 24.—President Wilson today sent the following telegram to Henry Eitel, of Indianapolis, brother-in-law of the late James Whitcomb Riley:

"May I not express to you my sincere sorrow at the death of James Whitcomb Riley? With his departure a notable figure passes out of the nation's life; a man who imparted joyful pleasure and a thoughtful view of many things that other men would have missed. I am sure I am speaking the feeling of the whole country in expressing my own sense of loss."

Indianapolis, Ind., July 24.—Flags all over Indianapolis and in many other cities of the state were at half mast today in memory of James Whitcomb Riley, who died suddenly Saturday night.

Preparations were begun early today at the state house for the body to lie in state from 3 to 9 o'clock this evening so that the public may view the body of the Indiana poet. The capitol was appropriately decorated to indicate the general mourning all over the state. The place the body will lie is the same spot where Mr. Riley stood a few years ago when he recited his own poem "Old Glory" at the time the body of Gen. Lawton lay in state in the capitol.

The body was to have been taken from the Riley home shortly after 2 o'clock, accompanied by a police escort. After the doors of the capitol close this evening it will be returned to the home under the same escort.

Only tentative funeral arrangements had been made this morning. Although the first plans were to have the burial at Greenfield, Ind., the boyhood home of the poet, the plans were changed last night to make the funeral here. Final word is awaited from his sister, Mrs. Mary Payne, of New York, who had not been heard from early today.

Governor Ralston Acts.

Governor Ralston, in a letter to Henry Eitel, brother-in-law of the dead poet, urged that Mr. Riley's body be permitted to lie in state at the Indiana state capitol from 3 p. m. until 9 p. m., Monday, in order that the public might be permitted to pay its last tri-

HAIL STORM DOES DAMAGE IN COUNTY

Sections of Allen county were visited by a terrific hailstorm Saturday afternoon that did much damage to growing crops. The storm seemed to play havoc on one farm and then jump for several miles to another. Both the northern and southern parts of the county suffered.

The corn and oats on the farm of Hale Ashley, near Robison park, are said to have been laid low. Monday morning Ashley cut his oats and will make hay out of it. Other farms adjoining the Ashley farm escaped. The hailstones were large and came down with terrific force for some time.

WELSH AND WHITE TO MEET IN 20-ROUND GO

Sign Articles for Decision Bout on Labor Day at Colorado Springs.

Chicago, July 24.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion, and Charley White, of Chicago, signed articles here today for a bout of 20 rounds to a decision to take place in Colorado Springs, Colo., Labor day, Sept. 4. The promoters guarantee a purse of $17,500.

The bout will be the first one of twenty rounds in which Welsh has taken part since he defeated Willie Ritchie for the world's championship in 1914. He took the title on a decision in that match and has agreed to surrender it on a decision Labor Day should Billy Roche of New York, selected as referee on the insistence of his manager, Harry Pollol, give a verdict against him.

Welsh because of his concessions as to the decision and his possession of the title, will take down $12,500 as his share of the purse with the option of taking 75 per cent. of the receipts should they go above $27,000. White's share is to be $4,000. Welsh comes in also for 51 per cent. of the moving picture receipts.

The bout will be under Marquis of Queensberry rules. The men agreed to weigh in at 135 pounds about five hours before they were to enter the ring. The bout will be the fourth meeting of Welsh and White. The champion has had the better of the encounters so far but White is opeful of winning over a long route.

NATIONAL DEFENSE IS STILL BEFORE SENATE

The national defense program will occupy the senate most of this week. Debate on the army bill was resumed today, is expected to last for several days and before the week is over senate and house will meet in a struggle over a building program for the navy. The conference likely will pare the senate's plan for next year.

Efforts will be made to get final action on both army and navy conference reports early in August. Adjournment is set for August 19, but insistence on child labor legislation may alter the plan. Senate democrats probably will caucus this week to decide whether there shall be a vote on child labor.

RUSH ORDER FOR ARMY SHIRTS.

Jeffersonville, Ind., July 24.—The greater part of an order for 35,000 olive drab shirts had been filled today by the United States army quartermaster depot here. The order was received late Saturday. All the shirts were made here. The shipments of the order went to St. Louis, whence the shirts will be distributed.

WOMAN INJURED BY FALL ON ICE IN MIDSUMMER.

Indianapolis, July 24.—The condition of Mrs. Cora Baker, 1504 Linden street, who was injured when she slipped and fell on ice yesterday, was improved today. The ice which caused her to fall was on the sidewalk at Illinois and Washington streets. It had been left by a man delivering ice cream. A baby Mrs. Baker was carrying was injured only very slightly.

POLICE PICK UP THE TRAIL

Infernal Machine May Have Been Tossed from Top of Building.

San Francisco, July 24.—Under the pressure of public sentiment which has been aroused over the bomb explosion that marked Saturday's preparedness parade here the authorities today are working with determination to apprehend the perpetrator of the deed. To the death list of six it is expected that two and probably more of the forty-four injured will be added, five of the victims being reported to be in a critical condition.

Led by Mayor Rolph, who has offered a reward of $5,000 for the arrest of the person and who is taking an active part in the search, scores of citizens have volunteered their services for personal aid.

A mass meeting to "express an opinion on the bomb outrage," was called today for next Wednesday by Frederick J. Koster, president of the chamber of commerce and chairman of the committee on law and order, which was appointed recently to deal with the long-shoremen strike situation.

IRISH QUESTION IS NOW AT ACUTE STAGE

Government May Not Be Able to Introduce Amending Bill at Once.

London, July 24.—(11:05 a. m.)—An acute stage has been reached in the Irish question. Unless the situation suddenly changes doubt is expressed whether the government will be able to introduce an amending bill this week as had been promised.

The Nationalist members of parliament are holding another meeting today and unless a satisfactory answer is received from Premier Asquith, John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, will be asked to press him for a further statement regarding the intentions of the government. The Nationalists insist that the bill shall conform to the terms agreed upon in the settlement and they say they will have nothing to do with proposals to make the exclusion of the province of Ulster or to reduce the Irish representation in the imperial parliament pending the final settlement.

In addition to the Irish subject the government will have many questions to engage its attention during the week. Critics of the cabinet will attempt to prolong the debate on the bill for the appointment of committees to investigate the campaigns in the Dardanelles and Mesopotamia, while the introduction by Premier Asquith today of a new note of credit will open a general debate on the conduct of the war.

VILLA ESCAPED BY THE MEREST CHANCE

Fled on Horseback, Leaving Crutches in His Carriage.

El Paso, Texas, July 24.—Only by the merest chance did Francisco Villa escape capture when his column was repulsed by de facto troops in its attack upon Parral two weeks ago, according to a private letter received here today from the Americans in the town.

"Villa personally directed the band that attacked the city," the letter said. "He directed the operations from a carriage about a mile behind the lines. In this carriage were two women and a man. When the bandits were pushed back by the government troops they fled hastily past the carriage, stopping only to provide the chieftain with a horse on which he made his escape. The women fled into the brush and also escaped. A moment or so later the carriage was seized by Carranza soldiers, and the man who proved to be a Swiss nurse was captured. In the carriage were Villa's crutches and several rolls of bandages. The writer said Villa's wounds necessitated immediate operation and amputation was even feared."

Five Hundred Tons of Ice Used Here Each Day

With the thermometer hovering about the ninety degree mark for the past few weeks, the ice business Fort Wayne has been booming. It is estimated by a local dealer that nearly 500 tons of ice are consumed each day in this city. The manager of one of the largest ice concerns in Fort Wayne stated that last week the average sales per day amounted to nearly 130 tons for his company alone. There are five ice companies in the city and all are working overtime.

The demand has been so great that even with added forces and working day and night the companies have been unable to furnish the required amount. Shipments are made every day from nearby lakes where ice was stored last winter.

The enormity of this figure cannot be realized as well as when it is expressed in pounds. The five hundred tons of ice, or one million pounds, is sufficient to supply each man, woman and child in Fort Wayne with eleven pounds of the frozen water.

Even if the present extreme warm weather continues, it is the opinion of ice dealers that there need be no fear of an ice famine. With a great supply of ice in the storehouses and the factories in condition to manufacture it nearly as fast as it is needed, there seems to be no reason to think that it will become scarce before the summer has gone.

Who's Going to Pay for Chase for Auto Thief?

Detective Sergt. Joseph Brennan spent $6 in the dash for Arthur Newman, the auto thief who was handed over to Toledo officers from Anderson, after the trolley car had broken down and caused Brennan to lose the race for Newman's possession by fifteen minutes.

It was a merited race, however, and now it seems that Brennan or Police Chief Lenz will have to pay the bill. There is no "fugitive fund" allowance maintained for the Fort Wayne police department. Unless a special allowance is voted for this occasion members of the police department will have to meet the expenses themselves.

Lenz says he has taken for $300 each year in his annual report, but the special fund for catching fugitives from the law was not allowed. [illegible] department, Lenz shows. Unless private help is given there is no way of going any distance for fugitives.

Brennan, who returned to Fort Wayne Saturday night, says that Newman, who stole the Dr. Christian Martz car last spring, will be arraigned in court at Toledo. Newman admitted taking the Fort Wayne machine and said he sold it in Rochester, N. Y., Brennan says. Doctor Martz expects to send to Rochester for his auto.

Newman stole an automobile from Toledo and left it with the father of his woman friend in Anderson. The girl's father suspected no theft and had the car in his barn. It bore the number of the machine taken from Marie. Newman was arrested and confessed to both thefts. He is a citizen [illegible] years old.

AIRMAN TAKEN AFTER AN AUDACIOUS FLIGHT

Lieut. Marchal Flies Over German Capital in 807-Mile Trip But Fails to Reach Russian Lines.

Paris, July 24.—(1:30 p. m.)—Lieut. Marchal, of the French aviation corps, last month left French soil and flew over the German capital, upon which he dropped proclamations and then continued his flight, intending to land within the Russian lines. He was forced to descend, however, in Poland and was taken prisoner by the Germans.

The proclamations dropped by Lieut. Marchal on Berlin stated that though it was possible, the aviator refrained from bombarding the open town and "thus kill the women and children."

Lieut. Marchal made a continuous flight of about 807 miles, most of which he traveled in darkness.

The Official Communication.

The official communication given out today telling of Aviator Marchal's achievement said:

"On June 20 at 9:30 o'clock in the evening, sub-Lieut. Marchal ascended at Nancy on board a Nieuport monoplane of a special type taking with him a supply of fuel, sufficient to last fourteen hours. His mission was to cross Germany at a low altitude in order to drop proclamations on the capital, Berlin, and then to descend in Russia.

"This audacious flight was accomplished point by point, and, after flying all night, Lieut. Marchal was compelled to descend at 8:30 o'clock in the morning of June 21 near Chelm, Russian Poland, at least 100 kilometers (62 miles) from the Russian lines. He was made prisoner.

"The proclamation which Lieutenant Marchal dropped on Berlin began with the words: 'We could bombard the open town of Berlin and thus kill the women and innocent children but we are content to throw only the following proclamation.'

Aviator Sends Details.

"Lieutenant Marchal was interned at Salzerbach, whence he forwarded to France a postal card giving these details:

"'I was made prisoner at 8 o'clock on the morning of the 21st at Chelm. The Austrian officers did not believe that I had accomplished my task but the proof later arrived and they were obliged to bow to the reality.'

"'It was the failure of the spark plugs which stopped me and I descended to change two of the plugs and to start the motor again. Unfortunately it would have been necessary to change two more plugs and at this moment I was taken prisoner. You may judge of my chagrin.'

"Aviator Marchal in the course of his journey covered in continuous flight a distance of about 1,300 kilometers (807 miles), most of which he traveled during the night."

MAY EXHIBIT "MINE" IF EAGLES ACCEPT

Navy Recruiting Officer May Show Mechanism at Home Talent Circus.

Joseph C. King, in charge of the Fort Wayne navy recruiting station, will ask the privilege of exhibiting a "mine" at the proposed circus of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, possibly the week of August 28. A meeting of the lodge is called for Monday to determine whether the circus will be given and Mr. King will appear before the meeting to state his proposal.

The "mine" is furnished by the Indianapolis navy recruiting station, of which Lieut. Com. J. H. Comfort is in charge. It has been exhibited at several places in Indianapolis. It is 60 inches in diameter and in two sections. It will be the aim of Mr. King to show the mechanism of the "mine." If the Eagles act favorably on his proposal, both Mr. King and his assistant, J. J. Cullen, in navy recruiting, would demonstrate the "mine" each day of the circus, which may last a week.

Among the different parts of the mine are the outer casing, watertight basket in two sections, electric current closers, and other appliances. The "mine" exhibitions in Indianapolis proved educational in view of the recent warfare which had been conducted with them. More than 150 feet of electric wire is shown in connection with the mine exhibition and the "mine" weighs about 400 pounds.

LOWER FLAGS TO HALF MAST

Mr. Riley's death at 11 o'clock Saturday night was due to the third stroke of Paralysis which the poet suffered Saturday morning though until a few moments before his death he was believed to be improving and not in immediate danger. A nurse was watching at Mr. Riley's bedside. Just before 11 o'clock the patient asked for a drink of water. It was given him and the nurse resumed her vigil. A few moments later she noticed that Mr. Riley did not appear to be lying in a comfortable position and she approached his bed, only to discover that the spark of life had gone out. Mr. Riley suffered his first serious attack of paralysis in July, 1910.

Mr. Riley had never married, and his nearest surviving relative is a sister, Mrs. Mary Payne, of New York.

Mr. Riley was born in 1849 but was reticent as to his exact age. One of the most unique celebrations in the country was held in his honor October 7, 1915, when "Riley day" was observed by a banquet in Indianapolis, and in schools of the country attended by more than 1,000,000 children. Men prominent in business and politics from all over the country assembled to do the poet homage at the celebration, and many congratulatory messages were received from abroad on that occasion. The day in the public schools was observed by reading his poems. The poet's philosophy of life and his manner of expressing it in Hoosier dialect won for him years ago a place in the hearts of the public. Of late years he had not appeared at public gatherings to any great extent, but in nice weather could be seen on the streets of Indianapolis in his automobile.

James Whitcomb Riley, born of the middle west, sang the joys, sorrows, fancies and humors of its folk, largely in its own dialect. The world was so touched by his inspiration and the realism of his homely symbols that he was one of the few, that, devoting their lives to poetry, gained a fortune.

The poet was the son of Reuben A. Riley, a lawyer and political speaker of Greenfield, Ind. The boy could not be brought to the dull routine of school days, but he was wise in the lore of streams and fields. His mother, who was Elizabeth Marine before her marriage, was a writer of verse and Riley in later life attributed some of his impracticability to her.

Instead of preparing for the practice of law, as his father wished, the son turned itinerant sign painter. For ten years he roved through the Ohio valley, painting signs on fences. He had the trick of the brush and pencil and cleverly drew sketches illustrating the virtues of merchandise. He was naturally musical and alone as a fiddler in the villages at which his party stopped at night. He played for dances and at concerts in country hotels. He wrote rhymes, which sometimes found their way into country newspapers.

He led this cheerful, free and easy life late in the '70's, then he took employment as a reporter on a newspaper at Anderson, Ind. In 1877, for the purpose, as he said, of proving that he could write poetry of value, he perpetrated the Poe hoax which for years was a literary sensation. He wrote a poem in the style of Edgar Allen Poe, to which he gave the characteristic title of "Leonanie," and it was offered to the public as a hitherto unpublished product of the genius of Poe.

In some quarters the poem was accepted as genuine; in others it was denounced as a fraud. After the controversy had waged for months Riley confessed.

In the early '80's, he began writing verses in "Hoosier" dialect for the old Indianapolis Journal. He sent some of his poems to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and they received his praise. A volume was published and "the Hoosier poet" began to win a public. He was an excellent reader of his own dialect verses and for the following fifteen years, or until 1898, he made tours of the country, appearing in public with great success both alone and in association with the humorist, Bill Nye, who was his intimate friend.

Publication of books of poems year after year brought Riley a fortune and wide recognition of his literary genius and not only in the genre form. Many of his poems are of imaginative fantasy or gently philosophic.

In 1902 he received the degree of master of arts from Yale university and in 1904 the University of Pennsylvania conferred upon him the degree of doctor of letters. Indiana university conferred the honorary degree of LL. D. on him in 1907.

Mr. Riley never married but he was a lover of children, whose spirit he divined so intimately, and of family life. Many of the last years of his life he spent quietly at his home in a secluded section of Indianapolis.

Telegrams Voice Sorrow.

Telegrams bringing deep expressions of regret and sorrow and offering condolences to the relatives arrived at the Riley home on Lockerbee street all day yesterday. One of the first came from Vice-President Marshall, a personal friend of Mr. Riley. It read:

"To die for one's country is to reach the heights of glory; to live for humanity so that each succeeding age will be happier is to attain immortality. This is the record of James Whitcomb Riley. Rest to his ashes and peace to his soul."

Academy Feels Loss.

The American Academy of Arts and Letters, through William Dean Howells, president, sent the following message:

"On behalf of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, we respectfully offer you its sympathy on the death of our beloved and honored associate, James Whitcomb Riley, which is a signal loss to the academy, of which he was a greatly valued member. His position as a genuine and virile poet of the people has long been secure."

J. Q. Johnson, mayor of Greenfield, Mr. Riley's boyhood home, sent the following message:

"The citizens of Greenfield all deeply feel the great loss of our distinguished and beloved James Whitcomb Riley and bow their heads in deepest sorrow."

COST ENGLISH HEAVILY.

Gains at Pozieres Unimportant, Says a German Statement.

Berlin, July 24 (via London, 3:45 p. m.).—The only advantage gained by the British in the fighting on the Somme front Sunday, says the German official statement issued today, was the penetration of a few houses in the village of Pozieres for which they paid with heavy and sanguinary losses.

German torpedo-boats in their raid from Flanders on the night of July 22-23 went up to the mouth of the Thames without sighting any British naval forces, says an official statement issued today by the German admiralty. Later they encountered several small British cruisers, but returned to their base undamaged.

ENGAGE IN RUNNING FIGHT.

Six German Destroyers Make Escape from English Light Warships.

London, July 24 (2:02 p. m.).—Six German torpedo boat destroyers were engaged in a running fight by British light forces off Schouwen bank yesterday says an official statement issued by the British admiralty this afternoon. The German vessels were repeatedly hit, but they succeeded in reaching the Belgian coast. The text of the official statement says:

"At midnight of July 22, while near the North Hinder light vessel, some of our light forces sighted three enemy destroyers, who retired before damage could be inflicted on them.

"Subsequently off Schouwen bank six enemy destroyers were engaged and a running fight ensued during which the enemy was repeatedly hit, but he succeeded in reaching the Belgian coast.

"One of our vessels was hit once and one officer and one man were slightly wounded. There was no other damage or casualty."

KAISER EAGER TO FIGHT.

Emperor's Address to Soldiers Makes Deep Impression in Germany.

London, July 24.—(2:55 p. m.)—Emperor William during his recent trip to a point somewhere in the rear of Peronne, on the Somme front, says a dispatch to the Wireless Press from Berne, made a speech to the German wounded soldiers which is attracting great attention in Germany. The German emperor is quoted as saying:

"It is the most poignant grief of my life that I am unable to take a more active part in this war. It is my earnest desire to take my place in the trenches and to deal such blows at our enemies as my age and strength will permit.

"I could take my place with the youngest of you and I promise that I would leave my mark on the enemy. But the inscrutible Almighty has willed otherwise. Into my care has been committed by Divine destiny the leadership of our country, its armies and its forces on land and sea.

"The burden of thinking, deciding and leading has been hard upon me and realizing this I know that my life must not be risked in the foremost line of battle where my feelings, if unrestrained, would carry me swiftly.

"My life must be conserved carefully for the welfare in Germany in order to carry out the duties assigned to me by Divine appointment."

SWEDEN ORDERS ATTACK.

Stockholm, Sweden, (Via London, 2:25 p. m.)—Consequent upon the royal decree forbidding foreign belligerent submarines to pass through or to remain in Swedish territorial waters an pain of being attacked without warning, a general order has been issued to the Swedish naval and military forces. It directs that foreign submarines in Swedish territorial waters, unless recognized as neutrals or as merchant ships, are to be immediately attacked.

to order American mails carried by warships to escape British detention. Documents which Senator Husting received show that the propaganda purports to be fostered by the American Steamship Ticket Agents' association at 395 Broadway, New York, and that forms of telegrams to be sent to congress on July 14 had been distributed throughout the country.

Discusses Child Labor.

Child labor legislation which President Wilson desires enacted at this session was discussed by him today with Senator Simmons, Senator Hoke Smith and other members of congress. His callers left with the impression that while the president aws very anxious to have the bill passed he would leave the decision to the senate democratic caucus which meets later this week to discuss the legislative program.

Senator Simmons, who opposed the bill said he did not expect a filibuster if the measure were taken up but undoubtedly there will be full discussion which would delay the adjournment of congress.

Follow Several Clues.

Several clues are being followed with great activity. Two men who claimed to have seen the man with the suitcase believed to have contained the infernal machine, described him as about 35 years old, tall and shabbily dressed. As a result of conferences between Mayor Rolph and Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, it is regarded as likely that the state would supplement the city's action with the offer of a large reward for the assassin.

A reward of $1,000 has been offered by the brother of one of the victims. Experts retained by the police have arrived at the conclusion, it is said, that the bomb had as its principal ingredient nitro-toluol.

This substance, they say, was compressed into a length of cast steel pipe which, judging from the fragments picked up in the area of destruction, must have been from a foot to fifteen inches long and from six to eight inches in diameter. Such a bomb, it is stated, could have been fired by a time arrangement fixed to an ordinary alarm clock.

New Angle to Case.

An entirely new angle to the case was presented to the police by Dr. J. Mora Moss, who said that the explosive either was tossed into the crowd or dropped from the top of a one-story building at Market and Stewart streets. Doctor Moss said he was in Stewart street at the time, forming in line with the Sons of the American Revolution and observed the bomb falling to the street. He said: "I happened to turn and saw a black object surrounded by smoke falling through the air. It was perhaps ten feet above the ground. It fell among the crowd and the explosion followed. I am sure that it was hurled into the mass of people and the theory that the suitcase was placed against the corner building is incorrect."

Frank F. Josefson, the sailor who was arrested Saturday when he made a speech at the scene of the explosion in consonance with the act, still is in custody.

HELD AT HOME BY RIGID QUARANTINE

New Yorkers Unable to Quit City to Escape the Summer Heat.

New York, July 24.—New York families who wished to take their children to summer resorts yesterday to escape the heat of the city had to depend for their outings mainly upon resorts within the city limits. Fear of infantile paralysis has caused neighboring communities to raise their quarantine so strictly that few New York parents cared to encounter the severe restrictions.

As a result the crowds at the city beaches were greater than usual, even for a Sunday in July. Scarcely any of the steamboat lines will give assurance of being able to land New York children in Connecticut and New Jersey. The activity of county policemen in stopping motorists resulted in a decided curtailment of Sunday motoring excursions.

Great interest was shown today in a report regarding the epidemic promised by the committee of the Rockefeller institute, which is making a special study of the disease. Dr. Alvah H. Doty, former health officer of the port, who is a member of this committee, said that the committee tried to learn the manner by which the disease is communicated and that some remarkable results had been obtained. The health department hopes to receive the committee report today or tomorrow.

FARMER KILLED BY BOLT OF LIGHTNING

Dan McKinsey Meets Instant Death While at Work in Hay Field.

While at work in a hay field on the farm of Fred Baade, two miles south of the city, Dan McKinsey, forty years of age, was struck by a bolt of lightning and instantly killed. Benza Baker, who was working with him in the field, was only a few rods away when the former was killed.

The bolt struck McKinsey in the head knocking his hat high into the air. The current passed through his body, tearing off the shoes and splitting the feet between the toes. A few scars on his breast and a few singed hairs were the only visible effects of the stroke.

The deceased resided on a farm three miles south of Fort Wayne on the Bluffton road, and together with Mr. Baker was making hay on the Baade farm for shares. The small storm that came up about 3 o'clock was not severe enough to drive the men to shelter and they kept on working. Mr. McKinsey held a pitchfork in his hands when he was killed.

Coroner McArdle was summoned, pronouncing death due to a stroke of lightning, and ordered the body removed to the Wellman undertaking parlors. He is survived by the widow.

ELKS' ANNUAL STAG PICNIC IS SUCCESS

MYSTERIOUS FIRE BURNS BOGASH BARN

The barn on the Frank Bogash farm, on the Leo road, north of the city, was completely destroyed by fire Saturday night. This was the third time the building had been fired during the past three weeks. A week ago Thursday night the structure broke out in flames, but the blaze was extinguished before extensive damage was done.

There was no hope of saving the building when it was found to be wrapped in flames Saturday night. Loss is said to be $300. The building was empty. Four years ago the big barn on the Bogash place was consumed by fire.

VETERAN RELATES HIS EXPERIENCE

Tells of Another Battle Fought and Won—Tenders Hearty Praise for Tanlac.

Through four long years of conflict, the civil war, until the present time, Leroy L. Smith, 72 years old, a well known Fort Wayne resident who lives at 754 West Superior street, has been known as a man of unquestioned honesty and integrity.

Smith, now a salesman for the J. A. Fritch Soap Co., of St. Louis, recently testified regarding the merits of Tanlac, the celebrated new medicine. As a result of his unquestioned reputation, his words will have a deep impression on hundreds of residents of this city.

"I had kidney trouble and I also suffered from constipation," Mr. Smith said. "I didn't rest well at night and pains across my back bothered me. My feet would become swollen. I couldn't walk to town and back, I was so weak. My appetite was very poor.

"The first bottle of Tanlac brought good results, and now with the second bottle my troubles have been relieved greatly. The pains in my back are about gone; I sleep much better and my appetite is fine. The swelling in my feet no longer bothers me and I'm stronger now being able to walk as far as I wish. I can eat anything I care for. I've found Tanlac to be just the thing for kidney trouble and I've recommended it to my friends."

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complains, rheumatism, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and the like and has proven a fine reconstructive tonic.

Tanlac is now being specially introduced and explained in Fort Wayne at the four Meyer drug stores—Wayne and Calhoun streets, Calhoun and Columbia, 1420 Calhoun and Broadway and Taylor.—Advertisement.

MANY LOTS SOLD IN HARRISON HILL

A record-breaking sale of lots in Harrison Hill, the new addition located on Calhoun street, just south of Rudisill Boulevard, was recorded last Thursday when eleven of the lots in this tract were disposed of. This figure is not only the record sale for one day in Harrison Hill, but it also probably exceeds the number of sales made in any one day in any similar addition in this section of the country. The completion of the paving in this addition within the near future, as well as the completion of the Rudisill Boulevard paving has probably caused prospective purchasers to realize that the choice lots in this tract will be subject to a decided increase in a comparatively short time, and to this fact may this extraordinary sale be attributed. Details regarding any feature of Harrison Hill may be secured from Hilgemann and Schaaf, the promoters, who are located in the North American Building.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

M. & B. TO FURNISH CURRENT TO WARREN

Contract Awarded to Furnish Electricity to Town for Nine Years.

Warren, Ind., July 24.—The Warren town board has entered into a contract with the M. & B. Traction company to furnish all the current that is used in the town of Warren for lighting streets, houses, motors, and for pumping the water used to supply water consumers. Under the terms of the contract, which is to run for a period of nine years, the rate to the town will be on a sliding demand scale which will average around 2¾ cents per kilowatt, according to the Warren Tribune.

At the same time that the contract was made with the traction company for current another contract was made with the firm of Smith & Dreschel, of Marion, to make the necessary changes of machinery at the plant to change from steam-driven pumps to electrical drive. These men are to receive a commission of fifteen per cent on all material used, as their pay. The estimated cost of the change is $2,950 with a guarantee that the cost will not exceed $3,100. One of the pumps will have a capacity of forty pounds pressure while the other will have one hundred pounds. It is estimated that the two pumps will cost about $1,600. It will be something like three months before the work is completed.

BONDED TO THE LIMIT.

Hartford City, Ind., July 24.—The city of Hartford City is now bonded to the 2 per cent limit and it will be impossible to issue $6,000 bonds for the installation of cluster lights and for the construction of the traction bridge over Jefferson street, according to the report submitted to the city council last evening by City Attorney A. G. Emshwiller. In this case it will be necessary for the lighting company to install the posts, if they are to be installed, and the city rent them from the company. Some such proposition will be made the council at the next meeting, it is believed, and some action taken toward getting the lights in. Work is to start next week in installing the lights ordered by the county, and as a majority of the business men here desire to supplement this work with a large number of lights to be cared for by the city, it is likely that some way will be found to get the lights.

ORIENTAL SPLENDOR MARKS THE FUNERAL

Throngs With Bared Heads See Body of Chinese President Pass.

Peking, June 8.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Yuan Shi Kai's body was borne through the streets of Peking in oriental splendor today and left the capital in whic hthe late president has been the pre-eminent figure for four years. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese stood with bare heads while the catafalque of the late president was carried slowly along the imperial roadway from the forbidden city to the railway station. The few thousand foreigners living in Peking and many foreign visitors from other Chinese cities joined with the Chinese in doing homage to the powerful leader, whose forceful methods made his enemies as bitter as his friends were firm in their admiration of him.

Rumors that opponents of the monarchical movement might make demonstrations during the funeral procession caused some uneasiness. But the course of the procession was carefully policed and no disturbance occurred. President Li Yuan-Hung, all the male members of Yuan Shi Kai's family, Prince Hu Lung, representing the late Manchu dynasty, and the entire diplomatic corps accredited to Peking walkeed in the procession from the palace grounds to Chiemen, the central gate in the city wall opposite which the railway station is located. The procession was a strange combination of oriental and western customs, a blending of old and new China, of the monarchy and the republic. The uniforms of the Chinese soldiery which participated in the march were fashioned after those of western aarmies, but the Chinese caatafalque, the scores of priests wearing their robes of brilliant satin, the hundreds of banner bearers in bright red gowns, the numerous sacrificial offerings carried on bright colored floats and the tile roofs and bright red walls of the imperial buildings along the line of march, made still brighter by the brilliant mid-summer sun, overshadowed the western touches in the procession and gave it a decided mediaeval character.

Yuan Shi-Kai's older sons and other male relatives, numbering more than fifty, were clad in the traditional white mourning robes of the Chinese. They walked under a great white canopy and every few yards attendants dropped pillows on the pavement upon which the mourners knelt and bowed their heads.

After the procession had moved through Chienmen gate the catafalque was placed in a temporary marque erected before the entrance to the railway station. Thereafter tablets were burned and offerings of food and wine were made in honor of the departed.

The body was then carried through the station and placed in the funeral train, which consisted of many cars draped with red bunting and bright with various colored banners. Three trains were required to carry the family and friends of the late president and the officers designated by the government to accompany the body to the late president's ancestral home at Chang-Te-Fu, in Honan province.

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

1 Corinthians 1:1-9.

1. Paul, called to be an apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, and Sosthenes our brother,

2. Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours:

3. Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4. I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ;

5. That in every thing ye are enriched by him, in all utterance, and in all knowledge:

6. Even as the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you:

7. So that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ:

8. Who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9. God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

For some reason we think of a saint as one belonging to the world beyond rather than this world, but Paul tells these early Christians that they were "called to be saints." And notice that he does not stop there, but continues by saying "with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord." This new testament meaning for "saints" is not the exceptional disciple, but all true believers.

The Hoosier Poet's Death.

It is doubtful if the death of any other American of today would have carried to so many hearts, old and young, in all this broad land the twinge of personal sorrow such as has followed the passing of James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier Poet, whose gentle soul took its flight at his Lockerbie street home in Indianapolis Saturday night. High and low, rich and poor everywhere will mourn his passing as that of a very dear friend. They may not have enjoyed a personal acquaintance with the poet. They may never even have seen him, and yet they knew him intimately through the simple, homely verse and the melodious song which he played with master hand upon the human heartstrings.

The witchery of his muse and the melody of his lyrics held their powerful appeal to young and to old alike, and yet it is American childhood which is most deeply bereft in James Whitcomb Riley's death. There is not a schoolroom in all this broad land, and scarcely a home where children are that does not know and has not felt the inspiration and the charm of Riley's rhymes of childhood. He knew children as few men know them—knew them an loved them with a passionate depth that was returned in kind with a wealth of devotion that constitutes a striking characteristic in the life of this extraordinarily gifted son of the Hoosier state who came to be essentially the poet of the people.

Wealth of tribute will come from far and near to lovingly bedeck the bier of the Hoosier poet as his form shall be laid to rest amid the scenes of his boyhood days. Eulogy and tears alike will voice a sorrow well-nigh universal, and human hearts will pour from their depths the expression of love and honor to the memory of this gentle, kindly soul. Yet try as it may, humanity will never be able to repay the debt it owes to the Hoosier Poet. Riley's legacy to the America of both this and future ages is greater and of infinitely more value to humanity than the material wealth of a Croesus.

Indiana suffragists have just made a trip to Rushville, the home of James E. Watson, to hold upon his very doorstep a meeting for the advancement of the cause of votes for women. The precise attitude of Mr. Watson toward the enterprise is not disclosed in the press dispatches. The people of Indiana are waiting in breathless expectancy to discover whether or not Mr. Watson will be able to prove himself diplomatically agile enough to duplicate the recent feat of Mr. Hughes. The latter, it will be recalled, received one delegation of suffragists and a similar contingent of antis on the same day and was able to send each away confidently believing the nominee was "with 'em."

Objection to the bonding provision of the proposed jitney bus regulation on the ground that it might make the business unprofitable for those not regularly in the business, but who jump into it as a "side line" during odd hours, still fails to supply any justification for neglect to guarantee so far as possible, the safety of those who ride the jitneys and those who walk. There should be no mistake as to the relative importance of the interests involved in this question. Concern for the public must come first.

Mr. Chafin and a number of other old-time regulars in the prohibition national convention blocked the movement to make Mr. Hanly's nomination unanimous, even after the Indiana man had secured a big majority of the votes on the first ballot. Can it be possible Mr. Chafin and his friends have it in mind to do a bit of insurging against the new aspirations of the former Indiana governor?

New York progressives are reported to be threatening to go to court if need be to prevent the placing of Mr. Hughes' name on their state ballot this year. The progressive party may be dead, disintegrated, blown up and evaporated as some of its enemies are asserting, but for a genteel sort of corpse it appears to be making considerable noise in one part of the country and another.

A Michigan farmer has just complained to the Michigan City police that he has been fleeced out of $6,000 which he brought to that town with the deliberate intent of harvesting a return of $60,000 on a race-betting scheme, having followed the advice of some new-found friends at a Battle Creek health resort. The "wire-tapping" game is apparently as good as ever, despite its long years of service.

Those two Hammond men who fought a duel with stilettos over a girl who died fifty years ago at least exhibited most amazing ingenuity and resourcefulness in finding something to fight about.

Somehow we feared it would finally come to that. One New York hotel has adopted the custom of showing a five-reel photoplay between the courses of the evening dinner.

FORGETTING HOW TO THINK.

(Wyoming Tribune, Cheyenne.)

A college professor made the remark to one of his classes in the summer school at Ohio State university the other day that he notices a marked deterioration in the mental capacity of young people of college-student age since he first began to come in contact with them some twenty-five years ago. He said they seem unable to concentrate their minds as they used to. What they seem to learn now, he said, they acquire parrot-like. In short, they do not think, says an exchange.

We asked a high school teacher of long and successful experience if this is true. She said it undoubtedly is. Both she and the college professor attribute the uncompromising status of boys and girls to too much scattering of interest. There are too many different things for them to do, their attention is constantly being diverted from one thing to another and the result is that they cannot fix their minds on anything and consequently do nothing well.

Not only do they have a wide diversity of amusements, but the school curriculum itself is given over in large measure to a very wide variety of so-called studies which by the farthest stretch of the imagination cannot be considered vital or fundamental.

A return to simpler courses in school and to simpler living outside is needed, in the view of our college professor and our high school teacher.

CHAUFFEUR IMPROVES OF PAINFUL BURNS

In an effort to extinguish flames from a burning automobile, the tank of which exploded as he and firemen played a stream on the fire, James Hoppel, chauffeur for John H. Bass, was painfully burned about the body Sunday night. Attendants at St. Joseph's hospital said Monday he was making satisfactory recovery.

William Brandt, fireman at engine house No. 3, was also painfully burned about the face and hands. He was removed to his home. The auto, property of H. L. Wagner, an Ohio man, was completely wrecked.

The accident occurred at the plant of the Standard Oil service station, corner of Harrison and Baker streets, where Wagner was getting supplies. Mr. Hoppel saw the car afire as he passed, turned in an alarm, and himself played a stream on the fire when the department arrived. He was burned in this practice.

Firemen rolled Hoppel on the ground and snatched part of his burning clothing from him, saving the man from more serious injury. The origin of the blaze is unknown unless it was a hot engine.

CHARGED WITH THEFT OF FOWLS AND FORD

Howard Brickley, whose parents live near Bluffton, was taken to Bluffton, Monday, to answer a charge of stealing a Ford automobile and sixty chickens.

The automobile, which belonged to Homer Clark, a rural mail carrier, was taken from the streets of Bluffton. The chickens, which were confined in two large crates, were stolen from in front of the store of Leo Marquart, a Murray merchant. The double steal was committed last Thursday.

According to officials, some one saw Brickley load the crates of noisy chickens into the back of the automobile. He drove to Fort Wayne, where he sold the poultry at a packing house, police say. He continued on his journey in the automobile to Lima, Ohio, it is said. The machine was found by Lima police on the public square there, Friday night.

Brickley was in Fort Wayne Saturday night and was arrested by Officer George Eisenhut. He was turned over to Bluffton authorities.

AIN'T NATURE WONDERFUL?

Unnatural History, by Eugene Ahern.

THE UMBRELLA.

Lis'en Loole, you know that old gag, "What becomes of all the pins?" It's wrong; it should be, "What becomes of all the umbrellas?"

Well say, Horace, that's a funny way to draw a picture of an umbrella, having it standing without any support.

No, it ain't, Lem, that's right; you try it some time, take an umbrella and stand it on its tip and we'll bet some new scenery to a shine that it won't get a chance to fall, somebody will nab it even before you get all your hands off it.

Umbrellas go quicker than money. There's just one case known where a fellow still has his first umbrella he bought, and that's Calabasha, the 33rd Egyptian prince of Weenie Weenie. He died 2006 years ago and had the umbrella buried up with him when he was bandaged into a mummy.

Now haven't you got a kind of easy idea why these research guys are all digging and tunneling around in Egypt?

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

What the Sentinel Had to Say About Perosns and Events Twenty-Five Years Ago.

Herman Berghoff has returned from Baltimore.

Dr. K. K. Wheelock has returned from Mt. Clemens, Mich..

Judge S. R. Alden has gone to Petoskey and he will go thence to West Superior, Wis.

Mary Centlivre, the famous pacing mare, owned by the Centlivres, will be shipped to Cleveland for the races next Friday.

R. T. McDonald, A. McPherson, Louis Heilbrener and H. C. Rockhill are taking in the races at Detroit.

Another oil well was struck at Montpelier yesterday. The well flows sixty barrels in twenty-four hours.

The new street railroad on Clinton street is rapidly approaching completion. Fort Wayne needs more street railroads, and it also needs the electric cars.

Burglars effected an entrance into the Swinney residence, on the west side, the other evening, but they were frightened away before they could accomplish their purpose.

The Postoffice Clerks' association has organized with the following officers: President, T. W. Blair; secretary, George Adams; treasurer, Fred Drake.

S. M. Foster started for Michigan yesterday afternoon to buy the lumber which is to be used in the construction of the grand stand and fences at the Driving club's grounds northeast of the city.

Sunday morning at 6 o'clock a party of wheelman will leave the A. B. White Cycle company's rooms on Court street, for a 100-mile run to be accomplished, if possible, in ten hours.

Wing & Mahurin have submitted plans for the grandstand at the new driving park. It is very attractive, and its interior is beveled so as to give the audience not only a view of the race course, but of every one in the grandstand. The stand is 35x167 feet.

Weil brothers, of this city, have established an office on South Fifth avenue, New York city. Mr. Isaac Weil is in charge. He has recently returned to Fort Wayne to relieve his brother, Mr. Abe Weil, and Leo Losser, who will take a three months' outing in Europe, looking after the foreign business of this rapidly growing concern.

DR. LYON TELLS OF BATTLE OF THE SOUL

Famous Evangelist Speaks at First Presbyterian Church Sunday.

Dr. Milford H. Lyon, famous evangelist, who conducted a series of tabernacle meetings in Fort Wayne a year and a half ago, occupied the pulpit at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday morning, in the absence of Rev. H. B. Master, the regular pastor, who is on his vacation.

Dr. Lyon motored to Fort Wayne from his home in Winona Lake, returning in the afternoon. He will speak at the same church next Sunday morning. At the morning service Sunday he spoke on "The Battle of the Soul." Before entering into his sermon, however, he expressed himself as highly pleased at again seeing Fort Wayne people, declaring he felt a peculiar interest in the city.

Dr. Lyon took his text from Romans vii:22-25: "For I delight in the law of God after the inward man. But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members. O wretched man that I am! Who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I thank God through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

"This declaration of Paul concerning the conflict going on in his own heart is an expression of the universal experience of human life," Dr. Lyon declared. "There seems to be in every human being two radically opposite and different antagonistic natures. Both of these natures have a physiological basis. The scientists tell us that there is within the human body not only the cerebral brain but also the abdominal brain. From these two great nerve centers radiate strangely different sensations and directions.

"We find this fact of a dual personality in each individual presented by the evidence of the psychologist who tells us that there is in every mind a primary and a secondary consciousness. This secondary consciousness is cruder and lower in quality and character than the primary. Usually it is dormant and subordinate, but at times will assume the supremacy over the life. This twofold quality is manifest especially in the moral nature. These elements seem arrayed the one against the other, as declared by the apostle in the words of our text. Every life that knows itself is conscious of this battle between the opposing forces going on in some form or other every day of its experience.

"The most pitiable condition for any individual would be for this struggle to cease. Browning well said: 'When the fight begins within himself a man's worth something. God stoops o'er his head, satan looks up between his feet. Both tug. He is left himself in the middle, the soul quakes and grows.'"

A meeting of the presidents of the various German societies of the city was held Sunday afternoon at Germania park for the purpose of discussing plans for the annual celebration of German day, to be held at Germania park August 13.

BUY SITE AND ABOVE STABLES WILL GO UP

Huntertown Live Stock Body Prepares for Coming Stock Show.

Articles of incorporation will be taken out this week by the Huntertown Livestock & Agricultural association in order that it may properly administer its properties following purchase of seven acres of land in Huntertown whereon sales and exhibition stables will be erected costing $3,000. The land cost $2,100. The association was organized more than a year ago, but has never incorporated. It has 100 members, its president being Dr. H. J. Greenwell, of Huntertown, and its secretary Homer Bowser. There are eight members of the board of directors.

Meeting Saturday Night.

At a meeting Saturday night members of the association decided on purchase of the site and erection of the stables. An option on the land, located in Huntertown, has been held for some time. A fifth of the stock necessary to finance the building and ground project has been subscribed and it is planned to have the buildings completed for holding of a stock show the third week in October.

So far as C. Henry, county agent, has knowledge the Huntertown farmers have an unique building project. It is not duplicated in Allen county nor in the United States, the county agent says. There are numerous stock stables over the county, but exhibition and show stables in connection are not operated. The Huntertown Livestock & Agricultural association, organized chiefly for Allen county, has grown to include progressive farmers and breeders of stock from Steuben, Whitley and Noble counties. C. Henry, county agent, attended the meeting Saturday night at Huntertown.

Community Picnic Talked.

After returning from Decatur, where they investigated the success of the community picnic given by business men of Decatur to the farmers of Adams county more than a month ago, C. Henry, county agent, and Ross McCulloch, announce that a similar event has been considered for Allen county. Mr. Henry said Monday, however, that no definite plans were formed. The picnic was given in Decatur to promote a better acquaintance between the farmer and the business man.

Farmers Hold Picnic.

The picnic of the Washington Township Farmers' club was held Sunday in Henry Fortmeyer's grove. There was a large attendance and games indulged in during the day were enjoyed.

CONDITION IS BETTER.

Lawrence Garsch, Who Suffered Fractured Skull, Is Improving.

Lawrence Garsch, of Pennsylvania, who was struck by a street car at Wallace and Lafayette streets Saturday night, suffering a fractured skull, is much improved at St. Joseph's hospital where he was removed in the police ambulance. His condition was regarded as critical at first, but he has rallied nicely since regaining consciousness Sunday afternoon.

KUROPATKIN, DEMOTED ONCE, NOW BIG MAN IN RUSSIAN DRIVE.

General Alexei Nicholaevitch Kuropatkin, demoted after the Russo-Japanese War, today is one of the biggest figures in the Russian Military family.

As commander of the right wing of the Russians he is pitting his military genius against that of Field Marshall von Hindenberg, the idol of all Germany, popularly called the "Man of Iron," and is making big gains.

General Kuropatkin has always disliked display of pomp or magnificence, striving in the very height of his power to maintain the moral standing of his troops. He considers it a natural act of duty for one in command to influence his army to a man by setting a good example in his own manner of living.

The general is noted for his just dealing. Merit and bravery alone are considered by him in cases of promotion.

From the Mohammedans, among whom he spent a long period of his life, he has acquired a touch of fatalism.

Although a wealthy man, Kuropatkin does not believe in the life luxurious. He lives the simple life of the soldier. He works hard and his theory is that thoroughness is the great essential to military success.

INTER-FAMILY ROW RELATED IN COURT

Alvin Wade Arrested for Disorderly Conduct on Complaint of Neighbor.

Until Friday night all the misunderstandings, and there were several, between the Wade and Hamilton families, living in the 1300 block on Burgess street, had been settled at home. Dogs had been killed, the Wades lost some fence wire, the Hamiltons objected to trespassing and other things. It was only when Alvin Wade, 20, called Mrs. Hamilton some names she "could not stand" that an affidavit was filed.

According to the story told by many witnesses in police court Monday morning Wade rode his bicycle on the sidewalk in front of the Hamilton home. He almost struck one of the several Hamilton children playing on the walk. It was claimed. Mrs. Hamilton rushed from the house to talk things over with Wade.

Neighbors said there was loud talking and some profanity. Mrs. Hamilton had Wade arrested on a disorderly charge. Judge Kerr gave both of them a severe lecture. He continued the case until August 13. An outbreak on the part of either family before that date will mean punishment, Kerr said.

Earl Manier says he did not steal the Presto-lite tank from the motorcycle of Roy Langstaff, electrician, who lives on rural route No. 3. Manier says he bought the tank, which was found on his machine and which Langstaff identified, from a workman at the Rolling mills. The man Manier bought the tank from for $6, was dark complexioned and heavy set, Manier told in police court.

Langstaff lost the tank from his machine while in swimming at the outskirts of the city last week. Manier says he had been wanting a tank for some time and that his brother directed the man, from whom he bought the tank, to him. Manier is to bring his brother into court on July 28 when trial of the case will be continued.

Fined for Riding on Sidewalk.

Al Delo Buanno, 20, was fined $1 and costs for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk along Bass street Saturday night. He refused to get off the walk when the patrolman yelled at him, it was brought out.

Judge Kerr has asked that all persons caught riding wheels on sidewalks in any part of the city, be brought to the station. Several children have been slightly injured during the past two weeks by cyclists who ride on the walks. The practice must be stopped as soon as possible, Judge Kerr ordered.

Woman Held for Loitering.

Mrs. Eva Burke, 40, charged with loitering, is held under $50 bond for trial on July 28. She was arrested in a feed barn on North Clinton street, Sunday morning. She was joining in a beer party with several men, it was charged. She said her home was in Columbia City.

Charged With Neglect.

George Shirey, 30, carpenter, charged with neglecting his small son, Alva, will have a further hearing on July 28. Shirey is held under $400 bond. He told the court he had refused to pay towards keeping his child because his wife had never treated him right. They separated a year ago. He is back seven weeks' payments ordered by the circuit court. He was told to bring a bondsman with him when he returns for hearing Friday.

Other Police Court Cases.

Joseph O'Neil, 30, charged with public intoxication, is in the St. Joseph hospital because he fell on the street Saturday night and broke his collarbone. He was placed under $25 bond for appearance in court as soon as he recovers.

Thomas Shaffer, farmer, who had been out of jail but a few weeks since sentenced on a drunk charge, was fined $75 and costs and sentenced to 30 days at the state farm when brought before Judge Kerr for the fifth time Monday.

Robert Richert, colored, who was drinking whisky, he said, because he had learned that his mother was bad sick in Philadelphia, was fined $10 and costs for being intoxicated Saturday night in the waitingroom of the Pennsylvania station.

Charles Wilson and Charles Bailey were each fined $5 and costs after being convicted on charges of intoxication. Rudy Leidsh, who gave Lafayette as his home, was fined $1 and costs on a drunk charge.

INDIANA PACER SETS THREE-HEAT RECORD

Single E Defeats Russell Boy, in Free-for-All Event at Cleveland.

Cleveland, July 24.—In the greatest three-heat race ever staged the Indiana stallion Single G, Saturday won the free-for-all pace at North Randall, defeating the heavily-played Russell Boy and a high-class field. In winning he established a new world's record for three heats, beating the former world's record by three-quarters of a second. Three drivers felt the heavy hand of the judges for improper driving. The slaughter of the favorites continued, all four first choices falling by the wayside.

Russell Boy, $200, Single G, and R. H. Brett, $50 each, and the field $20 is a sample pool on the fast pace. Halboy made the early pace in the first heat, but the stretch battle was between Russell Boy and Single G, the former winning in 2:00¼. Russell Boy set the pace in the second round, Gosnell keeping Single G in behind, but in a desperate stretch drive the Hoosier sidewheler won, the time again 2:00¼.

R. H. Brett rushed to the front at the start of the third heat, but Single G and Russell Boy had the duel from the half. At the distance stand Russell Boy flew, distress signals and Gosnell was looking over his shoulder at Murphy and taking his mount back at the finish in 2:01¼. The fastest previous heat race was won by Directum I at Syracuse in 1914, Frank Bogash, Jr., winning the first heat in 2:02½ and the stallion the next two in 2:00.

The Tavern "steak" winner, Grand Chimes, 2:06¼, has been sold by Fred Edman to Bina Colt, of Mantua, O., for a reported price of $7,500.

At the close of the racing it was announced from the judges' stand that A. H. Rodney had been suspended for thirty days, John Fleming for ten days and Mart Wilson for six days for improper driving during the week. Summaries:

GENEROUS OPEN SPACES IN HARRISON HILL

Harrison Boulevard, the main thoroughfare of Harrison Hill, is destined to be one of residential districts which the citizens will be able to point to in pride, through the restrictions placed upon the buildings that will go up upon it. The Boulevard itself is 145 feet wide, and restrictions require that all residences be set back 75 feet on both sides of the street, which makes a total of 295 feet between the building lines on opposite sides of this beautiful avenue. To the average man this figure may not convey the fact that this space is equivalent to the distance between Calhoun and Clinton streets. In addition to this feature, the engineers who have layed out Harrison Hill have provided a grade line for every lot so that the whole boulevard when built up will take on a harmonious appearance. Harrison Hill lots are sold by Hilgemann and Schaaf, located in the North American Building, and full particulars regarding any of the other details of this addition may be secured from them.

"Mediate" Woman Urges President

Witherspon, of Mississippi, is taking a prominent part in the movement to induce President Wilson to accept the offer of mediation offered by Latin-American republics.

NYMPH OF SAND DUNES MYSTERY NOW SOLVED

Woman's Revolt Against a Man-Ruled World Makes Mrs. Gray Hermit.

Chicago, Ill., July 24.—Revolt against a man ruled world is the solution of the Mystery of the Nymph of the Sand Dunes.

"I am Mrs. A. M. Gray. I was a stenographer in the University of Chicago. I found out that men stenographers were paid more than women. I quit and decided to go back to nature."

This was the simple explanation of the comely, dark haired woman of the dreary Indiana wastes. Yesterday her fame went broadcast as the Mystery Woman of the Hut in the sands.

Lake Plunges Draw Attention.

Fishermen had seen her white figure flashing in the waves as, twice a day, she took her plunge in the waters of Lake Michigan, where they chill with the winds of Canada or tempered by the breezes of the south.

Probably her privacy would never have been menaced had not women of the fisher folk objected to her nymph-like plunges twice a day in the lake. But they did object and yesterday a sturdy fisherman paid a visit to the hut of Mrs. Gray, feminist hermet.

Then the fisherman asked a few questions, hoping to get the woman's story, but she produced a revolver and bade him leave.

Fisherman's Wife Tells Story.

Mrs. Mathilda Burton, a fisherman's wife, who lives nearest to the shack, gave all the information she has concerning the mysterious woman.

"This Mrs. Gray, and we hardly believe that is her right name," she said, "has been a mystery around here for a long time. She has lived near here several years. Not until last winter did she make an abode in anything that resembles a human habitation. For years she lived in a wigwam beneath two great trees.

"She must have had a terrible time, with only the little shelter afforded by the wigwam, and it is wonderful that she has lived through the awful cold. It must have got so bad that she had to seek shelter, and when the fisherman who used to live in the shack up there left she went into his deserted hut.

She Keeps No Mirror.

"She wears her hair bobbed. She has no mirror and knows when her hair is growing too long only by the length of the shadow it casts on the ground. When she thinks it needs bobbing she cuts it by the shadow. Her winter dress consists of a short, coarse skirt, big boots, a ragged waist, and a little cap. In summer she wears just an old light dress and the ragged waist. She never wears shoes or stockings.

"She cooks outside her hut. She has a few boxes which she keeps scrupulously clean and uses for chairs and a table. She has a sort of fireplace, and her only utensils are an old coffee pot and a cup which she found on the railroad tracks.

"She says that when she was at the University of Chicago she grew discontented with the way things were run. She was always crazy about the lake and people would not let her go down in the night and swim."

Attorney Jesse MacBeth was in Delphi Sunday, where he addressed a large gathering of Odd Fellows. The occasion was the annual home coming.

TENNIS FOR THE BEGINNERS

How Florence A. Ballin, 1916 Sensation of Courts, DRIVES BACKHAND.

(The fourth of a series on tennis posed especially for The Sentinel by Miss Florence A. Ballin, of Bryn Mawr college, the 1916 sensation of tennis, hockey and basketball star.)

The average woman is weak on her backhand stroke because she neglects to practice and until she has gained confidence is content to meet every drive with a forehand stroke.

To get the best results in driving the body should be going forward as the stroke is executed. This produces the required speed.

Players who stand flatfooted when they drive or hit when leaning backward seldom get force or direction.

At first players complain they do not get a free motion when using the backhand. This is because the stroke brings into play muscles not accustomed to this use. In making the stroke face the plane of the ball with your right shoulder toward the net and your weight on the left foot.

Swing your racquet across your body as the ball approaches and shift your thumb to tighten the grip, then meet the ball before it reaches the top of the bounce.

As you follow your stroke through your arm will naturally straighten out until you find yourself resting on your right foot.

True, it is difficult to attain the same force with the backhand drive as with the forehand as the position of the arm and body is unnatural, yet a strong ball can be delivered and, with practice, sent to just the point you want it.

AMERICAN BUTTON EXPORTS DOUBLED

Branch of Industry Has Profited Vastly by War Abroad.

Washington, July 24.—The American export trade in buttons increased 79 per cent in 1915 as compared with the preceding year, and reports received by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, department of commerce, indicate that there are prospects of further expansion. Under normal conditions, all the world, except the United States and Canada, buys this class of manufactured articles from Austria-Hungary, Germany, France, Italy, England, Japan, and to a small extent from Spain. The United States manufactures enough to meet about nine-tenths of its own requirements and more than half the supply of Canada, which has some factories of its own. Under present conditions, however, with the hitherto largest sources cut off, all the button-using countries of the world, except the central European empires, must depend more or less upon the manufacturers of the United States, Japan, Italy and Spain, among which the United States is far the largest producer.

Consuls in every continent have joined during the past few months in a survey of the entire foreign field of the button industry, that they may be in a position to advise American manufacturers and exporters. They have studied the normal production of the countries in which they are stationed, special conditions that have changed the currents of trade, styles of buttons that are in demand, prices and terms that would interest local dealers, export channels that have been blocked, and the attitude toward American buttons. They have candidly stated their conclusions, and their reports, received at Washington, are now issued in a publication of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, "Foreign Trade in Buttons." The statements from many of these fields may be summarized in the constantly recurring idea: "If the manufacturers of the United States can make proper prices and terms, there would appear to be an excellent opportunity for extending the sale of American buttons."

It is believed by the bureau that the detailed information contained in these reports, showing the approximate size and the requirements of the markets in practically all the button-using countries of the world will be of material assistance to those who are engaged in the industry in the United States. Lists of importing houses, agents, and dealers were furnished by the consuls, and are printed in an appendix to the report. Samples of buttons in vogue in the respective countries were also forwarded and are made available for inspection by interested firms.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

CLEANING WHITE SHOES

"QUEER" processes and preparations for cleaning white shoes are constantly being put on the market with the proud title of "best cleaner in the world," or "the utmost in shoe cleaners," or some other equally pretentious characterization; but in many cases the least elaborate method seems to be the best—for buckskin and nubuck shoes at least.

Experience proves that a stiff wire brush and a fine powder are effective. Begin by rubbing all stain thoroly with the brush, keeping the shoes dry; it will be found that few marks can withstand a wire-brush onslaught with much success. After the shoes have been well cleaned, wet them slightly and apply the powder with a felt spreader, so that it sticks to the material and restores its original immaculate hue. By using this brush instead of sponging the shoes the rough finish which is so essential in maintaining the appearance of newness is easily secured.

KNITTED SPORTS DRESS

WOOD-FIBER silk has long been used for the making of sweaters and sports blouses, but only recently has it been employed for the fashioning of skirts. That it proves its worth is shown in the suit here displayed. Peacock blue is the color chosen for the suit. Black-and-white striped wood-fiber silk edges the square collar, the line of closing, and forms deep cuffs. Buttons covered with blue silk fasten the jacket and ornament the skirt.

While the coat and skirt can be worn as a dress, it can also be worn as a suit.

FROCK OF TAFFETA AND SERGE

YOU may be considering the making of a frock which will do for street wear and which will do for the first days of fall. In that event you will be grateful for a look at one of the modes which bids fair to be popular during the coming season. It is made of dark blue taffeta, which has dots of self-color sprinkled all over it and of dark blue serge.

The frock has many interesting features, but perhaps the one which stands out most prominently is the cape collar which crosses in front and is buttoned to either side of the front panel. On many frocks the cape collar is detachable, allowing for pleasant changes. Taffeta forms the collar, while serge edges it. A piece of serge at the back of the collar is apparently held down with small black buttons.

The three-quarter-length sleeves of taffeta are finished with a band of serge and are cut without any intention to fit the arm.

For one who has small hips the use of the three bands of serge is a unique idea and would lend an individual air to a frock.

FASHIONGRAMS

AN attractive combination of pink georgette crepe is laced up the sides with black velvet ribbon.

White ostrich plays an important part as a trimming. It finishes the collar, cuffs, bottom of coat and shaped tunic of a white satin suit. A blue satin vest gives an artistic touch of color to the suit.

For motor wear white satin caps are smart. Their whiteness is emphasized by the clever introduction of dark blue satin either as a facing or a trimming.

AN IDEAL TEA SERVICE

IF you are looking for something different in a tea service, there is a very pretty one, which you probably have not seen, in a highly polished brown china. The three pieces—teapot, sugar bowl and cream pitcher—are included in the set. A very effective design of silver is traced on the china. For the afternoon tea this set is vey dainty and attractive.

A BLUE CHASER

IF you are ever depressed by having the blues and you feel that life holds nothing for you, just try to get rid of the blue devils by doing something worth while for some one else. This does not mean that you must spend money, the lack of which may be the cause of your depression. There are other gifts which are just as valuable, and yet their value cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Perhaps you can offer a kind word to some one. You may be able to assist some one with her work. Lending a helpful book will also bring happiness to your heart as well as to the person to whom you lend it. All of these things will help you to forget yourself, which, after all, is the secret of chasing the blues away. Some one has aptly said that "Happiness is not found in self-contemplation, it is perceived only when it is reflected from another."

SUMMER SMARTNESS FOR MISS SEVENTEEN

IN the season of brides and sweet girl graduates the younger sister in her teens is apt to be forgotten. Now mother, or whoever sews at home, must hurry and add a few dainty clothes to the depleted wardrobe of Miss Seventeen before she goes on her long-anticipated vacation.

A gingham dress, which is quite smart enough for street wear in the mornings, can be made from striped and plain gingham. The particular gingham chosen by the artists suggests a grouping of stripes, which is a trifle newer than stripes of equal width. A light tan background, with stripes of several colors, is an attractive pattern. Select, then, for the trimming either a plain gingham or chambray to match the background or one to match the stripes.

Dovetail points where the yoke joins in front, on the cuffs and where the pointed band is mitered at the sides add distinction to what would be a plain little frock. Contrasting buttons finish off these points. Another feature worth noticing is the odd arrangement of the sleeve and yoke in one. This is not a difficult thing to achieve, as it is almost an exaggeration of the raglan sleeve, with another yoke of the stripes set in at the shoulder.

For afternoon the young girl just dotes on organdie, a pretty flesh tint at that. The dear little shirtwaist frock pictured takes on airs from the pointed trimming of the self material which is added to the tucks and other untrimmed edges. This trimming can be made by stitching yards and yards of bias strips into half-inch bias bands, then by folding these bands in points and stitching along the edge to be trimmed, cutting off afterward the surplus material which will lie back under the edge. That is one way. Another is to make each little point from a separate triangle made from the bias strips. If mother helps with the pointed trimming, a girl could almost make this frock herself; it is otherwise so very simple. If desired, the pointed trimming could contrast with the frock, or tiny picoted ruffles could be substituted, or even a good quality of rickrack braid. Pearl or crocheted buttons are best. The hat for this frock might be made from a bit of the left-over organdie. It could be quite crownless, with a ribbon for a band and wired organdie for the brim.

The younger girl's evening frock is always more or less of a problem. She must have one if she ventures out of an evening for the most innocent dance, but it may not be a very formal frock. Here is a suggestion to be worked out in Georgette crepe in some pastel tint. Pleated ribbon edges the overskirt, underskirt and hip line, where a wire is hidden to give a slight bouffance. A soft crossed draping of the self-material or of the Georgette crepe in flesh color suggests fichu lines at the corsage. Flowers connect the narrow girdle across the front of the slightly raised waist line.

TAKE UP SWITCH.

Traction Company Will Save Much Expense at Bluffton as Result.

One of the switches at the corner of Market and Main streets in Bluffton was taken up Saturday by a gang of men employed by the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company. The traction officials declare the spur to the south was not needed and by removing it they will not be compelled to keep the greater part of the intersection in repair. The traction company is bonding all of the steel rails at Bluffton where new brick is being put in.

James Whitcomb Riley.

Where is he gone? The lengthening miles
Have lured him to the afterwhiles
And there he fares down aisles of bloom
That thrill the air with their perfume;
Yet still his song forever sings—
This man who sang of common things.

Aye, he was brother to the brooks,
Had kinship with the forest nooks,
And caught the vibrant rhyme of truth
That lines the laughing lips of Youth;
Age found him not; his heart had wings—
This man who sang of common things.

The rose adrip with honey dew,
The silvered clouds against the blue,
The friendly trees, and wind-swept grass
Gave hail to him when he would pass;
His were the summers and the springs—
This man who sang of common things.

Deep-shrined within the homefolks' heart
Is held his simple, humble art
Which glorified the everyday
And gave us joy along the way
To free our souls of scars and stings—
This man who sang of common things.

The golden song of heaven is
A poem built of souls like his,
Whose gentle songs were fashioned of
God's light, and laughter, life and love.
Where is he gone? The lengthening miles
Have lured him to the afterwhiles.

BREAK WITH ENGLAND MAY BE THE OUTCOME

Serious Trouble Likely if Blacklist Order is Enforced.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—The administration looks upon the recent British blacklist order as the most serious problem yet presented by the European war, not excepting the German submarine controversy.

Admission to this effect was made here by a high official, who expressed the fear that unless President Wilson is able to obtain a rescinding of the order within the next few weeks, the spirit of resentment may run so high in the United States it will be difficult to refrain from reprisals of a most serious nature or an actual break in the friendly relations with Great Britain.

Proves Britain's Stand.

The blacklist is looked upon by administration officials as only another example of Great Britain's disregard for American rights where those rights happen to clash with her war policy. If followed to its logical conclusion, according to the present view, the blacklist can be used not only to prevent trade between British subjects and the American blacklisted firms, but trade between other neutrals and the blacklisted firms, as well as trade between American firms themselves.

Gave U. S. No Warning.

The administration particularly resents the manner in which Great Britain announced the blacklist to the world. Although several of the blacklisted firms claim now they had evidence several months ago that they were being discriminated against, administration officials say that the United States was not advised in advance of Great Britain's intention to declare a blacklist.

It is the view here that the London government should have given this country some warning and should have permitted it to make some representations before the order went into effect. It is now the fear that the order having been promulgated Great Britain will decline to concede the American position in the protest which President Wilson will send shortly, and that the United States, as a result, will have to take measures to protect the blacklisted firms which may lead to a direct clash with England.

Look Up Precedents.

While the president has decided thus far to do nothing more than send a sharp protest, he has given orders to the state department to look up all precedents as well as all methods of offsetting the blacklist order, in case he finds the protest does not produce the result he seeks.

The president particularly wishes to discuss the matter with Ambassador Page at London. Mr. Page returns to this country next week, supposedly on a vacation. It is the general belief here, however, that he is coming to discuss with Mr. Wilson the British blacklist, the British point of view on the American note protesting against interference with the mails, and the British view of this country's attitude toward its blockade of Germany and the neutral European countries.

The latest information from London indicates that Great Britain will defend the blacklist, no matter what the United States says in opposition to it.

PLATT IS RESTING EASIER.

Homer Platt, residing near Uniondale, Wells county, who was brought to a local hospital because of loss of blood from bleeding gums, is reported as resting easier. The heroic act of a brother, Lloyd Platt, in furnishing blood by transfusion from his own body, helped restore the weakened man.

The United States agricultural department estimates the annual damage done to crops by the ravages of insects at $700,000,000.

The Old Colored Lady

Who asked the optician for reading glasses needed an education first and thought she could buy glasses to make her read. Many people who can read and should know better put off getting reading glasses. Close work or threading a needle gets hard—reading at night is a punishment yet they point with pride to the fact that they are nearly fifty and never wore glasses. Honestly, now, you couldn't blame the darky, but if this case hits you, let Meigs, in the Lyric Theatre Bldg., make your glasses and you'll admit yourself you were foolish to have put it off.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS A TRIPLE KILLING

Lake Forest Women, on Ride, Find Victims of Murder and Suicide.

Chicago, July 24.—Miss Marjorie C. McIntosh, of Lake Forest, and her guest, Miss Isabella Burrill, of Geneva, N. Y., yesterday discovered a triple death mystery on the grounds of the Onwentsia Country club.

They found the bodies of an unidentified man, a woman, and a baby, and a Lake county coroner's jury later said the man had shot his child, wife, and himself.

At 7 a. m. the two young women went for a canter over the Skokie valley. They rode west on their mounts until they came to the Onwentsia club's bridle path where it turns off of Deerpath avenue into what is known as the Jones estate. This is just across from the A. D. Dick home. The path here winds along the bank of the Skokie behind a fringe of underbrush.

Horse Shies; Tragedy Revealed.

When they had ridden about 200 feet down this path Miss McIntosh's horse shied. She looked to see what had frightened it and saw a man and woman sprawled on the grassy bank of the roadway.

"At first," said Miss McIntosh at the home of Franklin P. Smith, where she was playing tennis, "I thought they were asleep. And then—O dear, I never was so frightened in my life. We rode right up to the Onwentsia club and told the watchmen. We were all upset; it just spoiled the ride. I don't want to talk about it any more."

Identities Not Established.

Neither the police nor the undertaker were able to establish the identity of the dead parents and child. The nearest they could come to it was to get the initials of the dead man from his hat, which was sold by Baldwin in Flint, Mich. These initials are L. A. C. They were stamped in the band. Chief McGuire wired Flint for identification.

According to Miss Hannah Jensen, keeper of a boarding house at Lake Forest, who was one of the more important witnesses called at the inquest in the afternoon, the "L." in L. A. C. must have stood for Lloyd, because that was the name by which the woman called the man during the few days they stayed at her house at 88 Western avenue.

Couple Secretive.

"They came to my house last Thursday," said Miss Jensen, "and I never did know what their last names were. They didn't seem to want to tell much about themselves.

"The man was called Lloyd. I would say that he was about 25 years old. The woman was called Norma and she was about 20. She wore a wedding ring. The baby was Arthur and he was 6 months old, she said.

"They treated him just terrible, especially the man. The baby was nice and didn't cry any more than a baby should, but the other morning at breakfast the man quarreled with the woman about it and gave it an awful spanking.

"The man and woman were quarreling all the time, but it seemed to be chiefly about the baby."

SCHERER IS GIVEN UNTIL AUGUST 18

On That Date Motion for New Trial Will Be Argued in Court.

Judge W. H. Eichhorn, of Bluffton, sitting in circuit court Monday morning, set August 18 as the last day on which the defense in the case of Henry P. Scherer, Wayne township trustee, charged with misappropriation of township funds, can file a motion for a new trial. The court's entry followed an argument of counsel in which the state, represented by Frank A. Emrick and Judge S. M. Hench, maintained that a motion for a new trial could be filed within the thirty-day period from the date of return of a verdict, just as well after a judgment of ouster had been entered as before. Scherer will continue in office until the court has passed on the motion for a new trial.

For Orderly Procedure.

In the interest of orderly procedure Judge Eichhorn said he would not enter judgment on the verdict until the defense had been given reasonable time in which to prepare its motion for a new trial. The court then said he would let the attorneys in the case determine what was reasonable time in the Scherer case. Harry Hilgemann, of counsel for defense; then asked that the court fix about Septem 1 as the final date on which motion for a new trial should be filed. Inasmuch as the fall term of circuit court convenes September 7 this request, the state held, meant the virtual fixing of a new trial motion date on the first day of the circuit court term.

Judge Hench Objects.

Judge Hench first objected to setting the date later than the time prescribed by statute and furthermore declared he would be absent from Fort Wayne August 27, attending a convention. Judge Eichhorn said he would, of course, be governed by the statute and could not set a new trial motion date later than August 18. Judge Edward O'Rourke had planned to be out of the city during a part of August and Mr. Hilgemann asked for more time for that reason.

Would Complicate, He Says.

Judge Eichhorn held that if he should enter a judgment of ouster now and later a new trial should be granted entitling Scherer to retain office, it would be necessary to take the successor of Scherer from office. This, he held, would complicate the workings of the office of the township trustee. Under the law Scherer is allowed to retain office until a motion for a new trial is overruled and a judgment of ouster on the verdict is rendered.

Scherer was not present in court Monday morning. He was at his office. Several attorneys listened to the proceedings and W. C. Schwier and Henry Wetzel, county commissioners, were present. The county commissioners have the appointive power in the matter of Scherer's successor. There are many candidates. Should the commissioners name the second highest man to Scherer in the vote count at the primary J. H. Stellhorn would be the appointee.

METCALF JURY UNABLE TO AGREE ON VERDICT

First Failure to Convict in Hamilton County Bank Cases.

Noblesville, Ind., July 24.—After being out thirty hours the jury in the case against R. H. Metcalf, charged with having accepted a check for $6,700 while president of the Farmers & Merchants' bank at Cicero and when, it is alleged, he knew the institution was insolvent, reported to Judge Cloe yesterday afternoon that it could not agree and was discharged. Nearly fifty ballots were taken. The last one stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal. Most of the ballots were two for acquittal and ten for conviction.

Metcalf and his friends consider the disagreement a victory. It is generally believed that Metcalf, who has been in jail here for nearly ten months, will be able to give bond and return to his home at Paint Lick, Ky. There are several other charges against him, but the opinion prevails that he may never be tried again.

The disagreement in the Metcalf case was the first in the four trials here resulting from the three bank failures in Hamilton county about a year ago. George Bowen, who was president of the Hamilton Trust company, of this city, until a short time before it was closed by the auditor of state, was the first convicted and sentenced to prison, charged with embezzlement. Edwin M. Hinshaw and John Luther Hinshaw, brothers, who controlled the Cicero bank until the reorganization by which Metcalf became its president, also were sentenced to prison. The convicted men are at liberty under bond, pending appeals to the supreme court.

Metcalf, who is less than thirty years old, has been the object of much sympathy. In his defense he attempted to show that he was led to enter the Cicero bank through misrepresentations of E. M. Hinshaw and that state bank examiners gave him reason to believe the bank was sound.

NEW GRAVEL WRECKS AUTO; WOMAN KILLED

Valparaiso, Ind., July 24.—Miss May Redman, 28 years old, of Chicago, was killed yesterday when an automobile skidded in loose gravel and turned over at Crocker, a little village in northwestern Porter county. Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Beimel and Mr. and Mrs Gus Anderson, of Chicago, the other occupants of the car, suffered minor injuries.

The Chicago party was en route to Michigan City for a day's outing. At Crocker, the machine struck a newly graveled road and was thrown into a ditch. Miss Redman was hurled against a fence post, dying instantly. Her neck was broken and she suffered a fracture of the skull.

BLACKBIRDS GIVE A BEATING TO VISITORS

Chicago Nickel Plates Shut Out by Cleary's Bunch of Ball Tossers.

The Blackbirds met and defeated the Chicago Nickel Plates by the score of 9 to 0 Sunday afternoon. The score seems to indicate a farce game out somebody's kidding you if that's the impression. The game was one of the fastest seen here this season, barring the first inning. The nine runs gathered by the Blackbirds in the first were life savers for the locals could do nothing but pop flies to the infielders or ground out the rest of the game. Bass started the fireworks by permitting walks and hitting men and filled the bases when "Monty" Hofer's pole over the fence cleared the field of so many men.

Somebody reached out with a long hook and Bass was yanked toward center field where Gollings was playing. Gollings had everything but was a few minutes in getting himself arranged. He had support that was astounding, nothing was too hot nor anything too far away to get. Had Gollings started first there is no doubt in the minds of the fans that they would have slept in the stands all night.

The "Grand Old Man," Cy Alberts, got away with some of the old Central league stuff in fine style, making them whiff on a number of occasions. Mike Freese took the burden in the seventh and finished out the game.

The team under the guidance of Captain Bill Hillinger is going with all speed for the top wide open. The attendance is increasing every day and the crowd yesterday topped anything the game has had so far this season.

MERRY LITTLE BEE BUZZED ALL ROUND

Bowsers Take First Game in Championship of Shop League.

It is known that there are quilting bees, sewing bees and honey bees, but not till last Saturday did it become known that there was such a thing as a baseball bee. This insect bit everyone at the game and caused the game to be played with the pep which would not have been in evidence had the nice little pepper box stayed away.

The Bowsers defeated the Turners by the score of 4 to 3 in one of the fastest games ever seen in League park. The game was the first in the elimination contest for the first half shop league championship. Next Saturday the Bowsers will play the Western Gas for the title and everything should give the fans a rip-snorter of a game.

Looked Like World Beaters.

But to get back to the game. The Turners started out like world beaters, grabbing off two runs in the first frame. Two were down in the first when C. Henry singled, scoring Lowe and Oberwitte scored later on a single by J. Henry. Then the Tankmen, not to be shaded, took advantage of the opportunity when Grimes walked Weberus. The Tank "flash" stole second, took third on an out and stole home. The Bowsers added another in the sixth when two were down, Hillinger singled, stole second and scored on DeVilbiss' hit. The club men were not at all bashful about throwing scares into everybody's lap and in the seventh Wichman got on base on an error and scored on Lowe's double to left.

The Tankmen sewed up the game in the seventh when Pequignot reached first on an error, advanced to second on Weberus's single and both romped home when Bartels' double rolled to the fence.

Peter Detrich hurled fine ball for the winners, keeping the seven hits well scattered. He had a worthy opponent in Grimes, the Turner sidewheeler. Both men pitched splendid ball.

In the sixth Pequignot made a fine stop of a sizzer, touched second and executed a neat double play.

"COLT JUST WENT LIKE SIXTY," SAYS DAUGHTER OF MILLIONAIRE AFTER WORLD'S RECORD DRIVE.

BY HAROLD JOHNSON.

Miss Helen Murray, daughter of W. P. Murray, Cleveland millionaire, handled the reins when her father's two-year-old, Cord Axworthy, trotted a mile at North Randall in the world's record time of 2:18.

It wasn't the first time Miss Murray had driven a blue-blooded aristocrat of the light harness world, but it was her initial flier into the world's record class.

"But I'm not the person to tell about it," she said. "The colt just went around the track like sixty, tearing me along behind! That's all."

Miss Murray is slim and not very tall. Her cheeks and lips are healthy red and her face is so tanned her shining blue eyes and even white teeth seem extra brilliant.

"It was so wonderful—your setting a world's record. So perfectly splendid," said admiring women friends.

"Was it?" grinned Miss Murray. "I feel sort of famous, and I don't know whether I like it or not."

"I don't know a thing about real racing—not a thing," she stated.

"But I've loved horses all my life and have ridden them ever since I was a small child."

"MATTY WILL SUCCEED," DECLARES TY COBB.

Boston, July 24.—"I'm strong for Matty," said Ty Cobb when asked for his opinion of Christy Mathewson's chance to succeed his new birth as manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

"He'll be a success. He's tactful, knows baseball, and, above all, is a good balance wheel.

"What do I mean by a good balance wheel? I mean by that that Matty is a great steadying influence, and that he is one of those fellows who just can't help instilling confidence into his crowd. Confidence, the mental attitude, is 60 per cent of the game as I see it. So you see what it means to be a balance wheel.

"Now, Matty will need time in Cincinnati. But I'm sure he would not take the management of that team unless he had a chance to have enough time to make good. He may not be an immediate success, but he will eventually be a success.

"Of course, I like Matty. Who doesn't? I remember in that eighth game of the 1912 world's series I was rooting for Matty, yet I was rooting for the American league even more than I was for Matty.

"I never felt as sorry for a ball player as I was for Mattye after that game. But, as has always been the case, I was pulling for the American league to beat Matty.

"Any one who says I ever pulled against the American league team in a world's series isn't telling the truth."

NO MORE POP BOTTLES FOR FANS AT TOLEDO

Toledo, July 24.—The assault on Umpire Johnson at the local park yesterday will result in the elimination of the pop bottle according to plans underway according to Manager Bresnahan and other stockholders of the club it was announced last night. A paper substitute will be used it was said. Johnson was knocked unconscious by one of fifty or more bottles thrown from the stands when the spectators were dissatisfied with a decision which meant defeat for the home club. The arbiter left the hospital this morning with several stitches in the back of his head, where the missile found its mark.

CHIPS FROM THE CLAYS.

BY PETER P. CARNEY.

The Power Boat Gun Club, of Toledo, O., is hot after the 1917 Grand American handicap. This club has the equipment, 160 acres of ground, background looking out to bay, and excellent trolley service.

The thirty-first Ohio State championship tournament will be held at Cedar Point, Ohio, in 1917.

Six shooters broke 99 targets and six more shattered 98 in the Ohio State championship event. On the shoot-off for first place M. S. Hootman broke 60 straight.

Indications are that there will be at least 60 women trapshooters among the entrants of the Grand American handicap in St. Louis in August. The fair Dianas have not turned out at state championships as well as expected, but they all promise to be at the blue-ribbon event.

F. W. Markham, of Toledo, O., won the Mallory Cup in the Indians' shoot at Cedar Point, O., with 49 breaks in 50 tries. M. S. Hootman and F. T. Fox also broke 49, but declined to oppose Markham in the shoot-off. In this tournament Fred Harlow, of Newark, O., had a run of 211.

In the Illinois state championship tournament one squad, comprised of Billy Hoon, Johnny Jahn, Mark Arle, L. B. Clarke and G. A. Graper, broke 493 out of 500 targets. Hoon broke 98; so did Graper and Jahn; Clarke smashed 99 and Arle 100.

Hand traps are getting to be so popular that many dealers are now hiring them out. Many parties do not wish to purchase a trap for two or three outings, and dealers, realizing this, now offer them to hire.

It is interesting to note that the first shooting done was at glass balls. Then came the first clay targets—the Ligowsky birds, which long since passed to the discard, and now would be objects of curiosity. After the Ligowsky target there was adopted in turn the American, Clay Bird, the Peoria Black Bird and the Blue Rock targets. It is safe to say that many of the present-day shooters never heard of the first three brands of targets mentioned.

HE OUGHT TO KNOW.

Sir Steven Orlowsky von Orlow, Ritter von Lubiz has tried his hand at every sport.

He is the star swimmer of the Detroit yacht and athletic clubs.

He also skips a catboat for the Detroit Yacht club.

He holds the pole vaulting record for Michigan, made in 1912, when he cleared the bar at 12 feet 9 1-4 inches.

He holds many tennis trophies won in Hungary, the country whence he gets his title of noble birth.

He played goal on a football team which was undefeated on the continent and in England for two years.

He is his native country's best fencer and will compete in this sport in the championship events next winter in New York.

He is a gymnast, having represented a Berlin university after winning several medals in competition.

He has won 155 medals in swimming in this country and abroad.

And besides all this he's married to the holder of the woman's swimming championship of the Caddillacque, one of the greatest of lake swimming titles.

But with all his experiences in sport De Arlow, as he is known, says the palm goes to motor-boating, the most thrilling pastime under the sun. He attended the interlake regatta at Put-in-Bay, where Miss Minneapolis, the most powerful power speed craft, took the prize. [illegible] 34 a mile an hour.

DRIVER WAS NOT A LICENSED CHAUFFEUR

Find of Coroner in the Death of Russell Pettit.

Cornorer J. E. McArdle has returned a verdict in the cases in which Russell Pettit and Charles A. Hepker lost their lives. In the former case the coroner found in his investigation that the man in charge of the electric truck at the time Pettit lost his life, was not a licensed chauffeur.

In the Hepker case Dr. McArdle finds that the accident was unavoidable, and that it was partially due to the dangerous crossing. He recommends in his report that such steps as are necessary be taken to have the high bank at the intersection of the street and railway removed.

The Finding in Full.

The finding in full in the case of Russell Pettit follows: "I find that a ruptured abdominal aorta caused the death of Russell Pettit. The injury came as a result of being crushed between an electric truck and trailer at the plant of the Berghoff Brewing company on July 20. I further find that at the time of the said accident that the truck was being operated by one, A. R. Brown, who is not a licensed chauffeur.

Report in Hepker Case.

In the case of the accidental death of Charles A. Hepker, the coroner makes the following report:

"Injuries received as a result of a Fort Wayne & Northwestern railway interurban car striking an automobile in which decedent was an occupant, said accident occurring on the Harrison street crossing of said railway on July 5th. I further find that both the interurban car and automobile were traveling a a slow rate of speed and that said interurban car whistled for the crossing before approaching same. I further find that the said crossing is a very dangerous one owing to the fact that there is a high bank of ground just west of the street and north of the track which prevents persons coming from the north of Harrison street from seeing a car approaching from the west until they are within a few feet of the track. For the safety of the public using this crossing I would recommend that such steps as are necessary be taken to have this bank removed and the crossing rendered more safe for the traveling public."

TOWNSEND ASSAILS THE MOBILIZATION

Charges Guardsmen Were Sent to Border Uuder False Pretenses.

Washington, July 24.—Charges that the national guard was sent to the Mexican border under false pretenses were made by Senator Townsend today during debate on the army appropriation bill. He urged that the military forces not in actual service ought to be sent home.

"It now is apparent to everybody that the national guard is not going to Mexico and they were mobilized under false pretenses," said the senator. "Diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Mexico discloses that there never was any intention of sending them into Mexico."

Heavy reduction in army bill items made Saturday were not continued today. A reaction of sentiment apparently had set in. Several senators urged that retrenchment should not be carried too far because of the present favorable aspect of the Mexican situation and a proposal to cut in half a $5,000,000 appropriation for small arms drew protests from Senators Cummins, Jones, Townsend and others.

"There can be no mistake in appropriating liberally for the manufacture of small arms," said Senator Jones. "We read of improved conditions on the border, but notwithstanding this an outbreak may occur almost any moment that will make it necessary for us to send more soldiers into Mexico." The senate, however, by a vote of 25 to 23 agreed to cut the appropriation to $2,500,000. Senator Reed insisted a majority did not know what they were voting for and gave notice he would ask for another vote when the bill got out of the committee of the whole.

Michigan City Police After Men Who Victimized Farmer Jones.

Michigan City, Ind., July 24.—Search for information which might result in the arrest of men who induced Frank Jones, a farmer, of Manchester, Mich., to sell his farm for $6,000 and "invest" it in a scheme by which he could win $60,000 was continued today. Jones reported to the police yesterday that his $6,000 was gone and he feared his chances of winning also had vanished. Jones was a patient in a Battle Creek hospital when he met the men. They gave the names of Jones and Taylor.

William Rae Has Slight Chance to Live After Accident.

Jeffersonville, Ind., July 24.—William Rae, 23, a high diver, was injured seriously late last night when he failed to make a proper turn during an eighty-five foot jump into a net. He fell on his head and shoulders. It was said today he had slight chance to recover.

MUST SEE PROSPECT OF AGREEMENT ON IT

No Irish Bill Without Indication That It Will Be Approved.

London, July 24 (2:06 p. m.).—Premier Asquith today told John Redmond, leader of the Irish nationalists, in the house of commons that the British government did not propose to introduce an Irish bill in regard to which there did not appear to be the prospect of a substantial agreement by all political parties.

Mr. Redmond obtained leave to move the adjournment of the house in order "to call attention to the rapidly growing unrest in Ireland owing to the fact that the government did not propose to carry out in entirety the terms submitted for the temporary settlement."

Mr. Redmond asked amid nationalist cheers whether the government had decided to depart from the terms of the agreement arrived at by the Irish party and based upon the proposals made by the secretary of war, David Lloyd George; whether the government had determined to insert in the bill new proposals at variance with the agreement without consulting the nationalists, and whether the premier had received any intimation that a bill so framed would be vigorously opposed by the nationalists.

Premier Asquith in reply pointed out that the agreement was subject to the approval of any revision by the cabinet. Two main points, he said, had emerged from the agreement and these had been accepted by both sections of the cabinet, unionists and home rulers. The unionists, the premier said, influenced very largely by the attitude of Mr. Redmond, had agreed that home rule should be brought in to immediate application while the home rule section had agreed that the six Ulster counties should not be brought in without their consent.

MAY REFUSE APPEAL IN CASEMENT CASE

London, July 24.—(12:30 p. m.)—Sir Frederick E. Smith, the attorney general has intimated to Roger Casement's solicitors that he is unable to grant his flat which would enable Casement's appeal against the death sentence passed on him for high treason in connection with the Dublin rebellion to be carried to the house of lords.

ADVERSE TO EXECUTION.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—Through official sources in Washington the British government has been informed that much public opinion in America is adverse to the execution of Sir Roger Casement. There have been no formal requests from the United States government for a pardon or commutation of sentence. There are intimations, however, that conditions at present indicate that clemency will be shown.

HEALEY PUTS CHICAGO REDS UNDER A WATCH

Chicago, July 24.—Chief of Police Healey, in an attempt to discover whether the plans for the anarchist explosion at San Francisco, during the preparedness parade, was conceived here, issued a special order today that all anarchists and persons seen lately at anarchist meetings be kept under surveillance.

For a week or more police stenographers have been attending anarchist meetings taking down what the speakers say. These utterances, shown to Chief Healey, brought today's order. State's Attorney Hoyne today began an investigation into the illegal imporation into the state of dynamite and other explosives.

DEFENSE STILL AFTER YOUNT.

Seeks to Discredit His Testimony in Muncie Case.

Muncie, Ind., July 24.—When the trial of Mayor Rollin H. Bunch, charged with conspiracy, was resumed in the Delaware circuit court today, interest was centered in whether he will take the witness stand in his own behalf. It was said he probably will do so early this week. The case is expected to end about the middle of the week. The witnesses called today were questioned as to the reputation of Lloyd Yount, one of the state's chief witnesses. The defense by its witnesses is attempting to discredit the testimony given by Yount.

LEAGUE CHARTERS CAR.

Woman's Loyal Society Will Spend Tuesday in Huntington.

The Woman's Loyal league of this city has chartered a special car to Huntington Tuesday, July 25. The league will leave at twelve o'clock and will stay in Huntington until the initiation work is completed. J. A. Greenland, of the traction company, states that there will be a number in the party. Mrs. Edward Smith, 3419 Broadway, has the arrangements in charge, and all those of the league who intend to go should make arrangements with her for the trip. The Fort Wayne ladies will be entertained in Huntington and after the work will return to this city.

ARMY OF TORRID RAYS CAMPS IN FT. WAYNE

Heat Minions from Hostile Fire Land Are Sent Among Citizens.

Fort Wayne lost its "pep" Sunday. It ambled along the shady side of streets. It lingered beneath the spreading branches of park trees. It read the papers in its stocking feet. It was too hot to maintain its business reputation.

Both on Sunday and Monday the heat record for the summer was equaled. Each day the mercury, resting in the shade at the weather station, climbed to 93 degrees. That is ten degrees better than "Old Sol" was going a year ago this time.

There were several near heat prostrations Monday. Two women were rendered slightly ill at the transfer corner during the morning. Horses working on the streets, which hurled the burning rays into their faces, sufferer from heat. Business blocks seemed to be playing a game in which they battered the scorching fireballs from one office window to another. Electric fans, catching up the scorched air, afforded little relief.

Business men took on the "I don't care" attitude about their dress. Handkerchiefs were tucked about collars, coats were off, sport shirts of last year's model were in evidence. The desire for a degree of comfort crowded out style.

Many offices were completely deserted. The heads of the establishments were out looking after "affairs." In reality they had joined the congress of heat sufferers who assembled in the parks to keep cool. Street cars to Robison park were crowded during the afternoon, the record attendance of the year being rivaled. Swinney park was well filled with people.

The parks were literally jammed on Sunday. Thousands of Fort Wayne citizens slept out doors Sunday night. Front and back porches nearly all held a few heat sufferers.

There is slight relief ahead. Monday night will be cooler. Tuesday will be fair, but may be slightly cooler.

Traffic Is Heavy.

J. A. Greenland, general passenger and freight agent for the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, stated Monday that traffic Sunday on the interurban lines to and from Fort Wayne was unusually heavy. Saturday and Sunday the cars carried almost their capacity on almost every trip. The cars Sunday were rushed all day to make their schedule times.

The city lines were also busy Sunday, many people traveling to the various parks or other places in search of a cool spot. It is estimated that 6,500 people were hauled to Robison park.

2,000 LIFE INSURANCE MEN GO OUT ON STRIKE

Collecting Agents of Prudential Threaten to Tie Up Business.

New York, July 24.—Two thousand collecting agents of the Prudential Life Insurance company went on strike today. The walkout followed a spirited mass meeting here at which it was said the strike would tie up the company's collecting business as far west as Chicago unless the men's terms were met.

Chief among the grievances named was the refusal of the company to confer with the men. Officials of the International Insurance Agents' union which is only two weeks old, declared that the failure of the Prudential company to reinstate fifty agents here and about half that number in Philadelphia who were discharged for organizing the union would likely result in the calling out of collecting agents in cities in the east and middlewest.

SUFFRAGE BEFORE PARTY, SAY WOMEN

Want to Know How Wilson and Hughes Stand on the Question.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—A delegation of women suffragists called upon President Wilson today to tell him a large number of women voters were waiting to decide for whom they will vote and wanted to know how he and Charles E. Hughes, the republican nominee stood on the Susan B. Anthony constitutional amendment for nation-wide woman suffrage. The president did not commit himself.

Members of the delegation have already seen Mr. Hughes and other women affiliated with them plan to see him again. They declared that the great majority of women voters in western states will vote for the candidate who definitely commits himself to the federal amendment.

The women today said they desired to vote the democratic ticket but put suffrage before party.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE WILL TALK JITNEY

Taxi Traffic Will Be Only Subject Before the Council Body.

The city council, assembled as a committee of the whole, will warm up Monday night on what it hopes to be the final discussion of the jitney law. A special meeting of the council as a committee has been called to receive the report from the five men who have reconstructed the first taxi ardinance.

The code as drawn up by the last committee will provide for an annual license fee of $50, but no cash bond for jitney drivers. It will establish regular runs for the automobiles and force the drivers to keep a schedule. It demands that jitney operators work seven hours a day. It will establish a special traffic officer to be paid from the license dues.

Representatives from the jitney operators are expected to attend the session of the big committee.

WILL TURN TO RIGHT.

Another Ruling Is Made by Council Committee on Ordinances.

There will be no more turning to the left at the corners of Main, Berry and Wayne streets on Calhoun street, according to the latest ruling of the council committee on rules, regulations and ordinances. All automobiles and other vehicles will be ordered by traffic officers to stay to the right at the approach of all downtown crossings.

Pedestrians will no longer be governed by the warning on police semaphores. The public is supposed to know that traffic ordinarily turns to the right. Those who walk will be expected to look out for their own safety at the corners and not wait for the word "go" at the crossings, the committee has decided.

FLOWER-DECKED CRYPT FOR REMAINS OF POET

Indianapolis, July 24.—Instead of placing the body of James Whitcomb Riley in a bleak vault it will rest in a flower-decked and decorated crypt. Rugs will be placed on the floor, and flowers will be so arranged as to take away the dismal appearance of the ordinary vault.

The decision to follow that plan was reached today by the executive committee of the committee of 100 which planned and carried out the arrangements for the Riley celebration Oct. 7, 1915.

The pallbearers to act at the funeral of the poet had not been selected this afternoon. Several of his intimate friends were asked to serve as a committee to assist in naming the pallbearers. The selection will be made from men who knew Mr. Riley intimately.

SEES 84 SPOTS ON THE SUN.

St. Louis Astronomer Says Activity Presages Storm.

St. Louis, Mo., July 24.—Eighty-four spots on the sun were observed today by Brother Hubert, professor of astronomy at Christian Brothers college, and he predicted today that the solar disturbances indicated by the remarkable sun-spot activity presaged a thunderstorm tonight or tomorrow.

Ten days ago Brother Hubert observed one spot on the sun. This spot, which had a diameter of 13,000 miles, began to break up into smaller spots. Sunday 107 were visible and today 84. The wireless apparatus at the college has been disturbed during the last few days and this is attributed to some connection between the magnetic currents of the earth and the sun-spot activity.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

LOCAL FIRM MAY GET PART OF DYESTUFFS

Knitting Mills Head Said to Be After Cargo of Deutschland.

Although the nature of the cargo of the German submarine Deutschland has been kept pretty much of a mystery ever since the strange craft entered the Baltimore harbor, it is practically certain that she carried dyestuffs and other chemicals to be distributed in this country, and it is barely possible that the Wayne Knitting mills may receive a share of the badly needed coloring matter.

Theodore F. Thieme, president of the company, is now on a trip through the east, making the fall purchases for the mill. While it may be that his trip has no significance in connection with the arrival of the steamer Deutschland, it would be no surprise if some of the dyestuff brought over by the submarine should eventually be consigned to the local factory. The officials at the mill stated this morning, however, that they were not aware that Mr. Thieme's trip to the east was for that purpose.

The nature of the cargo of the Deutschland has not as yet been ascertained for a certainty. It is now being held in the customs house at Baltimore, and is said to be consigned to a Mr. A Schumacher, of Baltimore, who will make arrangements to distribute it to American manufacturers. The dyestuff is in concentrated form and will probably have to be diluted before being used. It is because of this uncertainty in regard to the nature of the dyes and chemicals brought over that the Wayne Knitting mills officials are as yet in the dark as to whether the local factory will receive any of the cargo.

AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Eight-Hour Day Demonstration Staged Yesterday.

A great demonstration was made Sunday at Indianapolis in favor of the eight-hour working day for trainmen. S. Habecker, of the Nickel Plate; R. E. McNally, of the Wabash; R. A. Puff, of the Pennsylvania, and P. Collins, of the Nickel Plate.

At 1:30 a big parade was held, in which thousands of railway employes took part, representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; Order of Railway Conductors; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

After the parade a mass meeting was held in Tomlison hall. The delegates to the convention represented all sections of the country and it is thought that this demonstration will be very effective in the movement for the eight hour day.

CLOGGED LIVERS MAKE TIRED, NERVOUS PEOPLE

A Wineglassful of Tollo Water Before Breakfast Cleans Out the Bile and Gives Relief in Half an Hour.

Thousands of tired, nervous, run-down people have been built up by drinking a wineglassful of Tollo Water every morning. It has the property of cleaning the liver and restoring it to normal activity.

Tollo Water is concentrated and bottled at Dawson Springs, the famous Kentucky health resort. Get a 15-cent bottle from any drug store and derive all its benefits in your own home.

Stop taking Calomel and drugs that salivate, gripe and sicken. They are dangerous and their effect is only temporary. Tollo Water is nature's liver and bowel cleanser. It flushes and bathes the bowels and stomach in thirty minutes. Its action is mild and pleasant. It stimulates the liver to do its work and relieves constipation in a natural way.

When your liver is natural and unobstructed all the waste matter is carried out of your body and your food enters a clean, sweet stomach from which the nourishment is sent to every tired, nervous muscle.

An occasional Tollo Water Liver bath will keep the bowels regular and the whole system strong and healthy.—Advertisement.

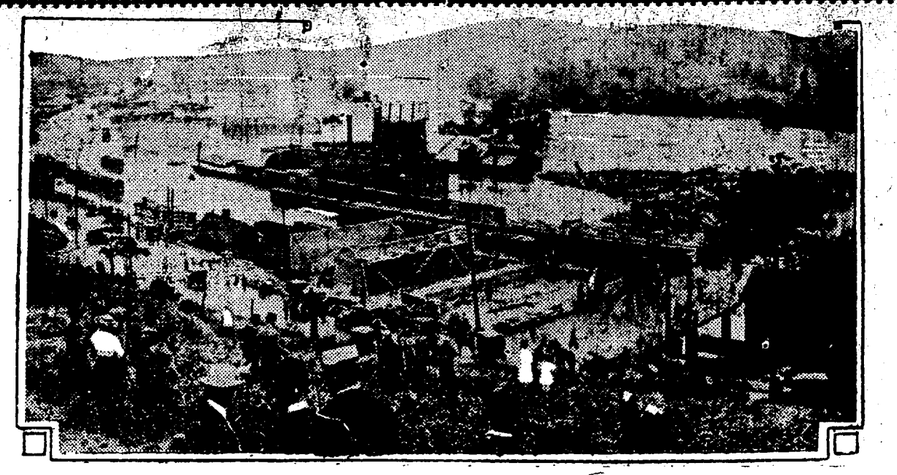
FLOOD ISOLATES CITY FROM REST OF THE WORLD.



Torn from the world by the Carolina floods, Asheville, N. C., was in darkness and without ordinary transportation facilities. Factories and other buildings, as shown in the picture, are floating down stream. The gas and electric plants and railroad yards were flooded. Families have been driven from their homes. The property loss will run into the millions. Asheville bears the brunt of the disaster. Other towns in the territory were wrecked.

10,000 MEN IN CAMP U. S. CAN'T USE ONE

Case of Ohio Guards Typical of Entire Nation's Militia.

Columbus, O., July 24.—About 10,000 citizen soldiers are in one huge camp here and Uncle Sam cannot use a single one of them!

This staggering fact confronts an investigator at Camp Willis, where the national guard of Ohio is concentrated. The same fact can be discovered at almost any state camp in the country. The Ohio camp is taken as an example because of its size and central location.

The great tented city here is a living example of the reasons the national guard cannot "rush to arms," why state militia never has been able to get into any fight quickly, why citizen soldiers under state control never will be able to reach the efficiency the nation blindly expects its defenders to attain.

To the civilian visitor, Camp Willis seems ideal. It is high and dry, has real sewers, running water, shower baths and electric lights. There are never more than half a dozen men in the hospital tent at a time.

"Isn't it perfectly wonderful!" exclaimed a girl who saw the great camp for the first time. "All these men ready to fight for their country!"

She should have said "willing" not "ready." There is not one among thousands of militia boys who are not patriotically willing to give his life for the flag, but the tedious process of "mustering in" stands between him and real service, not to mention the drill and other training he must undergo after Uncle Sam has accepted him.

It is the mustering of troops from state service into federal service that shows up the defects of the whole state-controlled national guard system. Every officer and man from the brigadier general to the rawest rookie must pass under the eye of the federal surgeons. Until every man of every company has been thus examined a regiment cannot be transferred from state to federal service—in other words, cannot become a part of the national fighting force.

Until a regiment is mustered in it cannot get the government equipment it so sorely needs. Its recruits must drill in clothing totally unfit for wear at camp, in civilian clothes or such nondescript military togs as they have managed to pick up.

All day long lines of men pass through the surgeons' shacks where the "sheep" are separated from the "goats." And all day long there is a line in front of the paymaster's office where the "goats"—the physically unfit—receive money to take them back home.

If these men had been given a real physical examination when they enlisted in the guard the tedious process of re-examination would not be necessary. If the federal surgeons could trust the accuracy of national guard physical tests, mustering in would become a mere ceremony to be dispensed with in a day or so.

But the United States army surgeons do not trust the guard, they know that for years national guard organizations have accepted thousands of men below the physical standard. These must be weeded out before the troops become a part of the federal service. This weeding out process is long and tedious, and in the meantime the rest of the nation wonders why it takes our troops so long to get busy.

It is a simple matter to give a man the United States army physical tests. Almost any one can do it—certainly any physician is competent. If these tests were applied to all national guard recruits when they first enlisted the United States army surgeons would not demand a re-examination.

But they have no right to demand that the state surgeons apply the tests thoroughly. The national guard surgeons are answerable to the state authorities and not to the federal authorities.

Until the citizen forces are taken out of the hands of the states this condition will always exist.

DOING GOOD.

A woman can do a tremendous amount of good when she tries. Here is an instance and there are many such. Mrs. F. F. Smith, Gloversville, N. Y., writes: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what Chamberlain's Tablets have done for me and for many others that I have told about them. For over three years I have been troubled with my liver and have been under the doctor's care most of the time. I have tried many other medicines, but have not found anything that helped me as much as Chamberlain's Tablets." Obtainable everywhere. —Advertisement.

THE BEST DIARRHOEA MEDICINE.

"A customer came into my store the other day and said to one of my clerks, 'Have you anything that will cure diarrhoea?' and my clerk went and got him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and said to him, 'If this does not cure you, I will not charge you a cent for it.' PICNIC IS HELD

A picnic of the Fort Wayne Letter Carriers' union was held at Gallmeier's grove, near stop 10, Robison park line, Sunday. It was the annual stag picnic and proved to be an enjoyable affair. The postal clerks and E. C. Miller, postmaster, were the guests of the carriers. Mr. Miller gave a short talk. The day was spent in various kinds of outdoor sports.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BODY IS LAID AWAY WITH MILITARY HONORS

Funeral of Private Floyd Wolf Was Attended by Many Veterans.

The body of Private Floyd Wolf, member of Company E, who was drowned at Llano Grand, Tex., while in the service of the United States, was laid away in Lindenwood cemetery, Sunday afternoon, with military honors. Hundreds of veterans of many wars and comrades of Company E and members of other military organizations united in paying the last tribute to the boy-soldier.

The funeral cortege moved from the residence, 1626 East Wayne street, to the First M. E. church, where it was met by the G. A. R. veterans, Spanish War Veterans, Sons of Veterans, members of the newly organized Company D and ex-members of Company E.

Following the services at the church where a quartet of the W. R. C. rendered several beautiful selections and an impressive sermon by Rev. D. H. Child, the procession moved slowly towards Lindenwood headed by the Electro-Technic band in charge of Gart Shober.

The line of march in Lindenwood was bordered by hundreds of spectators who watched in silence as the flag-draped casket was being borne to its last resting place. A squad of ex-members of Company E fired three volleys of shots over the casket and Trumpeters Harry Weisbecker and Charles Fesselman, of the United States regulars, sounded taps.

BETHMANN HOLLWEG HAS LIVELY FOES

Reichstag Session Which Has Just Closed Made Fact Very Clear.

Berlin, June 30.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—The reichstag session just closed was marked by interesting developments in the relations between the government and the various political parties. One result was to bring out more sharply than hitherto the opposition of the conservatives to Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg.

The conservatives represent the old aristocratic traditions of Prussia, and their social and political influence is so great that they usually succeeded under previous chancellors in shaping the course of the government. They have ever taken the lead in opposing all socialist and democratic tendencies in the state; and before the war one of their chief lines of policy was war upon the socialists as an element dangerous to the monarchy and the present order of society. Since the war has been in progress, however, the government has quite changed its attitude toward the socialists. The chancellor has steadily acted in the spirit of the emperor's declaration, made just as the war was about to begin, that henceforth he knew no parties, but only Germans.

The loyalty with which the socialists have stood by the government and helped to fight the country's battles has been more than once recognized by Bethmann-Hollweg in his speeches in the reichstag, and he has clearly admitted this fact must lead to some political readjustments after the war is over. This has never pleased the conservatives. But the chancellor has gone on his way making friends of the socialists and inviting their support for government measures. The conservatives looked on coldly at all this, for they saw that their best argument for keeping the government rigidly conservative was being wrested from their hands.

Besides this, the conservatives have taken offense at the government's taxation policy. They are fully committed to the view that the empire must collect its revenue taxes through indirect taxation, like customs duties, and internal revenue taxes of various kinds. Especially do they urgently insist that direct taxes—income, general property and inheritance taxes—should be reserved for the federal states. The huge problem, however, of raising revenues to pay interest on the war debt, to pay pensions, and meet other expenses growing out of the war, cannot be solved without resorting to direct taxation—there are not enough indirect taxes in reach to meet the requirements of the situation. Hence along with the various indirect taxes proposed this spring by the government was a direct tax on war profits. In working out the details of collecting this tax, however, it was found by the budget committee that it would be practically impoossible to distinguish between profits due to the war and profits not due to it. Hence an all-round property tax of one mill on the dollar was proposed by the committee and accepted by the government. Some of the conservatives finally voted for the tax, but their two leaders, Count Westarp and von Heydebrand, voted against it to the bitter end. In this, curiously enough, they found themselves alone with the small group of socialists who split off from the main body of the socialists last March.

In the debates on these tax measures and on the press censorship the conservatives were very severe in their criticisms of the government and of the chancellor. They resent it in particular that their newspapers were not permitted to say what they pleased about the United States in the height of the submarine controversy between Washington and Berlin, neither can they forgive the chancellor for having yielded in modifying the form of submarine warfare.

Several days ago the chancellor spoke with unusual passion in exposing the false statements put forth in an anonymous pamphlet written to attack him, a pamphlet evidently emanating from conservative quarters; and he also had some sharp things to say in replying to another pamphlet by Herr Kapp, an influential conservative politician. These pamphlets made the impression upon the country that the conservatives were beginning a systematic campaign for the overthrow of Bethmann-Hollweg. Some of the national liberals are also dissatisfied with the chancellor and are known to sympathize with these attacks upon him. In proportion, however, as the ultra-national elements turn away from the chancellor he is finding all the warmer support from the other parties in the reichstag, including the old socialist party. It was a curious unwonted spectacle, during the chancellor's speech of June 6, to see the conservatives listening with mute dissent, along with the seceding socialists, while all the other parties in the house applauded him to the echo.

When man breathes he uses his muscular strength to draw in the air and it is afterward forced out automatically. With insects, as a German investigator has just discovered, this process is just reversed.

THREE DOCTORS FIGURE IN SHOOTING—ONE CLAIMS WRONG IS AVENGED.

Dr. Eldredge D. Atwood, osteopath, of Woburn, Mass., is under arrest and said by the police to have confessed that he shot Dr. Wilfred E. Harris, president of Massachusetts College of Osteopathy (at right), on the claim that Dr. Harris had wronged Dr. Celia P. Adams, pictured above.

Dr. Atwood said, according to the police, that he and Dr. Adams were engaged and that he learned from her, just before she died after swallowing poison, that Dr. Harris had placed a barrier between them and happiness.

The police say Dr. Atwood stated he went to Dr. Harris' office with a revolver and razor; and when he found persons in the office he gave up the idea of cutting and fired three bullets at Dr. Harris. At Emergency hospital physicians hold little hope Dr. Harris will recover.

West Coast Mexican Point Scene of American Warship Exploit.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—Guaymas, the scene of a reported exploit of the American cruiser Cleveland in releasing the steamer Sonora recently, is described in today's National Geographic society bulletin as the port of second importance on the Mexican west coast.

"As the chief outlet of the wealthy state of Sonora, Guaymas is a seaport of vast possibilities," says the bulletin, "for it has a naturally fine harbor, affording anchorage in its present little improved condition for vessels drawing from fourteen to twenty feet of water.

"The Southern Pacific railway, of Mexico, running through the state capital, Hermosilla, connects Guaymas with the American border city of Nogales, 230 miles to the north. This road's extension along the coast to the south has been retarded greatly by the political conditions, and according to the company's report the losses on account of interruptions to traffic from the beginning of the Madero revolution to June 30, 1913, amounted to $3,000,000 (gold).

"Guaymas is not a pleasant place in which to live at this time of the year, for from July to September (the rainy season), the atmosphere is hot and muggy. The winter climate is very agreeable, however. The town stands on an arid peninsula, back of which rise hills 1,500 feet high which serve as giant heat reflectors. To overcome this, many of the houses have extraordinarily thick walls, like many of the homes in the hot countries of the near east.

'There is excellent fishing for the visitor to Guaymas, the big Colorado river salmon being especially plentiful, while lobster-spearing is one of the popular sports. It is not a safe bathing resort, however, on account of the sharks which infest the waters.

"Mazatlan, some 400 miles to the southeast of Guaymas, is gradually forging ahead of the latter city, due largely to the fact that it is much nearer to the American ports of the Pacific coast. Steamers loading at Mazatlan save the long voyage up the Gulf of California. According to the latest available figures of Mexico's foreign commerce, Guaymas showed a decrease of half a million dollars in imports compared with the preceding year, while Mazatlan's loss was only half as much, whereas in exports Mazatlan gained more than a million dollars and Guaymas remained practically stationary. Guaymas received a little more than one-fifth the total imports of Mexico's Pacific ports, and is slightly surpassed by Mazatlan. Less than one-fifth of the export trade is controlled by the more northerly port, while Mazatlan enjoys nearly a fourth of it. Three years previously the trade percentages of the two ports was reversed.

"Consular offices are maintained in Guaymas by nine foreign countries—the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Norway, Honduras and Bolivia."

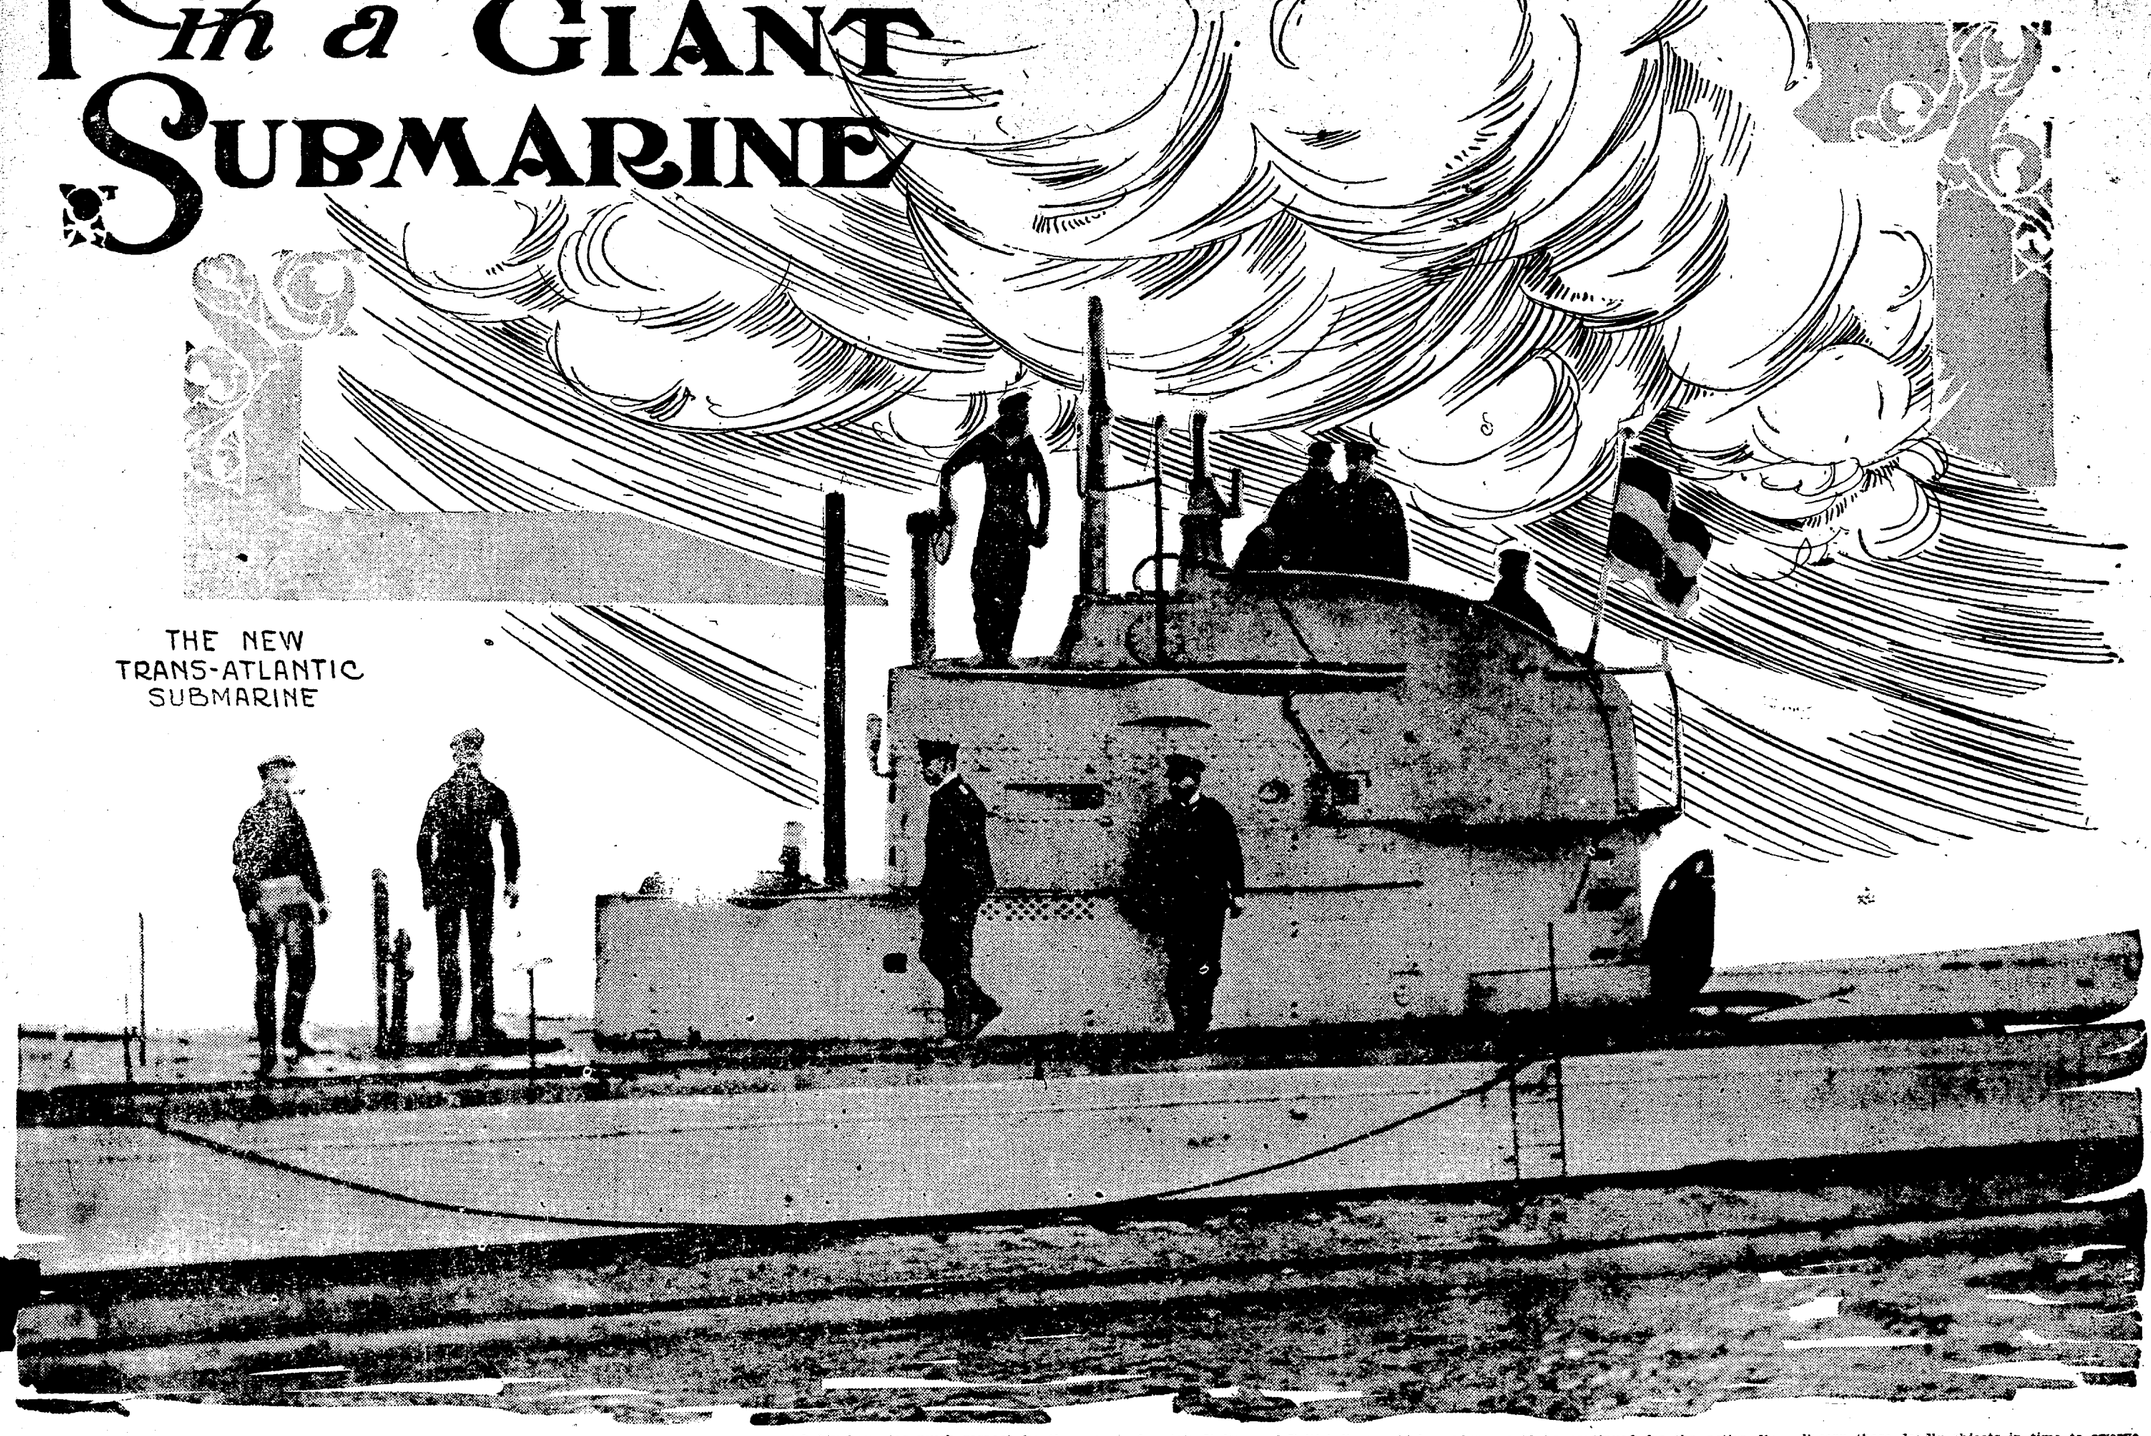
From Cuxhaven to New York in a Giant Submarine



THE NEW TRANS-ATLANTIC SUBMARINE

Product of German Ingenuity, Designed to Replace Vast Fleet of Merchant Vessels Which Plied Between Two Countries Before War Began and British Warships Stopped Trade.

FROM Cuxhaven to New York—one of the longest distances across the Atlantic Ocean from Europe to North America—is a trip that, at this writing, is be-undertaken by the smallest ocean liner that ever took a cargo aboard. She is a submarine, the product of German ingenuity and necessity, and is designed to take the place, to her limited capacity, of the vast fleet of merchant vessels that plied back and forth between the two countries when the world was at peace.

Several of these little liners, or gigantic submarines, which ever one prefers to call them, have been built, according to press dispatches. The one under way is 400 feet long, with a surface speed of eighteen knots, and with sufficient fuel capacity to carry it 6000 miles. It is an oil burner, the latest type engines have been installed, and it is armed only with two small guns, "for defense purposes only." The complement of men, necessarily, is small; in fact, the entire crew would not furnish enough stewards for the ordinary Atlantic liner.

That the scheme of carrying mails and valuable products between the two countries in these boats is practical and could be made profitable to the owners, presumably the German imperial Government, is conceded generally by all authorities on the subject of maritime transportation. While the cargo space is exceedingly limited and the trip would require several weeks, it is believed that the high cost and great demand for certain products in each country would make it possible to charge enormously high rates for tonnage, while at the same time the cost of operation would not be excessive.

What advantages could not the German Government have in establishing direct communication with the United States? The fact that the papers of German representatives have been seized a number of times by British authorities, points to the conclusion that valuable information may have been placed in the hands of an enemy by the fact that such communication as exists has been subject to surveillance by the British. The establishment of direct communication, by eliminating this feature of existing conditions would enable the German representatives and agents in this country to forward information that cannot be trusted to mails going through neutral countries, or to wireless codes.

The need of gold is one of the greatest in Germany. The only place that she can obtain a supply of the metal is in the United States, or from some of the neutral countries of Europe. The European neutrals, in most cases, are hard pressed themselves for credits, which are based on gold, and those that have gold to spare, probably have too much respect for the power of the allies to aid the Teutons any in this respect. The United States, however, has gold; also, she needs German products, and is willing to pay enormous prices for some of them.

Chemicals and drugs form the bulk of these needs. Small amounts of drugs and dye-stuffs will replenish the supplies in this country, and such quantities can be transported on the submarine. One point that is worthy of note is this: The fewer pounds of any product that Germany sends to the United States, the greater will be the price paid for them until after the ending of the war. Then, with the great jump in importation that is certain to take place, a great dropping in prices can be expected. Germany, by getting even small quantities of her exclusive products to this country while the war lasts, can reap enormous profits, which will be of material aid to her in paying the enormous cost of the warfare and the equally tremendous sums that will have to be expended at the restoration of peace in re-establishing normal conditions.

There are certain products that Germany has equally great need of, and which she has been unable to obtain because of the British blockade of her coasts and inspection of imports in neutral countries adjacent to Germany. These will constitute the return cargoes of the submarines—always providing that they are successful in reaching the ports of the New World—and it is likely that Germany will be able to obtain some products of which she has had need to assist her in carrying on the war; for, while synthetic imitations of most of the necessities have been developed by the scientists of that country, the demand for the originals still exists.

The arrival of the merchant submarine at a United States port, according to experts on international law who have discussed the question, is likely to develop several questions of international procedure that may involve the United States in disputes fully as grave as that with Germany over the sinking of unarmed merchantmen without warning.

First of all, it will be necessary to prove that the ships are strictly merchant vessels. This question, however, need not cause any great trouble, according to those who have considered the question, for it will be easy to demonstrate that the submarines are not equipped with torpedo tubes and that they actually carry cargo. This point being established, the vessels will be entitled to remain in any United States, or other neutral port, for such length of time as is necessary for them to discharge and take on cargo and supplies. It will also entitle them to take such provisions and fuel as they need to make a voyage, and to make any repairs that may be required on the machinery or hull of the vessel.

Next will come the question of the two guns which are said to be mounted on these boats "for defense purposes only." This question already has been considered and decided in the cases of certain Italian and British liners which entered United States ports with guns mounted aft for purposes of defense; so it is considered likely that these vessels, if armed similarly, will be given like consideration. It is felt that the allied nations can make no protest over this feature, because they themselves were the first to claim and exercise the right to so arm their ships.

It is on the high seas that the most important question probably will arise. These vessels will have to run the gamut of the entire British fleet in their progress across the ocean; and, while they have extraordinary means of escaping from a pursuer because of their submersibility, it always is possible that an enemy may come upon them unexpectedly and destroy them. When the first of these ships is sunk, the German Government undoubtedly will insist that, in as much as they are merchant vessels, the enemy must stop and search them before sinking them. This point, the United States will be obliged to uphold, because it formed the crux of the controversy with Germany over the sinking of English, French and neutral vessels. The United States will be brought into whatever situation arises, because some of the products carried by the ship undoubtedly will be the property of, or destined for, United States citizens; also there is the possibility that United States citizens may be aboard, in as much as it has been announced that the vessels will carry a limited number of passengers at approximately $5000 the voyage.

The similarity of these ships with the ordinary type of destroying submarine, undoubtedly will make it practically impossible to distinguish one from the other. If the British ships are compelled to stop and search such vessels before destroying them, it forces the former to take chances of stopping an enemy which will attempt to torpedo them; if the vessel called upon to stop really is a merchant submarine, unarmed, she can submerse and escape while the Britisher is attempting to carry out this provision of unwritten international law. There appears to be an unsolvable problem that soon will exhaust the patience of the allies and lead them to take any measures to break up the commerce, if it be established.

Undoubtedly the arrival of the first submarine merchantman in New York harbor will be the signal for the assembling of a large fleet of allied warships, destroyers and other war craft just outside the harbor, to lie in wait for the German to reappear. When she sights the Britishers, of course, the submarine will sink below the level of the waves and endeavor to remain under water long enough to slip past them. But the other vessels are certain to pursue her, and, when she comes to the surface to "breathe," will make an attempt either to destroy or capture her.

Just what action will take place then is impossible to predict. The battleship may fire upon the submarine and so destroy her, which is the only certain course for the Englishmen to adopt; or it may call on the German to stop and submit to capture, in which event the latter undoubtedly will lose no time in getting beneath the waves again. This course of procedure could be continued for the entire distance across the Atlantic and eventually end in the arrival of the merchantman at a German port. Submarines could not find her beneath the water, for boats, like men, are blind under the waves and simply stumble along at reduced speed.

The surface speed of the new submarine merchantman is given as eighteen knots. But under the water she would be unable to make anything like as great a speed. Consequently, if she were obliged, by the presence of an enemy vessel, to keep almost constantly submerged, she might not be able to make a safe port because her supplies of fuel would run out if she were obliged to travel far out of her course or to cut down her speed to any marked extent.

The trip of such a boat across the Atlantic would be one fraught with great danger, although it is reported that an English submarine made a trip of forty-eight days without touching port and keeping in motion all the time. But it is in dodging the naval patrols in the North Sea and along the routes of commerce that the danger for the German vessels lies. Coming out of Cuxhaven, it soon would be necessary for the vessel to submerge, in order to avoid the English and Russian fleets near that port. If she submerges, she is threatened with the danger of poking her nose into one of the antisubmarine nets that have been stretched in many parts of the seas surrounding the British Isles, and, once caught in such a net, there would be little hope for her escape.

These nets are of heavy steel wire, woven in a large mesh, which yield, to a certain extent, to the pressure that a submarine exerts when coming in contact with them, but gradually will slow up and stop the boat. The submarine, being blind, is unable to tell just how she is caught. The natural way to escape seems to back out, but the loosely hanging net may have thrown one of its folds to the rear of the vessel. In that case a retrograde movement only serves to entangle the screw of the vessel in the net and make any further attempt at escape absolutely impossible. And, even though the sea should be clear to the rear, it is almost impossible to maintain a steady course backward; deviating from the straight line, which might mean safety, the submarine again and again would come in contact with the net until she was completely enveloped, and, practically, "strangled."

If she did not go deep enough to encounter the nets, the little vessel might run afoul of a mine, either a drifter, or one of the anchored bombs in the mine fields that infest the seas off the European coasts. In that case, of course, it would be fatal for all on board.

Even while swimming along on the surface this danger from drifting mines always would menace the little craft, just as it does the bigger vessels. It probably would be ever harder for a submarine of this class, low in the water as she necessarily must be, to distinguish from a safe distance a floating mine. When it seems to be almost impossible in many instances for large ships, with a wide range of vision, to discern these deadly objects in time to swerve from their course, how much harder must it be or a small boat with a far more restricted range of vision to distinguish them in time?

Of course, it probably would be possible to handle this type of vessel much easier and quicker than the large merchantmen, and this would alter the case somewhat; but there are instances related of mines floating in such a manner as to be practically indistinguishable until very close by, and in such a case even rapid maneuvering might not save the craft from contact and destruction. On foggy days and at night, this danger would be so great that it would be enough to deter almost any civilian from attempting the trip.

The machinery of the vessel would have to be the acme of perfection. Engine trouble frequently develops on ocean-going vessels, and in many cases it is necessary to stop for repairs, or to limp to the nearest port; or even, in extreme cases, to wallow in the seas until the wireless can summon aid. The merchant submarine would be at a terrible disadvantage should anything happen to her motive force; on the surface while making repairs she would be at the mercy of any vessel, either warship or enemy merchantman that might come across her; neither could she limp to any port, because practically all ports within striking distance of a small vessel so disabled would be closed against her. Should she attempt to make her home port, she would be inviting certain capture and destruction in attempting to pass through the English fleet and the mine fields while exposed to view.

The worst case would be if such engine trouble should develop while the craft was submerged. In that event, it is possible, she would be unable to regain the surface of the ocean, and would be a total loss with all her crew and merchandise; for, while the men might be able to escape from the hull by some device prepared for such an emergency, they would find themselves adrift on the high seas without food and lacking water, and the strongest among them could not survive for any appreciable length of time.

Yet, despite all these possibilities of destruction, the Germans say they will succeed. They have announced that a vessel of this type has left Cuxhaven for New York, and the early arrival of the craft is expected. By some this is construed as an illustration of German pluck, determination and endurance; by others it is taken to indicate a dire need in Germany.

As indicating the commercial advantages to be gained by so transporting even a small cargo, quotations on a number of exclusive German products have been given. Among them are: German chemical homatropine, hydro bromide, $2376 per pound; atropine, $1550 per pound. The former is more than three times the price for which it sold before the beginning of the war, while the latter has increased in price until it now is about fifty times its normal value. There are other small and valuable articles that are expected to be included in the manifests of the new liners which can be included at a great profit both to the manufacturer and the carrier.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, July 24.—Cooler weather that tended to allay fears regarding black rust gave an advantage today to the bears in wheat. The opening, which ranged from ½c off to ¼c advance, with September at $1.18½ to $1.19¾ and December at $1.21½ to $1.22⅛, was followed by a moderate general upturn and then a sag all around to below Saturday's finish.

Hot dry weather in the corn belt brought about an early rise in the price of corn, but the market reacted. After an opening which was ½c to 1c higher, nearly all of the gains disappeared, and in same cases were replaced by a net loss.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, July 24.—Trading in broad volume and higher prices marked the resumption of operations today, last Saturday's advancing tendency making further general headway. United States steel led the movement, soon advancing ¾ to over 87 on free absorption. Other similar industrials, including Lackawanna steel, the equipments, General Electric, munitions and zinc stocks were higher by substantial fractions to a point. Motors were again extremely active and strong, especially Maxwell. United Fruit was about the only exception to the general upward movement, the extreme loss being 1½ points. Rails gave promise of awakening from their recent sluggishness.

The pace of the first half hour was too rapid, realizing sales soon causing a shrinkage of values. Industrial alcohol was again a disturbing feature, making an extreme decline of more than 8 points on rumors of a hitch in foreign contracts under negotiation. United States steel showed more resistance than other leaders, although yielding more than one-half its advance. War issues succumbed to pressure and motors reacted with Mexican petroleum. Tobaccos and a few high priced unclassified specialties scored substantial gains. Bonds were irregular with considerable activity in Anglo-French and the new French issues.

GIRL IS BRIDE IN NEW AIRSHIP ROMANCE

Skill of Airman Roberts Won Heart of Miss Rogers.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 22.—A romance beginning on an aviation field in Washington state has brought happiness to Miss Grace M. Rogers, of Elma, Wash.,

MRS. JAY M. ROBERTS.

and Jay M. Roberts, daring aviator, who made her his bride recently.

Miss Rogers with her uncle, Col. Charles H. Rogers, U. S. A. retired, and now deceased, was viewing the thrilling flights of birdmen on the aviation fields near Seattle two years ago when she was attracted by the daring and skill of one of the younger aviators.

A chance meeting with the aviator at the close of the exhibition afforded Dan Cupid an opportunity. The chance meeting ripened into an engagement.

While Miss Rogers was visiting friends here recently she learned that Roberts narrowly escaped death while making an exhibition flight in Venice. The nose leading from the engine to the radiator of the biplane burst while Roberts was more than 2,000 feet above the sea. Although soaked by the gasoline, Roberts retained control of the machine and brought it safely to earth.

BABY BONDS TEACH BOY THRIFTY HABITS

A local business man, the father of a husky sixteen-year-old, whom he requires to spend the vacation months in working at the business which the parent expects to pass over to him in the future, states that he pays the son double the amount which he could be expected to receive for the same work outside of his father's establishment, but only on the condition that half of his salary be invested in Baby Bonds. In this manner the father expects to teach the son thrifty habits which he says will be of greater use to him in after life than anything else he could learn.

Baby Bonds come in $10 denominations. Bear 6 per cent interest and are secured by first mortgages on local real estate. There are also a number of larger bonds in $500 denominations, which bear the same rate of interest. In addition to the interest which the bonds bear, they participate in the profits of the company.

WAR'S COST MOUNTS HIGH FOR ENGLAND

Staggering Figures Given by Premier Asquith in Commons.

London, July 24.—In asking the house of commons for the new vote of credit of £450,000,000 today, Premier Asquith said that since the outbreak of the war there had been 12 votes of credit, totalling £2,832,000,000. The present vote was substantially larger than its predecessors but this was not because any great extension of expenditure was anticipated in order to make provision for a longer period and the covering of any necessary results.

Explaining the statement of Reginald McKenna, chancellor of the exchequer, that the war expenditure had reached £,000,000,000 daily, Premier Asquith made the same statement as did the chancellor in regard to the purchase of American securities which he said was not a true expenditure but merely a transfer of assets from England to America.

After expending £550,000,000 between April 1 and July 22, continued the premier, there was a balance on hand of £41,000,000, which was sufficient to carry on the services to the end of July instead of the first week in August, as he had estimated. The daily average of expenditure had risen from £4,820,000 during the period from May 1 to June 30 to £5,050,000 during the period from June 22 to July 22, or an average over the two periods of £4,950,000. The principal causes of the increase were the army and navy munitions.

Tests have shown that as little as 1-4 of 1 per cent. of sugar will prevent cement setting, while from 1 to 2 per cent. will make it set quickly, but later disintegrate.

Manhattan borough of Greater New York this year operates 100 park playgrounds, eight recreation piers, twelve swimming pools and several thousand shower baths.

The body will be taken to New Haven for burial Tuesday in Odd Fellows' cemetery.

BURIED AT ARLINGTON.

Remains of Col. Butler, Victim of Spannell's Bullet, Interred.

Washington, July 24.—The body of Lieut. Col. M. C. Butler, of the Sixth United States cavalry, who was killed at Alpine, Tex., Thursday by Harry J. Spannell, a hotel manager, was buried in Arlington cemetery today. Spannell also killed his own wife, shooting the two as they sat in Spannell's automobile in which Spannell had invited Col. Butler to ride.

Mrs. D. E. Butler, Mrs. H. A. Popp, Mrs. J. A. Foster and Miss Lavon Chapman, all of this city, are spending this week at Winona Lake.

GAIN PART OF STRONG POST

Heroic German Defense is Unequal to Task at Important Point.

Today's War News Given in Summary

London today reports new and important advantages gained by the British in their fight for Pozieres, the present focal point of their attack in the Somme region. Despite a stubborn German defense of the town, which has been turned into a strongly fortified post, a large portion of it is now in British hands. The place is considered of great tactical importance as blocking an advance of the British lines toward Baupaume along the road on both sides of Foreaux wood to the east.

The heavy fighting yesterday was followed by comparative calm at night but besides the successes at Pozieres Gen. Douglas Haig reports gains of ground near Hig wood and in the vicinity of Guillimont on the British left flank. The repulse of German counter attacks between Highwood and Guillimont is reported.

Paris announces the continuance of bad weather along the French front in the Somme region and a cessation for the time being of active operations there.

Special dispatches from Petrograd emphasize the importance of the Russian offensive in the Riga region, where at one point Field Marshal von Hindenburg's forces are reported to have been driven back twelve miles. The Russians are said now to be consolidating the ground gained in this offensive movement which extends along a thirty mile front.

Petrograd officially reports Russian advance guards within fifteen miles of the Turkish fortress of Erzigan, upon which Grand Duke Nicholas' armies are steadily advancing.

Engagements between German torpedo craft and a British force of small vessels in the North sea are told of in a British admiralty statement. In a running fight with six German destroyers repeated hits are declared to have been secured by the British. One of the British vessels was hit and two men wounded. The Germans succeeded in reaching the Belgian coast.

London, July 24.—(1:50 p. m.)—British troops have captured a large part of the village of Pozieres, says the official British statement issued this afternoon. They also gained some ground near High wood in the direction of Guillemont. The night, the statement adds, was comparatively calm.

Driven Back Twelve Miles.

The Germans have been driven back twelve miles at a point on the Riga front, according to a Reuters dispatch from Petrograd. Progress for the Russians is claimed on a front running from the Gulf of Riga to Uxkull, a distance of more than thirty miles, the greatest advance being made along the coast line.

The dispatch says that fighting went on without pause for four days prior to Sunday. It has now halted as the Russians require time to consolidate the ground they have gained and the Germans are waiting for reinforcements being brought from other sectors of the eastern front.

COASTER MADE OUT OF DAMAGED AUTO

Police were called to the corner of Brackenridge and Harrison streets Monday morning, where youth was making merry with the ill-fated automobile in which James Hoppel was critically burned and Fireman Brandt injured Sunday night when the machine caught fire.

The car was a light Saxon machine, the property of H. L. Wagner, of Ohio. It stood by the side of Harrison street Monday morning. The seats were burned and the back of the machine damaged. About it hung the fire glamor, and the fact that it was an automobile and stood on four wheels. Several children gathered around the car. A hill was just ahead. The brakes were removed. Six sturdy boys pushed the machine to the crest of the hill. Away they went down the grade. Not once, but several times. Somebody became alarmed and called the police. The youths scampered away and the automobile was taken to a garage.

WILL SAIL JUST AS SOON AS SHE'S READY

Deutschland's Agents a Bit More Specific Regarding Submarine.

Baltimore, Md., July 24.—Asked today when the German merchant submarine Deutschland would sail on her return voyage to Germany, Paul G. L. Hilken, member of the Eastern Forwarding company, the boat's American agency, said she would start "just as soon as we can get her ready, and that will not be much longer."

Hitherto any and all questions of persons connected with the Deutschland about her sailing plans have been met with evasive replies or pointblank refusals to discuss them.

From a source regarded as most reliable it was ascertained today that the Eastern Forwarding company had successfully closed its negotiations for a large consignment of gold to be taken back on the submersible. It was said the gold will be put aboard today and that the boat will then be ready to leave. Nothing could be learned as to the amount or from whom it was obtained except that it was through negotiations with "one of the largest American banking institutions."

The Deutschland's wireless equipment was sealed today by a government radio inspector. When Captain Koenig entered his arrival at the customs house on the 10th inst. he was informed by customs officials that if he stayed in port more than two weeks his wireless would be sealed. The two weeks' limit expired today.

BREMEN NOT BELIEVED NEAR.

Norfolk, Va., July 24.—Only one of the allied warships patrolling the Virginia capes waiting for the German under-water liner Deutschland or her sister ship Bremen was in sight early today and she was cruising far out to sea.

Seafaring men who had been expecting the arrival of the Bremen within the last two days now say she cannot be anywhere near the capes. The weather during the last forty-eight hours has been ideal for a dash into the harbor. The sea has been rough, the sky has been overcast almost continually and rain has been falling. If the big submersible were near, the shipping men say, she would have taken advantage of those conditions to come in. Persons in German circles who predicted the coming of the Bremen yesterday admitted their disappointment, but thought the boat had been delayed in starting. They recalled that the Deutschland was more than a week overdue.

PUT MORE SPEECHES ON HUGHES PROGRAM

New York, July 24.—Chairman William R. Willcox, of the republican national campaign committee, on his return from Bridgehampton today said that the itinerary of Mr. Hughes' approaching western trip has virtually been determined upon, but the announcement would be delayed until it could be so arranged that in going to the Rocky mountains for a week's recreation the candidate would not be compelled to deviate to any extent from his speaking route. The itinerary has undergone considerable change since first outlined and instead of the ten speeches there will be at least twelve and possibly fifteen, said Mr. Willcox. It has been decided that the nominee shall make two speeches on the night of Aug. 9—one in St. Paul and the other in Minneapolis.

PEARL FISHER SELLS RIVER PRIZE FOR $500.

GIVES WILSON MUCH CONCERN

England's Partial Reply on Mail Seizure Protest Will Not Answer.

Washington, July 24.—President Wilson told callers today that the British "blacklist" against some American firms was causing him a great deal of concern, but indicated that details of the plan of the American government to meet the situation had not been decided upon.

Senator Hoke Smith, who said he spoke only for himself, declared after seeing the president that he thought the issue would be settled either by withdrawal or modification of the blacklist.

Reply Is Unsatisfactory.

Great Britain's partial reply to the American note protesting against interference with neutral mails is regarded by officials as unsatisfactory, principally because it deals with specific cases instead of the principles involved. Officials infer from the communication that Great Britain is determined to uphold her attitude which the United States regards as unwarranted and without authority in international law.

Acting Secretary Polk said he would cable Ambassador Page acknowledging receipt of the British communication and repeating the request for an early reply to the last American note. He said the memorandum would be given out for publication later in the day. It now is before President Wilson.

Sees Another Propaganda.

Senator Husting, who led the movement for the investigation of the telegraphic propaganda several weeks ago, deluged congress with demands for action to warn Americans off armed ships, received evidence today of another propaganda being organized to ask congress

ANOTHER GAIN IN DEATHS BY PLAGUE

New York, July 24.—Another gain in the number of fatalities and decrease in the number of new cases was reported by the health department today when the epidemic of infantile paralysis entered its fifth week. During the 24 hours ending at 10 a. m. today, there were 31 deaths and 89 new cases reported in the greater city as against 23 deaths and 115 new cases during the corresponding period yesterday.

Thirteen additional cases of infantile paralysis were reported to the department of health today from different places in the state outside of New York City, making a total of 224 cases of the disease. Two deaths were also reported increasing the number of fatalities to 25.

MAY RETURN WITH MOBILIZATION ORDER

John C. Scheffer and Luther Mertz Visit Adjutant General Monday.

By request of Adjutant General Bridges, Captain John A. Scheffer and Luther Mertz of Battery D, went to Indianapolis early Monday morning to hold a conference. It is presumed that the two officers who will come back to Fort Wayne Monday evening will return with specific orders of mobilization. Captain John E. Miller accompanied the two men to the capital city.

The local battery has almost reached peace strength and has now a membership of one hundred and twenty-four men and five officers, just nine minus the required number.

Dr. C. R. Dancer, of this city, medical examiner, spoke highly of the physical fitness of the Huntington boys and declared that he had seldom examined a more perfect lot. Only one man was rejected out of those who applied for enlistment. Dr. Dancer will go to Huntington, Wednesday, to examine other applicants for enlistment.

KING CONSTANTINE'S VIEW IS CHALLENGED

Venizelos Questions Belief That Germany Cannot Be Defeated.

Athens, Via London, July 24.—(10:05 a. m.)—Former Premier Venizelos, openly challenges King Constantine's expressed belief that Germany cannot be defeated, in an article which appears in today's Herald. Venizelos quotes an interview given by the king to an Associated Press representative last January in which the monarch declared that the war would result in a draw.

"Who is now so blinded by prejudice," asks the statesman, "to believe still in German victory? Who today after the recognition of the value of the Russian advance and the organization of Kitchener's army by which England is raised to the rank of a great military power, still imagines that the war can be ended by a bastard peace in which there will be neither victory nor vanquished?"

In the interview referred to by former Premier Venizelos, King Constantine said: "If economic exhaustion does not force Germany to sue for peace, I believe it will be very difficult, if not impossible to conquer her in a military way." Asked as to what he believed would be the outcome of the war, the king replied:

"A draw—don't you?" The interview was given on January 20.

VISITOR BRINGS DREAD DISEASE

Little Girl, from Newark, N. J., Found to Have Infantile Paralysis.

When little Mildred Lamborn, 3 years, came to Fort Wayne from Newark, N. J. for a visit with relatives at 1719 Harrison street, she brought the germs for the first case of infantile paralysis to break out in the city this year.

She became ill Saturday and Dr. Wiley Thimlar was called. He said the girl had infantile paralysis. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lamborn objected to the finding. Dr. John Gilpin, of the health board was called. He concurred with Dr. Thimlar and ordered the patient removed to the county isolation hospital. The house at 1719 Harrison street is under quarantine.

The child is in no serious condition, doctors say. The paralysis case is a very light one, although all evidences of the disease are present. The girl will survive without a doubt, Dr. Gilpin reports. The child has been in contact with but few children since she came to Fort Wayne four weeks ago, Gilpin says, and there need be no fear of general infection from her presence here.

RUMOR WHOLLY UNTRUE.

No Warships to Convoy American Merchantman Across Atlantic.

Washington, July 24.—Minister Van Rappard, of the Netherlands, called at the state department to inquire about published reports that the United States was contemplating using warships to convoy its merchantmen across the Atlantic. Acting Secretary Polk told him the report was wholly without foundation.

LOWER FLAGS TO HALF MAST

PRESIDENT WILSON EXPRESSES SORROW.

Washington, July 24.—President Wilson today sent the following telegram to Henry Eitel, of Indianapolis, brother-in-law of the late James Whitcomb Riley:

"May I not express to you my sincere sorrow at the death of James Whitcomb Riley? With his departure a notable figure passes out of the nation's life; a man who imparted joyful pleasure and a thoughtful view of many things that other men would have missed. I am sure I am speaking the feeling of the whole country in expressing my own sense of loss."

Indianapolis, Ind., July 24.—Flags all over Indianapolis and in many other cities of the state were at half mast today in memory of James Whitcomb Riley, who died suddenly Saturday night.

Preparations were begun early today at the state house for the body to lie in state from 3 to 9 o'clock this evening so that the public may view the body of the Indiana poet. The capitol was appropriately decorated to indicate the general mourning all over the state. The place the body will lie is the same spot where Mr. Riley stood a few years ago when he recited his own poem "Old Glory" at the time the body of Gen. Lawton lay in state in the capitol.

The body was to have been taken from the Riley home shortly after 2 o'clock, accompanied by a police escort. After the doors of the capitol close this evening it will be returned to the home under the same escort.

Only tentative funeral arrangements had been made this morning. Although the first plans were to have the burial at Greenfield, Ind., the boyhood home of the poet, the plans were changed last night to make the funeral here. Final word is awaited from his sister, Mrs. Mary Payne, of New York, who had not been heard from early today.

Governor Ralston Acts.

Governor Ralston, in a letter to Henry Eitel, brother-in-law of the dead poet, urged that Mr. Riley's body be permitted to lie in state at the Indiana state capitol from 3 p. m. until 9 p. m., Monday, in order that the public might be permitted to pay its last tri-

HAIL STORM DOES DAMAGE IN COUNTY

Sections of Allen county were visited by a terrific hailstorm Saturday afternoon that did much damage to growing crops. The storm seemed to play havoc on one farm and then jump for several miles to another. Both the northern and southern parts of the county suffered.

The corn and oats on the farm of Hale Ashley, near Robison park, are said to have been laid low. Monday morning Ashley cut his oats and will make hay out of it. Other farms adjoining the Ashley farm escaped. The hailstones were large and came down with terrific force for some time.

WELSH AND WHITE TO MEET IN 20-ROUND GO

Sign Articles for Decision Bout on Labor Day at Colorado Springs.

Chicago, July 24.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion, and Charley White, of Chicago, signed articles here today for a bout of 20 rounds to a decision to take place in Colorado Springs, Colo., Labor day, Sept. 4. The promoters guarantee a purse of $17,500.

The bout will be the first one of twenty rounds in which Welsh has taken part since he defeated Willie Ritchie for the world's championship in 1914. He took the title on a decision in that match and has agreed to surrender it on a decision Labor Day should Billy Roche of New York, selected as referee on the insistence of his manager, Harry Pollol, give a verdict against him.

Welsh because of his concessions as to the decision and his possession of the title, will take down $12,500 as his share of the purse with the option of taking 75 per cent. of the receipts should they go above $27,000. White's share is to be $4,000. Welsh comes in also for 51 per cent. of the moving picture receipts.

The bout will be under Marquis of Queensberry rules. The men agreed to weigh in at 135 pounds about five hours before they were to enter the ring. The bout will be the fourth meeting of Welsh and White. The champion has had the better of the encounters so far but White is opeful of winning over a long route.

NATIONAL DEFENSE IS STILL BEFORE SENATE

The national defense program will occupy the senate most of this week. Debate on the army bill was resumed today, is expected to last for several days and before the week is over senate and house will meet in a struggle over a building program for the navy. The conference likely will pare the senate's plan for next year.

Efforts will be made to get final action on both army and navy conference reports early in August. Adjournment is set for August 19, but insistence on child labor legislation may alter the plan. Senate democrats probably will caucus this week to decide whether there shall be a vote on child labor.

RUSH ORDER FOR ARMY SHIRTS.

Greater Part of 35,000 Shipment Is Made from Jeffersonville.

Jeffersonville, Ind., July 24.—The greater part of an order for 35,000 olive drab shirts had been filled today by the United States army quartermaster depot here. The order was received late Saturday. All the shirts were made here. The shipments of the order went to St. Louis, whence the shirts will be distributed.

MONUMENT TO ERICSSON.

House Committee Reports Favorably on $35,000 Expenditure.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—A favorable report on a bill to appropriate $35,000 for a monument to John Ericsson, inventor and constructor of the civil war Monitor, was filed today by the house library committee.

WOMAN INJURED BY FALL ON ICE IN MIDSUMMER.

Indianapolis, July 24.—The condition of Mrs. Cora Baker, 1504 Linden street, who was injured when she slipped and fell on ice yesterday, was improved today. The ice which caused her to fall was on the sidewalk at Illinois and Washington streets. It had been left by a man delivering ice cream. A baby Mrs. Baker was carrying was injured only very slightly.

POLICE PICK UP THE TRAIL

Infernal Machine May Have Been Tossed from Top of Building.

San Francisco, July 24.—Under the pressure of public sentiment which has been aroused over the bomb explosion that marked Saturday's preparedness parade here the authorities today are working with determination to apprehend the perpetrator of the deed. To the death list of six it is expected that two and probably more of the forty-four injured will be added, five of the victims being reported to be in a critical condition.

Led by Mayor Rolph, who has offered a reward of $5,000 for the arrest of the person and who is taking an active part in the search, scores of citizens have volunteered their services for personal aid.

A mass meeting to "express an opinion on the bomb outrage," was called today for next Wednesday by Frederick J. Koster, president of the chamber of commerce and chairman of the committee on law and order, which was appointed recently to deal with the longshoremen strike situation.

IRISH QUESTION IS NOW AT ACUTE STAGE

Government May Not Be Able to Introduce Amending Bill at Once.

London, July 24.—(11:05 a. m.)—An acute stage has been reached in the Irish question. Unless the situation suddenly changes doubt is expressed whether the government will be able to introduce an amending bill this week as had been promised.

The Nationalist members of parliament are holding another meeting today and unless a satisfactory answer is received from Premier Asquith, John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, will be asked to press him for a further statement, regarding the intentions of the government. The Nationalists insist that the bill shall conform to the terms agreed upon in the settlement and they say they will have nothing to do with proposals to make the exclusion of the province of Ulster or to reduce the Irish representation in the imperial parliament pending the final settlement.

In addition to the Irish subject the government will have many questions to engage its attention during the week. Critics of the cabinet will attempt to prolong the debate on the bill for the appointment of committees to investigate the campaigns in the Dardanelles and Mesopotamia, while the introduction by Premier Asquith today of a new note of credit will open a general debate on the conduct of the war.

VILLA ESCAPED BY THE MEREST CHANCE

El Paso, Texas, July 24.—Only by the merest chance did Francisco Villa escape capture when his column was repulsed by de facto troops in its attack upon Parral two weeks ago, according to a private letter received here today from the Americans in the town.

"Villa personally directed the band that attacked the city," the letter said. "He directed the operations from a carriage about a mile behind the lines. In this carriage were two women and a man. When the bandits were pushed back by the government troops they fled hastily past the carriage, stopping only to provide the chieftain with a horse on which he made his escape. The women fled into the brush and also escaped. A moment or so later the carriage was seized by Carranza soldiers, and the man who proved to be a Swiss nurse was captured. In the carriage were Villa's crutches and several rolls of bandages. The nurse said Villa's wounds necessitated an immediate operation and complete rest for some weeks."

Five Hundred Tons of Ice Used Here Each Day

With the thermometer hovering about the ninety degree mark for the past few weeks, the ice business Fort Wayne has been booming. It is estimated by a local dealer that nearly 500 tons of ice are consumed each day in this city. The manager of one of the largest ice concerns in Fort Wayne stated that last week the average sales per day amounted to nearly 130 tons for his company alone. There are five ice companies in the city and all are working overtime.

The demand has been so great that even with added forces and working day and night the companies have been unable to furnish the required amount. Shipments are made every day from nearby lakes where ice was stored last winter.

The enormity of this figure cannot be realized as well as when it is expressed in pounds. The five hundred tons of ice, or one million pounds, is sufficient to supply each man, woman and child in Fort Wayne with eleven pounds of the frozen water.

Even if the present extreme warm weather continues, it is the opinion of ice dealers that there need be no fear of an ice famine. With a great supply of ice in the storehouses and the factories in condition to manufacture it nearly as fast as it is needed, there seems to be no reason to think that it will become scarce before the summer has gone.

Who's Going to Pay for Chase for Auto Thief?

Detective Sergt. Joseph Brennan spent $6 in the dash for Arthur Newman, the auto thief who was handed over to Toledo officers from Anderson, after the trolley car had broken down and caused Brennan to lose the race for Newman's possession by fifteen minutes.

It was a merited race, however, and now it seems that Brennan or Police Chief Lenz will have to pay the bill. There is no "fugitive fund" allowance maintained for the Fort Wayne police department. Unless a special allowance is voted for this occasion members of the police department will have to meet the expense themselves.

Lenz says he has asked for $300 each year in his annual report, but the special fund for catching fugitives is never allowed. It is a distinct handicap to the department, Lenz shows. Unless private help is given there is no way of going any distance for fugitives.

Brennan, who returned to Fort Wayne Saturday night, says that Newman, who stole the Dr. Christian Martz car last spring, will be arraigned in court at Toledo. Newman admitted taking the Fort Wayne machine and said he sold it in Rochester, N. Y., Brennan says. Doctor Martz expects to send to Rochester for his auto.

Newman stole an automobile from Toledo and left it with the father of his woman friend in Anderson. The girl's father suspected no theft and had the car in his barn. It bore the number of the machine taken from Martz. Newman was arrested and confessed to both thefts. He is a college man and twenty-five years old.

AIRMAN TAKEN AFTER AN AUDACIOUS FLIGHT

Paris, July 24.—(1:30 p. m.)—Lieut. Marchal, of the French aviation corps, last month left French soil and flew over the German capital, upon which he dropped proclamations and then continued his flight, intending to land within the Russian lines. He was forced to descend, however, in Poland and was taken prisoner by the Germans.

The proclamations dropped by Lieut. Marchal on Berlin stated that though it was possible, the aviator refrained from bombarding the open town and "thus kill the women and children."

Lieut. Marchal made a continuous flight of about 897 miles, most of which he traveled in darkness.

The Official Communication.

The official communication given out today telling of Aviator Marchal's achievement said:

"On June 20 at 9:30 o'clock in the evening, sub-Lieut. Marchal ascended at Nancy on board a Nieuport monoplane of a special type taking with him a supply of fuel, sufficient to last fourteen hours. His mission was to cross Germany at a low altitude in order to drop proclamations on the capital, Berlin, and then to descend in Russia.

"This audacious flight was accomplished point by point, and, after flying all night, Lieut. Marchal was compelled to descend at 8:30 o'clock in the morning of June 21 near Chelm, Russian Poland, at least 100 kilometers (62 miles) from the Russian lines. He was made prisoner.

"The proclamation which Lieutenant Marchal dropped on Berlin began with the words: 'We could bombard the open town of Berlin and thus kill the women and innocent children but we are content to throw only the following proclamation.'

Aviator Sends Details.

"Lieutenant Marchal was interned at Salzerbach, whence he forwarded to France a postal card giving these details:

"'I was made prisoner at 8 o'clock on the morning of the 21st at Chelm. The Austrian officers did not believe that I had accomplished my task but the proof later arrived and they were obliged to bow to the reality.'

"'It was the failure of the spark plugs which stopped me and I descended to change two of the plugs and to start the motor again. Unfortunately it would have been necessary to change two more plugs and at this moment I was taken prisoner. You may judge of my chagrin.'

"Aviator Marchal in the course of his journey covered in continuous flight a distance of about 1,300 kilometers (807 miles), most of which he traveled during the night."

HOOSIER POET IS NO MORE.

their way into country newspapers.

He led this cheerful, free and easy life late in the '70's, then he took employment as a reporter on a newspaper at Anderson, Ind. In 1877, for the purpose, as he said, of proving that he could write poetry of value, he perpetrated the Poe hoax which for years was a literary sensation. He wrote a poem in the style of Edgar Allen Poe, to which he gave the characteristic title of "Leonanie," and it was offered to the public as a hitherto unpublished product of the genius of Poe.

In some quarters the poem was accepted as genuine; in others it was denounced as a fraud. After the controversy had waged for months Riley confessed.

In the early '80's, he began writing verses in "Hoosier" dialect for the old Indianapolis Journal. He sent some of his poems to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and they received his praise. A volume was published and "the Hoosier poet" began to win a public. He was an excellent reader of his own dialect verses and for the following fifteen years, or until 1898, he made tours of the country, appearing in public with great success both alone and in association with the humorist, Bill Nye, who was his intimate friend.

Publication of books of poems year after year brought Riley a fortune and wide recognition of his literary genius and not only in the genre form. Many of his poems are of imaginative fantasy or gently philosophic.

In 1902 he received the degree of master of arts from Yale university and in 1904 the University of Pennsylvania conferred upon him the degree of doctor of letters. Indiana university conferred the honorary degree of LL. D. on him in 1907.

Mr. Riley never married but he was a lover of children, whose spirit he divined so intimately, and of family life. Many of the last years of his life he spent quietly at his home in a secluded section of Indianapolis.

Telegrams Voice Sorrow.

Telegrams bringing deep expressions of regret and sorrow and offering condolences to the relatives arrived at the Riley home on Lockerbee street all day yesterday. One of the first came from Vice-President Marshall, a personal friend of Mr. Riley. It read:

"To die for one's country is to reach the heights of glory; to live for humanity so that each succeeding age will be happier is to attain immortality. This is the record of James Whitcomb Riley. Rest to his ashes and peace to his soul."

Academy Feels Loss.

The American Academy of Arts and Letters, through William Dean Howells, president, sent the following message:

"On behalf of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, we respectfully offer you its sympathy on the death of our beloved and honored associate, James Whitcomb Riley, which is a signal loss to the academy, of which he was a greatly valued member. His position as a genuine and virile poet of the people has long been secure."

J. Q. Johnson, mayor of Greenfield, Mr. Riley's boyhood home, sent the following message:

"The citizens of Greenfield all deeply feel the great loss of our distinguished and beloved James Whitcomb Riley and bow their heads in deepest sorrow."

HELD AT HOME BY RIGID QUARANTINE

New Yorkers Unable to Quit City to Escape the Summer Heat.

New York, July 24.—New York families who wished to take their children to summer resorts yesterday to escape the heat of the city had to depend for their outings mainly upon resorts within the city limits. Fear of infantile paralysis has caused neighboring communities to raise their quarantine so strictly that few New York parents cared to encounter the severe restrictions.

As a result the crowds at the city beaches were greater than usual, even for a Sunday in July. Scarcely any of the steamboat lines will give assurance of being able to land New York children in Connecticut and New Jersey. The activity of county policemen in stopping motorists resulted in a decided curtailment of Sunday motoring excursions.

Great interest was shown today in a report regarding the epidemic promised by the committee of the Rockefeller institute, which is making a special study of the disease. Dr. Alvah H. Doty, former health officer of the port, who is a member of this committee, said that the committee tried to learn the manner by which the disease is communicated and that some remarkable results had been obtained. The health department hopes to receive the committee report today or tomorrow.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL FOR PREPAREDNESS

Winona Lake, Ind., July 24.—One of the largest training camps in the United States will be held at Winona Lake early next month, beginning August 2. The purpose of this camp will be to instruct all officers, commissioned and non-commissioned, and teachers along the lines of efficiency and Sunday school preparedness. The greatest array of Sunday school experts ever brought together in the United States will be present and give daily lectures. Margaret Slattery, Dr. Frank L. Brown, World Sunday School secretary, Prof. Colwell, Dr. Thomas, and a score or more other experts will be on hand. Sessions at 8 o'clock in Raikes hall. The best of local talent has been engaged, conspicuous in the list being Dr. Palmer, Dr. Pigdon and Dr. Biederwolf. Mr. Excell will lead the singing. A big reception at 6:45 at the Winona hotel, August 2, to all Sunday school workers and teachers. Every one interested should come. No one can afford to miss the School of Principles and Methods for Sunday School Workers. Descriptive circulars about this great training camp are being sent out over the country.

MAINE HOLDING PRIMARY.

Candidates Chosen to Succeed Late Senator Burleigh.

Portland, Me., July 24.—Democrats and republicans of Maine went to the polls today to select candidates for United States senator to succeed the late Senator Edwin C. Burleigh. A special election will be held Sept. 11, the day of the state election.

The only democratic candidate in the field was Kenneth C. M. Sills, dean of Bowdoin college. Congressman Frank E. Guernsey and former Governor Bert M. Fernald scought the republican nomination.

Miss Meta Ebendick, of Detroit, has arrived here to visit her grandmother, Mrs. William Horstmeyer.

Dan McKinsey Meets Instant Death While at Work in Hay Field.

While at work in a hay field on the farm of Fred Baade, two miles south of the city, Dan McKinsey, forty years of age, was struck by a bolt of lightning and instantly killed. Benza Baker, who was working with him in the field, was only a few rods away when the former was killed.

The bolt struck McKinsey in the head knocking his hat high into the air. The current passed through his body, tearing off the shoes and splitting the feet between the toes. A few scars on his breast and a few singed hairs were the only visible effects of the stroke.

The deceased resided on a farm three miles south of Fort Wayne on the Bluffton road, and together with Mr. Baker was making hay on the Baade farm for shares. The small storm that came up about 3 o'clock was not severe enough to drive the men to shelter and they kept on working. Mr. McKinsey held a pitchfork in his hands when he was killed.

Coroner McArdle was summoned, pronouncing death due to a stroke of lightning, and ordered the body removed to the Wellman undertaking parlors. He is survived by the widow.

ELKS' ANNUAL STAG PICNIC IS SUCCESS

MYSTERIOUS FIRE BURNS BOGASH BARN

The barn on the Frank Bogash farm, on the Leo road, north of the city, was completely destroyed by fire Saturday night. This was the third time the building had been fired during the past three weeks. A week ago Thursday night the structure broke out in flames, but the blaze was extinguished before extensive damage was done.

There was no hope of saving the building when it was found to be wrapped in flames Saturday night. Loss is said to be $300. The building was empty. Four years ago the big barn on the Bogash place was consumed by fire.

MAY EXHIBIT "MINE" IF EAGLES ACCEPT

Navy Recruiting Officer May Show Mechanism at Home Talent Circus.

Joseph C. King, in charge of the Fort Wayne navy recruiting station, will ask the privilege of exhibiting a "mine" at the proposed circus of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, possibly the week of August 28. A meeting of the lodge is called for Monday to determine whether the circus will be given and Mr. King will appear before the meeting to state his proposal.

The "mine" is furnished by the Indianapolis navy recruiting station, of which Lieut. Com. J. H. Comfort is in charge. It has been exhibited at several places in Indianapolis. It is 60 inches in diameter and in two sections. It will be the aim of Mr. King to show the mechanism of the "mine." If the Eagles act favorably on his proposal, both Mr. King and his assistant, J. J. Cullen, in navy recruiting, would demonstrate the "mine" each day of the circus, which may last a week.

Among the different parts of the mine are the outer casing, watertight basket in two sections, electric current closers, and other appliances. The "mine" exhibitions in Indianapolis proved educational in view of the recent warfare which had been conducted with them. More than 150 feet of electric wire is shown in connection with the mine exhibition and the "mine" weighs about 400 pounds.

Ask Dad, He Knows

When you get out in the business world and start to learn your business or trade—don't handicap your future by neglecting your eyes. Ask Dad, he knows—if he was foolish and let them go—he's regretted it many a time. If he was wise—he let Meigs, in the Lyric Theater Building, make him glasses and he still enjoys good sight. For nearly twenty years our only business has been fitting and making glasses and we make them right. Ask Dad—he knows the Meigs' Optical Shop.

Mr. Riley's death at 11 o'clock Saturday night was due to the third stroke of Paralysis which the poet suffered Saturday morning though until a few moments before his death he was believed to be improving and not in immediate danger. A nurse was watching at Mr. Riley's bedside. Just before 11 o'clock the patient asked for a drink of water. It was given him and the nurse resumed her vigil. A few moments later she noticed that Mr. Riley did not appear to be lying in a comfortable position and she approached his bed, only to discover that the spark of life had gone out. Mr. Riley suffered his first serious attack of paralysis in July, 1910.

Mr. Riley had never married, and his nearest surviving relative is a sister, Mrs. Mary Payne, of New York.

Mr. Riley was born in 1849 but was reticent as to his exact age. One of the most unique celebrations in the country was held in his honor October 7, 1915, when "Riley day" was observed by a banquet in Indianapolis, and in schools of the country attended by more than 1,000,000 children. Men prominent in business and politics from all over the country assembled to do the poet homage at the celebration, and many congratulatory messages were received from abroad on that occasion. The day in the public schools was observed by reading his poems. The poet's philosophy of life and his manner of expressing it in Hoosier dialect won for him years ago a place in the hearts of the public. Of late years he had not appeared at public gatherings to any great extent, but in nice weather could be seen on the streets of Indianapolis in his automobile.

James Whitcomb Riley, born of the middle west, sang the joys, sorrows, fancies and humors of its folk, largely in its own dialect. The world was so touched by his inspiration and the realism of his homely symbols that he was one of the few, that, devoting their lives to poetry, gained a fortune.

The poet was the son of Reuben A. Riley, a lawyer and political speaker of Greenfield, Ind. The boy could not be brought to the dull routine of school days, but he was wise in the lore of streams and fields. His mother, who was Elizabeth Marine before her marriage, was a writer of verse and Riley in later life attributed some of his impracticability to her.

Instead of preparing for the practice of law, as his father wished, the son turned itinerant sign painter. For ten years he roved through the Ohio valley painting signs on fences. He had the trick of the brush and pencil and cleverly drew sketches illustrating the virtues of merchandise. He was naturally musical and shone as a fiddler in the villages at which his party stopped at night. He played for dances and at concerts in country hotels. He wrote rhymes, which sometimes found

COST ENGLISH HEAVILY.

Gains at Pozieres Unimportant, Says a German Statement.

Berlin, July 24 (via London, 3:45 p. m.).—The only advantage gained by the British in the fighting on the Somme front Sunday, says the German official statement issued today, was the penetration of a few houses in the village of Pozieres for which they paid with heavy and sanguinary losses.

German torpedo-boats in their raid from Flanders on the night of July 22-23 went up to the mouth of the Thames without sighting any British naval forces, says an official statement issued today by the German admiralty. Later they encountered several small British cruisers, but returned to their base undamaged.

Six German Destroyers Make Escape from English Light Warships.

London, July 24 (2:02 p. m.).—Six German torpedo boat destroyers were engaged in a running fight by British light forces off Schouwen bank yesterday says an official statement issued by the British admiralty this afternoon. The German vessels were repeatedly hit, but they succeeded in reaching the Belgian coast. The text of the official statement says:

"At midnight of July 22, while near the North Hinder light vessel, some of our light forces sighted three enemy destroyers, who retired before damage could be inflicted on them.

"Subsequently off Schouwen bank six enemy destroyers were engaged and a running fight ensued during which the enemy was repeatedly hit, but he succeeded in reaching the Belgian coast.

"One of our vessels was hit once and one officer and one man were slightly wounded. There was no other damage or casualty."

KAISER EAGER TO FIGHT.

Emperor's Address to Soldiers Makes Deep Impression in Germany.

London, July 24.—(2:55 p. m.)—Emperor William during his recent trip to a point somewhere in the rear of Peronne, on the Somme front, says a dispatch to the Wireless Press from Berne, made a speech to the German wounded soldiers which is attracting great attention in Germany. The German emperor is quoted as saying:

"It is the most poignant grief of my life that I am unable to take a more active part in this war. It is my earnest desire to take my place in the trenches and to deal such blows at our enemies as my age and strength will permit.

"I could take my place with the youngest of you and I promise that I would leave my mark on the enemy. But the inscrutible Almighty has willed otherwise. Into my care has been committed by Divine destiny the leadership of our country, its armies and its forces on land and sea.

"The burden of thinking, deciding and leading has been hard upon me and realizing this I know that my life must not be risked in the foremost line of battle where my feelings, if unrestrained, would carry me swiftly.

"My life must be conserved carefully for the welfare in Germany in order to carry out the duties assigned to me by Divine appointment."

SWEDEN ORDERS ATTACK.

Stockholm, Sweden, (Via London, 2:25 p. m.)—Consequent upon the royal decree forbidding foreign belligerent submarines to pass through or to remain in Swedish territorial waters on pain of being attacked without warning, a general order has been issued to the Swedish naval and military forces. It directs that foreign submarines in Swedish territorial waters, unless recognized as neutrals or as merchant ships, are to be immediately attacked.

BAD WEATHER ON SOMME FRONT.

In a raid near Vailly, north of the Aisne, German trenches were penetrated and some prisoners taken.

On the Verdun front east of the Meuse there were small local engagements in the course of which the French took thirty prisoners, making the total taken prisoner during the last ten days in this district 8,000.

GIVES WILSON MUCH CONCERN

to order American mails carried by warships to escape British detention. Documents which Senator Husting received show that the propaganda purports to be fostered by the American Steamship Ticket Agents' association at 395 Broadway, New York, and that forms of telegrams to be sent to congress on July 14 had been distributed throughout the country.

Discusses Child Labor.

Child labor legislation which President Wilson desires enacted at this session was discussed by him today with Senator Simmons, Senator Hoke Smith and other members of congress. His callers left with the impression that while the president aws very anxious to have the bill passed he would leave the decision to the senate democratic caucus which meets later this week to discuss the legislative program.

Senator Simmons, who opposed the bill said he did not expect a filibuster if the measure were taken up but undoubtedly there will be full discussion which would delay the adjournment of congress.

Follow Several Clues.

Several clues are being followed with great activity. Two men who claimed to have seen the man with the suitcase believed to have contained the infernal machine, described him as about 35 years old, tall and shabbily dressed. As a result of conferences between Mayor Rolph and Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, it is regarded as likely that the state would supplement the city's action with the offer of a large reward for the assassin.

A reward of $1,000 has been offered by the brother of one of the victims. Experts retained by the police have arrived at the conclusion, it is said, that the bomb had as its principal ingredient nitro-toluol.

This substance, they say, was compressed into a length of cast steel pipe which, judging from the fragments picked up in the area of destruction, must have been from a foot to fifteen inches long and from six to eight inches in diameter. Such a bomb, it is stated, could have been fired by a time arrangement fixed to an ordinary alarm clock.

New Angle to Case.

An entirely new angle to the case was presented to the police by Dr. J. Mora Moss, who said that the explosive either was tossed into the crowd or dropped from the top of a one-story building at Market and Stewart streets. Doctor Moss said he was in Stewart street at the time, forming in line with the Sons of the American Revolution and observed the bomb falling to the street. He said: "I happened to turn and saw a black object surrounded by smoke falling through the air. It was perhaps ten feet above the ground. It fell among the crowd and the explosion followed. I am sure that it was hurled into the mass of people and the theory that the suitcase was placed against the corner building is incorrect."

Frank F. Josefson, the sailor who was arrested Saturday when he made a speech at the scene of the explosion in consonance with the act, still is in cus-

VETERAN RELATES HIS EXPERIENCE

Through four long years of conflict, the civil war, until the present time, Leroy L. Smith, 72 years old, a well known Fort Wayne resident who lives at 754 West Superior street, has been known as a man of unquestioned honesty and integrity.

Smith, now a salesman for the J. A. Fritch Soap Co., of St. Louis, recently testified regarding the merits of Tanlac, the celebrated new medicine. As a result of his unquestioned reputation, his words will have a deep impression on hundreds of residents of this city.

"I had kidney trouble and I also suffered from constipation," Mr. Smith said. "I didn't rest well at night and pains across my back bothered me. My feet would become swollen. I couldn't walk to town and back, I was so weak. My appetite was very poor.

"The first bottle of Tanlac brought good results, and now with the second bottle my troubles have been relieved greatly. The pains in my back are about gone; I sleep much better and my appetite is fine. The swelling in my feet no longer bothers me and I'm stronger now being able to walk as far as I wish. I can eat anything I care for. I've found Tanlac to be just the thing for kidney trouble and I've recommended it to my friends."

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complains, rheumatism, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and the like and has proven a fine reconstructive tonic.

Tanlac is now being specially introduced and explained in Fort Wayne at the four Meyer drug stores—Wayne and Calhoun streets, Calhoun and Columbia, 1420 Calhoun and Broadway and Taylor.—Advertisement.

MANY LOTS SOLD IN HARRISON HILL

A record-breaking sale of lots in Harrison Hill, the new addition located on Calhoun street, just south of Rudisill Boulevard, was recorded last Thursday when eleven of the lots in this tract were disposed of. This figure is not only the record sale for one day in Harrison Hill, but it also probably exceeds the number of sales made in any one day in any similar addition in this section of the country. The completion of the paving in this addition within the near future, as well as the completion of the Rudisill Boulevard paving has probably caused prospective purchasers to realize that the choice lots in this tract will be subject to a decided increase in a comparatively short time, and to this fact may this extraordinary sale be attributed. Details regarding any feature of Harrison Hill may be secured from Hilgemann and Schaaf, the promoters, who are located in the North American Building.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

M. & B. TO FURNISH CURRENT TO WARREN

Contract Awarded to Furnish Electricity to Town for Nine Years.

Warren, Ind., July 24.—The Warren town board has entered into a contract with the M. & B. Traction company to furnish all the current that is used in the town of Warren for lighting streets, houses, motors, and for pumping the water used to supply water consumers. Under the terms of the contract, which is to run for a period of nine years, the rate to the town will be on a sliding demand scale which will average around 2¾ cents per kilowatt, according to the Warren Tribune.

At the same time that the contract was made with the traction company for current another contract was made with the firm of Smith & Dreschel, of Marion, to make the necessary changes of machinery at the plant to change from steam-driven pumps to electrical drive. These men are to receive a commission of fifteen per cent on all material used as their pay. The estimated cost of the change is $2,950 with a guarantee that the cost will not exceed $3,100. One of the pumps will have a capacity of forty pounds pressure while the other will have one hundred pounds. It is estimated that the two pumps will cost about $1,600. It will be something like three months before the work is completed.

BONDED TO THE LIMIT.

Hartford City, Ind., July 24.—The city of Hartford City is now bonded to the 2 per cent limit and it will be impossible to issue $6,000 bonds for the installation of cluster lights and for the construction of the traction bridge over Jefferson street, according to the report submitted to the city council last evening by City Attorney A. G. Emshwiller. In this case it will be necessary for the lighting company to install the posts, if they are to be installed, and the city rent them from the company. Some such proposition will be made the council at the next meeting, it is believed, and some action taken toward getting the lights in. Work is to start next week in installing the lights ordered by the county, and as a majority of the business men here desire to supplement this work with a large number of lights to be cared for by the city, it is likely that some way will be found to get the lights.

ORIENTAL SPLENDOR MARKS THE FUNERAL

Throngs With Bared Heads See Body of Chinese President Pass.

Peking, June 8.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Yuan Shi Kai's body was borne through the streets of Peking in oriental splendor today and left the capital in whic hthe late president has been the pre-eminent figure for four years. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese stood with bare heads while the catafalque of the late president was carried slowly along the imperial roadway from the forbidden city to the railway station. The few thousand foreigners living in Peking and many foreign visitors from other Chinese cities joined with the Chinese in doing homage to the powerful leader, whose forceful methods made his enemies as bitter as his friends were firm in their admiration of him.

Rumors that opponents of the monarchical movement might make demonstrations during the funeral procession caused some uneasiness. But the course of the procession was carefully policed and no disturbance occurred. President Li Yuan-Hung, all the male members of Yuan Shi Kai's family, Prince Hu Lung, representing the late Manchu dynasty, and the entire diplomatic corps accredited to Peking walkeed in the procession from the palace grounds to Chiemen, the central gate in the city wall opposite which the railway station is located. The procession was a strange combination of oriental and western customs, a blending of old and new China, of the monarchy and the republic. The uniforms of the Chinese soldiery which participated in the march were fashioned after those of western aarmies, but the Chinese catafalque, the scores of priests wearing their robes of brilliant satin, the hundreds of banner bearers in bright red gowns, the numerous sacrificial offerings carried on bright colored floats and the tile roofs and bright red walls of the imperial buildings along the line of march, made still brighter by the brilliant mid-summer sun, overshadowed the western touches in the procession and gave it a decided mediaeval character.

Yuan Shi-Kai's older sons and other male relatives, numbering more than fifty, wore clad in the traditional white mourning robes of the Chinese. They walked under a great white canopy and every few yards attendants dropped pillows on the pavement upon which the mourners knelt and bowed their heads.

After the procession had moved through Chienmen gate the catafalque was placed in a temporary marque erected before the entrance to the railway station. There tablets were burned and offerings of food and wine were made in honor of the departed.

The body was then carried through the station and placed in the funeral train, which consisted of many cars draped with red bunting and bright with various colored banners. Three trains were required to carry the family and friends of the late president and the officers designated by the government to accompany the body to the late president's ancestral home at Chang-Te-Fu, in Honan province.

I Corinthians 1:1-9.

1. Paul, called to be an apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, and Sosthenes our brother,

2. Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours:

3. Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4. I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ;

5. That in every thing ye are enriched by him, in all utterance, and in all knowledge:

6. Even as the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you:

7. So that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ:

8. Who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9. God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

For some reason we think of a saint as one belonging to the world beyond rather than this world, but Paul tells these early Christians that they were "called to be saints." And notice that he does not stop there, but continues by saying "with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord." This new testament meaning for "saints" is not the exceptional disciple, but all true believers.

The Hoosier Poet's Death.

It is doubtful if the death of any other American of today would have carried to so many hearts, old and young, in all this broad land the twinge of personal sorrow such as has followed the passing of James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier Poet, whose gentle soul took its flight at his Lockerbie street home in Indianapolis Saturday night. High and low, rich and poor everywhere will mourn his passing as that of a very dear friend. They may not have enjoyed a personal acquaintance with the poet. They may never even have seen him, and yet they knew him intimately through the simple, homely verse and the melodious song which he played with master hand upon the human heartstrings.

The witchery of his muse and the melody of his lyrics held their powerful appeal to young and to old alike, and yet it is American childhood which is most deeply bereft in James Whitcomb Riley's death. There is not a schoolroom in all this broad land, and scarcely a home where children are that does not know and has not felt the inspiration and the charm of Riley's rhymes of childhood. He knew children as few men know them—knew them an loved them with a passionate depth that was returned in kind with a wealth of devotion that constitutes a striking characteristic in the life of this extraordinarily gifted son of the Hoosier state who came to be essentially the poet of the people.

Wealth of tribute will come from far and near to lovingly bedeck the bier of the Hoosier poet as his form shall be laid to rest amid the scenes of his boyhood days. Eulogy and tears alike will voice a sorrow well-nigh universal, and human hearts will pour from their depths the expression of love and honor to the memory of this gentle, kindly soul. Yet try as it may, humanity will never be able to repay the debt it owes to the Hoosier Poet. Riley's legacy to the America of both this and future ages is greater and of infinitely more value to humanity than the material wealth of a Croesus.

Indiana suffragists have just made a trip to Rushville, the home of James E. Watson, to hold upon his very doorstep a meeting for the advancement of the cause of votes for women. The precise attitude of Mr. Watson toward the enterprise is not disclosed in the press dispatches. The people of Indiana are waiting in breathless expectancy to discover whether or not Mr. Watson will be able to prove himself diplomatically agile enough to duplicate the recent feat of Mr. Hughes. The latter, it will be recalled, received one delegation of suffragists and a similar contingent of antis on the same day and was able to send each away confidently believing the nominee was "with 'em."

Objection to the bonding provision of the proposed jitney bus regulation on the ground that it might make the business unprofitable for those not regularly in the business, but who jump into it as a "side line" during odd hours, still fails to supply any justification for neglect to guarantee so far as possible, the safety of those who ride the jitneys and those who walk. There should be no mistake as to the relative importance of the interests involved in this question. Concern for the public must come first.

Mr. Chafin and a number of other old-time regulars in the prohibition national convention blocked the movement to make Mr. Hanly's nomination unanimous, even after the Indiana man had secured a big majority of the votes on the first ballot. Can it be possible Mr. Chafin and his friends have it in mind to do a bit of insurging against the new aspirations of the former Indiana governor?

New York progressives are reported to be threatening to go to court if need be to prevent the placing of Mr. Hughes' name on their state ballot this year. The progressive party may be dead, disintegrated, blown up and evaporated as some of its enemies are asserting, but for a genteel sort of corpse it appears to be making considerable noise in one part of the country and another.

A Michigan farmer has just complained to the Michigan City police that he has been fleeced out of $6,000 which he brought to that town with the deliberate intent of harvesting a return of $60,000 on a race-betting scheme, having followed the advice of some new-found friends at a Battle Creek health resort. The "wire-tapping" game is apparently as good as ever, despite its long years of service.

Those two Hammond men who fought a duel with stilettos over a girl who died fifty years ago at least exhibited most amazing ingenuity and resourcefulness in finding something to fight about.

Somehow we feared it would finally come to that. One New York hotel has adopted the custom of showing a five-reel photoplay between the courses of the evening dinner.

FORGETTING HOW TO THINK.

(Wyoming Tribune, Cheyenne.)

A college professor made the remark to one of his classes in the summer school at Ohio State university the other day that he notices a marked deterioration in the mental capacity of young people of college-student age since he first began to come in contact with them some twenty-five years ago. He said they seem unable to concentrate their minds as they used to. What they seem to learn now, he said, they acquire parrot-like. In short, they do not think, says an exchange.

We asked a high school teacher of long and successful experience if this is true. She said it undoubtedly is. Both she and the college professor attribute the uncompromising status of boys and girls to too much scattering of interest. There are too many different things for them to do, their attention is constantly being diverted from one thing to another and the result is that they cannot fix their minds on anything and consequently do nothing well.

Not only do they have a wide diversity of amusements, but the school curriculum itself is given over in large measure to a very wide variety of so-called studies which by the farthest stretch of the imagination cannot be considered vital or fundamental.

A return to simpler courses in school and to simpler living outside is needed, in the view of our college professor and our high school teacher.

CHAUFFEUR IMPROVES OF PAINFUL BURNS

In an effort to extinguish flames from a burning automobile, the tank of which exploded as he and firemen played a stream on the fire, James Hoppel, chauffeur for John H. Bass, was painfully burned about the body Sunday night. Attendants at St. Joseph's hospital said Monday he was making satisfactory recovery.

William Brandt, fireman at engine house No. 3, was also painfully burned about the face and hands. He was removed to his home. The auto, property of H. L. Wagner, an Ohio man, was completely wrecked.

The accident occurred at the plant of the Standard Oil service station, corner of Harrison and Baker streets, where Wagner was getting supplies. Mr. Hoppel saw the car afire as he passed, turned in an alarm, and himself played a stream on the fire when the department arrived. He was burned in this practice.

Firemen rolled Hoppel on the ground and snatched part of his burning clothing from him, saving the man from more serious injury. The origin of the blaze is unknown unless it was a hot engine.

CHARGED WITH THEFT OF FOWLS AND FORD

Howard Brickley, whose parents live near Bluffton, was taken to Bluffton, Monday, to answer a charge of stealing a Ford automobile and sixty chickens.

The automobile, which belonged to Homer Clark, a rural mail carrier, was taken from the streets of Bluffton. The chickens, which were confined in two large crates, were stolen from in front of the store of Leo Marquart, a Murray merchant. The double steal was committed last Thursday.

According to officials, some one saw Brickley load the crates of noisy chickens into the back of the automobile. He drove to Fort Wayne, where he sold the poultry at a packing house, police say. He continued on his journey in the automobile to Lima, Ohio, it is said. The machine was found by Lima police on the public square there, Friday night.

Brickley was in Fort Wayne Saturday night and was arrested by Officer George Eisenhut. He was turned over to Bluffton authorities.

Dr. K. K. Wheelock has returned from Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Judge S. R. Alden has gone to Petoskey and he will go thence to West Superior, Wis.

R. T. McDonald, A. McPherson, Louis Heilbroner and H. C. Rockhill are taking in the races at Detroit.

Another oil well was struck at Montpelier yesterday. The well flows sixty barrels in twenty-four hours.

The new street railroad on Clinton street is rapidly approaching completion. Fort Wayne needs more street railroads, and it also needs the electric cars.

Burglars effected an entrance into the Swinney residence, on the west side, the other evening, but they were frightened away before they could accomplish their purpose.

The Postoffice Clerks' association has organized with the following officers: President, T. W. Blair; secretary, George Adams; treasurer, Fred Drake.

S. M. Foster started for Michigan yesterday afternoon to buy the lumber which is to be used in the construction of the grand stand and fences at the Driving club's grounds northeast of the city.

Sunday morning at 6 o'clock a party of wheelman will leave the A. B. White Cycle company's rooms on Court street, for a 100-mile run to be accomplished, if possible, in ten hours.

Wing & Mahurin have submitted plans for the grandstand at the new driving park. It is very attractive, and its interior is beveled so as to give the audience not only a view of the race course, but of every one in the grandstand. The stand is 35x167 feet.

Weil brothers, of this city, have established an office on South Fifth avenue, New York city. Mr. Isaac Weil is in charge. He has recently returned to Fort Wayne to relieve his brother, Mr. Abe Weil, and Leo Loeser, who will take a three months' outing in Europe, looking after the foreign business of this rapidly growing concern.

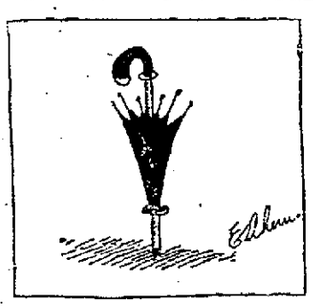
AIN'T NATURE WONDERFUL?

Unnatural History, by Eugene Ahern.

THE UMBRELLA.

Lis'en Lonie, you know that old gag, "What becomes of all the pins?" It's wrong; it should be, "What becomes of all the umbrellas?"

Well say, Horace, that's a funny way to draw a picture of an umbrella,



having it standing without any support.

No, it ain't, Lem, that's right; you try it some time, take an umbrella and stand it on its tip and we'll bet some new scenery to a shine that it won't get a chance to fall, somebody will nab it even before you get all your hands off it.

Umbrellas go quicker than money. There's just one case known where a fellow still has the first umbrella he bought, and that's Calabasha, the 23rd Egyptian prince of Weenie Weenie. He died 2006 years ago and had the umbrella buried up with him when he was bandaged into a mummy.

Now haven't you got a kind of easy idea why these research guys are all digging and tunneling around in Egypt?

DR LYON TELLS OF BATTLE OF THE SOUL

Famous Evangelist Speaks at First Presbyterian Church Sunday.

Dr. Milford H. Lyon, famous evangelist, who conducted a series of tabernacle meetings in Fort Wayne a year and a half ago, occupied the pulpit at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday morning, in the absence of Rev. H. B. Master, the regular pastor, who is on his vacation.

Dr. Lyon motored to Fort Wayne from his home in Winona Lake, returning in the afternoon. He will speak at the same church next Sunday morning. At the morning service Sunday he spoke on "The Battle of the Soul." Before entering into his sermon, however, he expressed himself as highly pleased at again seeing Fort Wayne people, declaring he felt a peculiar interest in the city.

Dr. Lyon took his text from Romans vii:22-25: "For I delight in the law of God after the inward man. But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members. O wretched man that I am! Who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I thank God through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

"This declaration of Paul concerning the conflict going on in his own heart is an expression of the universal experience of human life," Dr. Lyon declared. "There seems to be in every human being two radically opposite and different antagonistic natures. Both of these natures have a physiological basis. The scientists tell us that there is within the human body not only the cerebral brain but also the abdominal brain. From these two great nerve centers radiate strangely different sensations and directions.

"We find this fact of a dual personality in each individual presented by the evidence of the psychologist who tells us that there is in every mind a primary and a secondary consciousness. This secondary consciousness is cruder and lower in quality and character than the primary. Usually it is dormant and subordinate, but at times will assume the supremacy over the life. This twofold quality is manifest especially in the moral nature. These elements seem arrayed the one against the other, as declared by the apostle in the words of our text. Every life that knows itself is conscious of this battle between the opposing forces going on in some form or other every day of its experience.

"The most pitiable condition for any individual would be for this struggle to cease. Browning well said: 'When the fight begins within himself a man's worth something. God stoops o'er his head, satan looks up between his feet. Both tug. He is left himself in the middle, the soul quakes and grows.'"

A meeting of the presidents of the various German societies of the city was held Sunday afternoon at Germania park for the purpose of discussing plans for the annual celebration of German day, to be held at Germania park August 13.

BUY SITE AND ASSERT STABLES WILL GO UP.

Huntertown Live Stock Body Prepares for Coming Stock Show.

Articles of incorporation will be taken out this week by the Huntertown Livestock & Agricultural association in order that it may properly administer its properties following purchase of seven acres of land in Huntertown whereon sales and exhibition stables will be erected costing $3,000. The land cost $2,100. The association was organized more than a year ago, but has never incorporated. It has 100 members, its president being Dr. H. J. Greenwell, of Huntertown, and its secretary Homer Bowser. There are eight members of the board of directors.

Meeting Saturday Night.

At a meeting Saturday night members of the association decided on purchase of the site and erection of the stables. An option on the land, located in Huntertown, has been held for some time. A fifth of the stock necessary to finance the building and ground project has been subscribed and it is planned to have the buildings completed for holding of a stock show the third week in October.

So far as C. Henry, county agent, has knowledge the Huntertown farmers have an unique building project. It is not duplicated in Allen county nor in the United States, the county agent says. There are numerous stock stables over the county, but exhibition and show stables in connection are not operated. The Huntertown Livestock & Agricultural association, organized chiefly for Allen county, has grown to include progressive farmers and breeders of stock from Steuben, Whitley and Noble counties. C. Henry, county agent, attended the meeting Saturday night at Huntertown.

Community Picnic Talked.

After returning from Decatur, where they investigated the success of the community picnic given by business men of Decatur to the farmers of Adams county more than a month ago, C. Henry, county agent, and Ross McCulloch, announce that a similar event has been considered for Allen county. Mr. Henry said Monday, however, that no definite plans were formed. The picnic was given in Decatur to promote a better acquaintance between the farmer and the business man.

Farmers Hold Picnic.

The picnic of the Washington Township Farmers' club was held Sunday in Henry Fortmeyer's grove. There was a large attendance and games indulged in during the day were enjoyed.

CONDITION IS BETTER.

Lawrence Garsch, Who Suffered Fractured Skull, Is Improving.

Lawrence Garsch, of Pennsylvania, who was struck by a street car at Wallace and Lafayette streets Saturday night, suffering a fractured skull, is much improved at St. Joseph's hospital where he was removed in the police ambulance. His condition was regarded as critical at first, but he has rallied nicely since regaining consciousness Sunday afternoon.

KUROPATKIN, DEMOTED ONCE, NOW BIG MAN IN RUSSIAN DRIVE.

General Alexei Nicholaevitch Kuropatkin, demoted after the Russo-Japanese War, today is one of the biggest figures in the Russian Military family.

As commander of the right wing of the Russians he is pitting his military genius against that of Field Marshall von Hindenberg, the idol of all Germany, popularly called the "Man of Iron," and is making big gains.

General Kuropatkin has always disliked display of pomp or magnificence, striving in the very height of his power to maintain the moral standing of his troops. He considers it a natural act of duty for one in command to influence his army to a man by setting a good example in his own manner of living.

The general is noted for his just dealing. Merit and bravery alone are considered by him in cases of promotion.

From the Mohammedans, among whom he spent a long period of his life, he has acquired a touch of fatalism.

Although a wealthy man, Kuropatkin does not believe in the life luxurious. He lives the simple life of the soldier. He works hard and his theory is that thoroughness is the great essential to military success.

INTER-FAMILY ROW RELATED IN COURT

Alvin Wade Arrested for Disorderly Conduct on Complaint of Neighbor.

Until Friday night all the misunderstandings, and there were several, between the Wade and Hamilton families, living in the 1300 block on Burgess street, had been settled at home. Dogs, had been killed, the Wades lost some fence wire, the Hamiltons objected to trespassing and other things. It was only when Alvin Wade, 20, called Mrs. Hamilton some names she "could not stand" that an affidavit was filed.

According to the story told by many witnesses in police court Monday morning Wade rode his bicycle on the sidewalk in front of the Hamilton home. He almost struck one of the several Hamilton children playing on the walk, it was claimed. Mrs. Hamilton rushed from the house to talk things over with Wade.

Neighbors said there was loud talking and some profanity. Mrs. Hamilton had Wade arrested on a disorderly charge. Judge Kerr gave both of them a severe lecture. He continued the case until August 13. An outbreak on the part of either family before that date will mean punishment, Kerr said.

Earl Manier says he did not steal the Presto-lite tank from the motorcycle of Roy Langstaff, electrician, who lives on rural route No. 3. Manier says he bought the tank, which was found on his machine and which Langstaff identified, from a workman at the Rolling mills. The man Manier bought the tank from for $6, was dark complexioned and heavy set, Manier told in police court.

Langstaff lost the tank from his machine while in swimming at the outskirts of the city last week. Manier says he had been wanting a tank for some time and that his brother directed the man, from whom he bought the tank, to him. Manier is to bring his brother into court on July 28 when trial of the case will be continued.

Fined for Riding on Sidewalk.

Angelo Buanno, 20, was fined $1 and costs for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk along Bass street Saturday night. He refused to get off the walk when the patrolman yelled at him, it was brought out.

Judge Kerr has asked that all persons caught riding wheels on sidewalks in any part of the city, be brought to the station. Several children have been slightly injured during the past two weeks by cyclists who ride on the walks. The practice must be stopped as soon as possible, Judge Kerr ordered.

Woman Held for Loitering.

Mrs. Eva Burke, 40, charged with loitering, is held under $50 bond for trial on July 28. She was arrested in a feed barn on North Clinton street, Sunday morning. She was joining in a beer party with several men, it was charged. She said her home was in Columbia City.

Charged With Neglect.

George Shirey, 30, carpenter, charged with neglecting his small son, Alva, will have a further hearing on July 28. Shirey is held under $400 bond. He told the court he had refused to pay towards keeping his child because his wife had never treated him right. They separated a year ago. He is back seven weeks' payments ordered by the circuit court. He was told to bring a bondsman with him when he returns for hearing Friday.

Other Police Court Cases.

Joseph O'Neil, 30, charged with public intoxication, is in the St. Joseph hospital because he fell on the street Saturday night and broke his collarbone. He was placed under $25 bond for appearance in court as soon as he recovers.

Thomas Shaffer, farmer, who had been out of jail but a few weeks since sentenced on a drunk charge, was fined $75 and costs and sentenced to 30 days at the state farm when brought before Judge Kerr for the fifth time Monday.

Robert Richert, colored, who was drinking whisky, he said, because he had learned that his mother was bad sick in Philadelphia, was fined $10 and costs for being intoxicated Saturday night in the waitingroom of the Pennsylvania station.

Charles Wilson and Charles Bailey were each fined $5 and costs after being convicted on charges of intoxication. Rudy Leidsh, who gave Lafayette as his home, was fined $1 and costs on a drunk charge.

INDIANA PACER SETS THREE-HEAT RECORD

Cleveland, July 24.—In the greatest three-heat race ever staged the Indiana stallion Single G, Saturday won the free-for-all pace at North Randall, defeating the heavily-played Russell Boy and a high-class field. In winning he established a new world's record for three heats, beating the former world's record by three-quarters of a second. Three drivers felt the heavy hand of the judges for improper driving. The slaughter of the favorites continued, all four first choices falling by the wayside.

Russell Boy, $200, Single G, and R. H. Brett, $50 each, and the field $20 is a sample pool on the fast pace. Halboy made the early pace in the first heat, but the stretch battle was between Russell Boy and Single G, the former winning in 2:00¼. Russell Boy set the pace in the second round, Gosnell keeping Single G in behind, but in a desperate stretch drive the Hoosier sidewheler won, the time again 2:00¼.

R. H. Brett rushed to the front at the start of the third heat, but Single G and Russell Boy had the duel from the half. At the distance stand Russell Boy flew distress signals and Gosnell was looking over his shoulder at Murphy and taking his mount back at the finish in 2:01¼. The fastest previous heat race was won by Directum I at Syracuse in 1914, Frank Bogash, Jr., winning the first heat in 2:02¼ and the stallion the next two in 2:00.

The Tavern "steak" winner, Grand Chimes, 2:06¼, has been sold by Fred Edman to Bina Colt, of Mantua, O., for a reported price of $7,500.

At the close of the racing it was announced from the judges' stand that A. H. Rodney had been suspended for thirty days, John Fleming for ten days and Mart Wilson for six days for improper driving during the week. Summaries:

GENEROUS OPEN SPACES IN HARRISON HILL

Harrison Boulevard, the main thoroughfare of Harrison Hill, is destined to be one of residential districts which the citizens will be able to point to in pride, through the restrictions placed upon the buildings that will go up upon it. The Boulevard itself is 145 feet wide, and restrictions require that all residences be set back 75 feet on both sides of the street, which makes a total of 295 feet between the building lines on opposite sides of this beautiful avenue. To the average man this figure may not convey the fact that this space is equivalent to the distance between Calhoun and Clinton streets. In addition to this feature, the engineers who have layed out Harrison Hill have provided a grade line for every lot so that the whole boulevard when built up will take on a harmonious appearance. Harrison Hill lots are sold by Hilgemann and Schaaf, located in the North American Building, and full particulars regarding any of the other details of this addition may be secured from them.

NYMPH OF SAND DUNES MYSTERY NOW SOLVED

Woman's Revolt Against a Man-Ruled World Makes Mrs. Gray Hermit.

Chicago, Ill., July 24.—Revolt against a man ruled world is the solution of the Mystery of the Nymph of the Sand Dunes.

"I am Mrs. A. M. Gray. I was a stenographer in the University of Chicago. I found out that men stenographers were paid more than women. I quit and decided to go back to nature."

This was the simple explanation of the comely, dark haired woman of the dreary Indiana wastes. Yesterday her fame went broadcast as the Mystery Woman of the Hut in the sands.

Lake Plunges Draw Attention.

Fishermen had seen her white figure flashing in the waves as, twice a day, she took her plunge in the waters of Lake Michigan, where they chill with the winds of Canada or tempered by the breezes of the south.

Probably her privacy would never have been menaced had not women of the fisher folk objected to her nymph-like plunges twice a day in the lake. But they did object and yesterday a sturdy fisherman paid a visit to the hut of Mrs. Gray, feminist hermet.

Then the fisherman asked a few questions, hoping to get the woman's story, but she produced a revolver and bade him leave.

Fisherman's Wife Tells Story.

Mrs. Mathilda Burton, a fisherman's wife, who lives nearest to the shack, gave all the information she has concerning the mysterious woman.

"This Mrs. Gray, and we hardly believe that is her right name," she said, "has been a mystery around here for a long time. She has lived near here several years. Not until last winter did she make an abode in anything that resembles a human habitation. For years she lived in a wigwam beneath two great trees.

"She must have had a terrible time, with only the little shelter afforded by the wigwam, and it is wonderful that she has lived through the awful cold. It must have got so bad that she had to seek shelter, and when the fisherman who used to live in the shack up there left she went into his deserted hut.

She Keeps No Mirror.

"She wears her hair bobbed. She has no mirror and knows when her hair is growing too long only by the length of the shadow it casts on the ground. When she thinks it needs bobbing she cuts it by the shadow. Her winter dress consists of a short, coarse skirt, big boots, a ragged waist, and a little cap. In summer she wears just an old light dress and the ragged waist. She never wears shoes or stockings.

"She cooks outside her hut. She has a few boxes which she keeps scrupulously clean and uses for chairs and a table. She has a sort of fireplace, and her only utensils are an old coffee pot and a cup which she found on the railroad tracks.

"She says that when she was at the University of Chicago she grew discontented with the way things were run. She was always crazy about the lake and people would not let her go down in the night and swim."

Attorney Jesse MacBeth was in Delphi Sunday, where he addressed a large gathering of Odd Fellows. The occasion was the annual home coming.

How Florence A. Ballin, 1916 Sensation of Courts, DRIVES BACKHAND.

(The fourth of a series on tennis posed especially for The Sentinel by Miss Florence A. Ballin, of Bryn Mawr college, the 1916 sensation of tennis, hockey and basketball star.)

The average woman is weak on her backhand stroke because she neglects to practice and until she has gained confidence is content to meet every drive with a forehand stroke.

To get the best results in driving the body should be going forward as the stroke is executed. This produces the required speed.

Players who stand flatfooted when they drive or hit when leaning backward seldom get force or direction.

At first players complain they do not get a free motion when using the backhand. This is because the stroke brings into play muscles not accustomed to this use. In making the stroke face the plane of the ball with your right shoulder toward the net and your weight on the left foot.

Swing your racquet across your body as the ball approaches and shift your thumb to tighten the grip, then meet the ball before it reaches the top of the bounce.

As you follow your stroke through your arm will naturally straighten out until you find yourself resting on your right foot.

True, it is difficult to attain the same force with the backhand drive as with the forehand as the position of the arm and body is unnatural, yet a strong ball can be delivered and, with practice, sent to just the point you want it.

AMERICAN BUTTON EXPORTS DOUBLED

Branch of Industry Has Profited Vastly by War Abroad.

Washington, July 24.—The American export trade in buttons increased 79 per cent in 1915 as compared with the preceding year, and reports received by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, department of commerce, indicate that there are prospects of further expansion. Under normal conditions, all the world, except the United States and Canada, buys this class of manufactured articles from Austria-Hungary, Germany, France, Italy, England, Japan, and to a small extent from Spain. The United States manufactures enough to meet about nine-tenths of its own requirements and more than half the supply of Canada, which has some factories of its own. Under present conditions, however, with the hitherto largest sources cut off, all the button-using countries of the world, except the central European empires, must depend more or less upon the manufacturers of the United States, Japan, Italy and Spain, among which the United States is far the largest producer.

Consuls in every continent have joined during the past few months in a survey of the entire foreign field of the button industry, that they may be in a position to advise American manufacturers and exporters. They have studied the normal production of the countries in which they are stationed, special conditions that have changed the currents of trade, styles of buttons that are in demand, prices and terms that would interest local dealers, export channels that have been blocked, and the attitude toward American buttons. They have candidly stated their conclusions, and their reports, received at Washington, are now issued in a publication of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, "Foreign Trade in Buttons." The statements from many of these fields may be summarized in the constantly recurring idea: "If the manufacturers of the United States can make proper prices and terms, there would appear to be an excellent opportunity for extending the sale of American buttons."

It is believed by the bureau that the detailed information contained in these reports, showing the approximate size and the requirements of the markets in practically all the button-using countries of the world will be of material assistance to those who are engaged in the industry in the United States. Lists of importing houses, agents, and dealers were furnished by the consuls, and are printed in an appendix to the report. Samples of buttons in vogue in the respective countries were also forwarded and are made available for inspection by interested firms.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

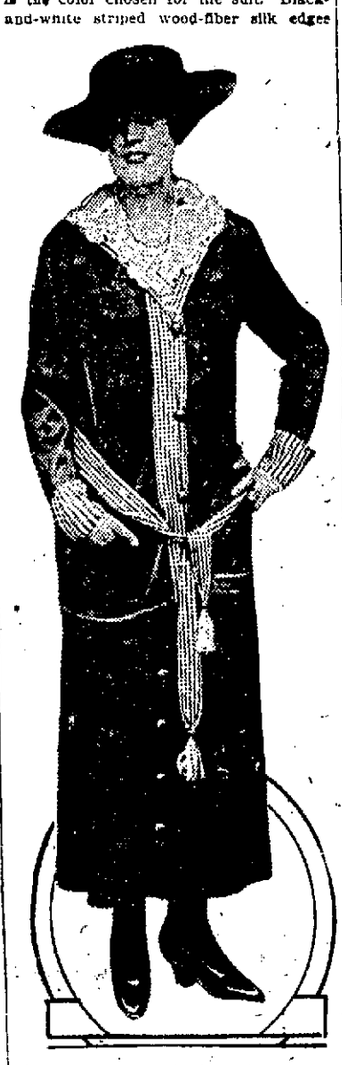
"QUEER" processes and preparations for cleaning white shoes are constantly being put on the market with the proud title of "best cleaner in the world," or "the utmost in shoe cleaners," or some other equally pretentious characterization; but in many cases the least elaborate method seems to be the best—for buckskin and nubuck shoes at least.

Experience proves that a stiff wire brush and a fine powder are effective. Begin by rubbing all stain thoroly with the brush, keeping the shoes dry; it will be found that few marks can withstand a wire-brush onslaught with much success. After the shoes have been well cleaned, wet them slightly and apply the powder with a felt spreader, so that it sticks to the material and restores its original immaculate hue. By using this brush instead of sponging the shoes the rough finish which is so essential in maintaining the appearance of newness is easily secured.

KNITTED SPORTS DRESS

WOOD-FIBER silk has long been used for the making of sweaters and sports blouses, but only recently has it been employed for the fashioning of skirts. That it proves its worth is shown in the suit here displayed. Peacock blue is the color chosen for the suit. Black-and-white striped wood-fiber silk edges



the square collar, the line of closing, and forms deep cuffs. Buttons covered with blue silk fasten the jacket and ornament the skirt.

FROCK OF TAFFETA AND SERGE

YOU may be considering the making of a frock which will do for street wear and which will do for the first days of fall. In that event you will be grateful for a look at one of the modes which bids fair to be popular during the coming season. It is made of dark blue taffeta, which has dots of self-color sprinkled all over it and of dark blue serge.

The frock has many interesting features, but perhaps the one which stands out most prominently is the cape collar which crosses in front and is buttoned to either side of the front panel. On many frocks the cape collar is detachable, allowing for pleasant changes. Taffeta forms the collar, while serge edges it. A piece of serge at the back of the collar is apparently held down with small black buttons.

The three-quarter-length sleeves of taffeta are finished with a band of serge and are cut without any intention to fit the arm.

FASHIONGRAMS

AN attractive combination of pink georgette crepe is laced up the sides with black velvet ribbon.

White ostrich plays an important part as a trimming. It finishes the collar, cuffs, bottom of coat and shaped tunic of a white satin suit. A blue satin vest gives an artistic touch of color to the suit.

AN IDEAL TEA SERVICE

IF you are looking for something different in a tea service, there is a very pretty one, which you probably have not seen, in a highly polished brown china. The three pieces—teapot, sugar bowl and cream pitcher—are included in the set. A very effective design of silver is traced on the china. For the afternoon tea this set is vey dainty and attractive.

A BLUE CHASER

IF you are ever depressed by having the blues and you feel that life holds nothing for you, just try to get rid of the blue devils by doing something worth while for some one else. This does not mean that you must spend money, the lack of which may be the cause of your depression. There are other gifts which are just as valuable, and yet their value cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Perhaps you can offer a kind word to some one. You may be able to assist some one with her work. Lending a helpful book will also bring happiness to your heart as well as to the person to whom you lend it. All of these things will help you to forget yourself, which, after all, is the secret of chasing the blues away. Some one has aptly said that "Happiness is not found in self-contemplation, it is perceived only when it is reflected from another."

SUMMER SMARTNESS FOR MISS SEVENTEEN

IN the season of brides and sweet girl graduates the younger sister in her teens is apt to be forgotten. Now mother, or whoever sews at home, must hurry and add a few dainty clothes to the depleted wardrobe of Miss Seventeen before she goes on her long-anticipated vacation.

A gingham dress, which is quite smart enough for street wear in the mornings, can be made from striped and plain gingham. The particular gingham chosen by the artists suggests a grouping of stripes, which is a trifle newer than stripes of equal width. A light tan background, with stripes of several colors, is an attractive pattern. Select, then, for the trimming either a plain gingham or chambray to match the background or one to match the stripes.

Dovetail points where the yoke joins in front, on the cuffs and where the pointed band is mitered at the sides add distinction to what would be a plain little frock. Contrasting buttons finish off these points. Another feature worth noticing is the odd arrangement of the sleeve and yoke in one. This is not a difficult thing to achieve, as it is almost an exaggeration of the raglan sleeve, with another yoke of the stripes set in at the shoulder.

For afternoon the young girl just dotes on organdie, a pretty flesh tint at that. The dear little shirtwaist frock pictured takes on airs from the pointed trimming of the self material which is added to the tucks and other untrimmed edges. This trimming can be made by stitching yards and yards of bias strips into half-inch bias bands, then by folding these bands in points and stitching along the edge to be trimmed, cutting off afterward the surplus material which will lie back under the edge. That is one way. Another is to make each little point from a separate triangle made from the bias strips. If mother helps with the pointed trimming, a girl could almost make this frock herself; it is otherwise so very simple. If desired, the pointed trimming could contrast with the frock, or tiny picoted ruffles could be substituted, or even a good quality of rickrack braid. Pearl or crocheted buttons are best. The hat for this frock might be made from a bit of the left-over organdie. It could be quite crownless, with a ribbon for a band and wired organdie for the brim.

The younger girl's evening frock is always more or less of a problem. She must have one if she ventures out of an evening for the most innocent dance, but it may not be a very formal frock. Here is a suggestion to be worked out in Georgette crepe in some pastel tint. Pleated ribbon edges the overskirt, underskirt and hip line, where a wire is hidden to give a slight bouffance. A soft crossed draping of the self-material or of the Georgette crepe in flesh color suggests fichu lines at the corsage. Flowers connect the narrow girdle across the front of the slightly raised waist line.

TAKE UP SWITCH.

Traction Company Will Save Much Expense at Bluffton as Result.

One of the switches at the corner of Market and Main streets in Bluffton was taken up Saturday by a gang of men employed by the ort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company. The traction officials declare the spur to the south was not needed and by removing it they will not be compelled to keep the greater pair of the intersection in repair. The traction company is bonding all of the steel rails at Bluffton where new brick is being put in.

James Whitcomb Riley.

Where is he gone? The lengthening miles
Have lured him to the afterwhiles
And there he fares down aisles of bloom
That thrill the air with their perfume;
Yet still his song forever sings—
This man who sang of common things.

Aye, he was brother to the brooks,
Had kinship with the forest nooks,
And caught the vibrant rhyme of truth
That lines the laughing lips of Youth;
Age found him not; his heart had wings—
This man who sang of common things.

The rose adrip with honey dew,
The silvered clouds against the blue,
The friendly trees, and wind-swept grass
Gave hail to him when he would pass;
His were the summers and the springs—
This man who sang of common things.

Deep-shrined within the homefolks' heart
Is held his simple, humble art
Which glorified the everyday
And gave us joy along the way
To free our souls of scars and stings—
This man who sang of common things.

The golden song of heaven is
A poem built of souls like his,
Whose gentle songs were fashioned of
God's light, and laughter, life and love.
Where is he gone? The lengthening miles
Have lured him to the afterwhiles.

Serious Trouble Likely if Blacklist Order is Enforced.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—The administration looks upon the recent British blacklist order as the most serious problem yet presented by the European war, not excepting the German submarine controversy.

Admission to this effect was made here by a high official, who expressed the fear that unless President Wilson is able to obtain a rescinding of the order within the next few weeks, the spirit of resentment may run so high in the United States it will be difficult to refrain from reprisals of a most serious nature or an actual break in the friendly relations with Great Britain.

Proves Britain's Stand.

The blacklist is looked upon by administration officials as only another example of Great Britain's disregard for American rights where those rights happen to clash with her war policy. If followed to its logical conclusion, according to the present view, the blacklist can be used not only to prevent trade between British subjects and the American blacklisted firms, but trade between other neutrals and the blacklisted firms, as well as trade between American firms themselves.

Gave U. S. No Warning.

The administration particularly resents the manner in which Great Britain announced the blacklist to the world. Although several of the blacklisted firms claim now they had evidence several months ago that they were being discriminated against, administration officials say that the United States was not advised in advance of Great Britain's intention to declare a blacklist.

It is the view here that the London government should have given this country some warning and should have permitted it to make some representations before the order went into effect. It is now the fear that the order having been promulgated Great Britain will decline to concede the American position in the protest which President Wilson will send shortly, and that the United States, as a result, will have to take measures to protect the blacklisted firms which may lead to a direct clash with England.

Look Up Precedents.

While the president has decided thus far to do nothing more than send a sharp protest, he has given orders to the state department to look up all precedents as well as all methods of offsetting the blacklist order, in case he finds the protest does not produce the result he seeks.

The president particularly wishes to discuss the matter with Ambassador Page at London. Mr. Page returns to this country next week, supposedly on a vacation. It is the general belief here, however, that he is coming to discuss with Mr. Wilson the British blacklist, the British point of view on the American note protesting against interference with the mails, and the British view of this country's attitude toward its blockade of Germany and the neutral European countries.

The latest information from London indicates that Great Britain will defend the blacklist, no matter what the United States says in opposition to it.

PLATT IS RESTING EASIER.

Homer Platt, residing near Uniondale, Wells county, who was brought to a local hospital because of loss of blood from bleeding gums, is reported as resting easier. The heroic act of a brother, Lloyd Platt, in furnishing blood by transfusion from his own body, helped restore the weakened man.

The United States agricultural department estimates the annual damage done to crops by the ravages of insects at $700,000,000.

The Old Colored Lady

Who asked the optician for reading glasses needed an education first and thought she could buy glasses to make her read. Many people who can read and should know better put off getting reading glasses. Close work or threading a needle gets hard—reading at night is a punishment yet they point with pride to the fact that they are nearly fifty and never wore glasses. Honestly, now, you couldn't blame the darky, but if this case hits you, let Meigs, in the Lyric Theatre Bldg., make your glasses and you'll admit yourself you were foolish to have put it off.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS A TRIPLE KILLING

Lake Forest Women, on Ride, Find Victims of Murder and Suicide.

Chicago, July 24.—Miss Marjorie C. McIntosh, of Lake Forest, and her guest, Miss Isabella Burrill, of Geneva, N. Y., yesterday discovered a triple death mystery on the grounds of the Onwentsia Country club.

They found the bodies of an unidentified man, a woman, and a baby, and a Lake county coroner's jury later said the man had shot his child, wife, and himself.

At 7 a. m. the two young women went for a canter over the Skokie valley. They rode west on their mounts until they came to the Onwentsia club's bridle path where it turns off of Deerpath avenue into what is known as the Jones estate. This is just across from the A. D. Dick home. The path here winds along the bank of the Skokie behind a fringe of underbrush.

Horse Shies; Tragedy Revealed.

When they had ridden about 200 feet down this path Miss McIntosh's horse shied. She looked to see what had frightened it and saw a man and woman sprawled on the grassy bank of the roadway.

"At first," said Miss McIntosh at the home of Franklin P. Smith, where she was playing tennis, "I thought they were asleep. And then—O dear, I never was so frightened in my life. We rode right up to the Onwentsia club and told the watchmen. We were all upset; it just spoiled the ride. I don't want to talk about it any more."

Identities Not Established.

Neither the police nor the undertaker were able to establish the identity of the dead parents and child. The nearest they could come to it was to get the initials of the dead man from his hat, which was sold by Baldwin in Flint, Mich. These initials are L. A. C. They were stamped in the band. Chief McGuire wired Flint for identification.

According to Miss Hannah Jensen, keeper of a boarding house at Lake Forest, who was one of the more important witnesses called at the inquest in the afternoon, the "L." in L. A. C. must have stood for Lloyd, because that was the name by which the woman called the man during the few days they stayed at her house at 88 Western avenue.

Couple Secretive.

"They came to my house last Thursday," said Miss Jensen, "and I never did know what their last names were. They didn't seem to want to tell much about themselves.

"The man was called Lloyd. I would say that he was about 25 years old. The woman was called Norma and she was about 20. She wore a wedding ring. The baby was Arthur and he was 6 months old, she said.

"They treated him just terrible, especially the man. The baby was nice and didn't cry any more than a baby should, but the other morning at breakfast the man quarreled with the woman about it and gave it an awful spanking.

"The man and woman were quarreling all the time, but it seemed to be chiefly about the baby."

On That Date Motion for New Trial Will Be Argued in Court.

Judge W. H. Eichhorn, of Bluffton, sitting in circuit court Monday morning, set August 18 as the last day on which the defense in the case of Henry P. Scherer, Wayne township trustee, charged with misappropriation of township funds, can file a motion for a new trial. The court's entry followed an argument of counsel in which the state, represented by Frank A. Emrick and Judge S. M. Hench, maintained that a motion for a new trial could be filed within the thirty-day period from the date of return of a verdict, just as well after a judgment of ouster had been entered as before. Scherer will continue in office until the court has passed on the motion for a new trial.

For Orderly Procedure.

In the interest of orderly procedure Judge Eichhorn said he would not enter judgment on the verdict until the defense had been given reasonable time in which to prepare its motion for a new trial. The court then said he would let the attorneys in the case determine what was reasonable time in the Scherer case. Harry Hilgemann, of counsel for defense, then asked that the court fix about Septem 1 as the final date on which motion for a new trial should be filed. Inasmuch as the fall term of circuit court convenes September 7 this request, the state held, meant the virtual fixing of a new trial motion date on the first day of the circuit court term.

Judge Hench Objects.

Judge Hench first objected to setting the date later than the time prescribed by statute and furthermore declared he would be absent from Fort Wayne August 27, attending a convention. Judge Eichhorn said he would, of course, be governed by the statute and could not set a new trial motion date later than August 18. Judge Edward O'Rourke had planned to be out of the city during a part of August and Mr. Hilgemann asked for more time for that reason.

Would Complicate, He Says.

Judge Eichhorn held that if he should enter a judgment of ouster now and later a new trial should be granted entitling Scherer to retain office, it would be necessary to take the successor of Scherer from office. This, he held, would complicate the workings of the office of the township trustee. Under the law Scherer is allowed to retain office until a motion for a new trial is overruled and a judgment of ouster on the verdict is rendered.

Scherer was not present in court Monday morning. He was at his office. Several attorneys listened to the proceedings and W. C. Schwier and Henry Wetzel, county commissioners, were present. The county commissioners have the appointive power in the matter of Scherer's successor. There are many candidates. Should the commissioners name the second highest man to Scherer in the vote count at the primary J. H. Stellhorn would be the appointee.

METCALF JURY UNABLE TO AGREE ON VERDICT

First Failure to Convict in Hamilton County Bank Cases.

Noblesville, Ind., July 24.—After being out thirty hours the jury in the case against R. H. Metcalf, charged with having accepted a check for $6,700 while president of the Farmers & Merchants' bank at Cicero and when, it is alleged, he knew the institution was insolvent, reported to Judge Cloe yesterday afternoon that it could not agree and was discharged. Nearly fifty ballots were taken. The last one stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal. Most of the ballots were two for acquittal and ten for conviction.

Metcalf and his friends consider the disagreement a victory. It is generally believed that Metcalf, who has been in jail here for nearly ten months, will be able to give bond and return to his home at Paint Lick, Ky. There are several other charges against him, but the opinion prevails that he may never be tried again.

The disagreement in the Metcalf case was the first in the four trials here resulting from the three bank failures in Hamilton county about a year ago. George Bowen, who was president of the Hamilton Trust company, of this city, until a short time before it was closed by the auditor of state, was the first convicted and sentenced to prison, charged with embezzlement. Edwin M. Hinshaw and John Luther Hinshaw, brothers, who controlled the Cicero bank until the reorganization by which Metcalf became its president, also were sentenced to prison. The convicted men are at liberty under bond, pending appeals to the supreme court.

Metcalf, who is less than thirty years old, has been the object of much sympathy. In his defense he attempted to show that he was led to enter the Cicero bank through misrepresentations of E. M. Hinshaw and that state bank examiners gave him reason to believe the bank was sound.

NEW GRAVEL WRECKS AUTO; WOMAN KILLED

Valparaiso, Ind., July 24.—Miss May Redman, 28 years old, of Chicago, was killed yesterday when an automobile skidded in loose gravel and turned over at Crocker, a little village in northwestern Porter county. Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Beimel and Mr. and Mrs Gus Anderson, of Chicago, the other occupants of the car, suffered minor injuries.

The Chicago party was en route to Michigan City for a day's outing. At Crocker, the machine struck a newly graveled road and was thrown into a ditch. Miss Redman was hurled against a fence post, dying instantly. Her neck was broken and she suffered a fracture of the skull.

Chicago Nickel Plates Shut Out by Cleary's Bunch of Ball Tossers.

The Blackbirds met and defeated the Chicago Nickel Plates by the score of 9 to 0 Sunday afternoon. The score seems to indicate a farce game but somebody's kidding you if that's the impression. The game was one of the fastest seen here this season, barring the first inning. The nine runs gathered by the Blackbirds in the first were life savers for the locals could do nothing but pop flies to the infielders or ground out the rest of the game. Bass started the fireworks by permitting walks and hitting men and filled the bases when "Monty" Hofer's pole over the fence cleared the field of so many men.

Somebody reached out with a long hook and Bass was yanked toward center field where Gollings was playing. Gollings had everything but was a few minutes in getting himself arranged. He had support that was astounding, nothing was too hot nor anything too far away to get. Had Gollings started first there is no doubt in the minds of the fans that they would have slept in the stands all night.

The "Grand Old Man," Cy Alberts, got away with some of the old Central league stuff in fine style, making them whiff on a number of occasions. Mike Freese took the burden in the seventh and finished out the game.

The team under the guidance of Captain Bill Hillinger is going with all speed for the top wide open. The attendance is increasing every day and the crowd yesterday topped anything the game has had so far this season.

MERRY LITTLE BEE BUZZED ALL ROUND

Bowsers Take First Game in Championship of Shop League.

It is known that there are quilting bees, sewing bees and honey bees, but not till last Saturday did it become known that there was such a thing as a baseball bee. This insect bit everyone at the game and caused the game to be played with the pep which would not have been in evidence had the nice little pepper box stayed away.

The Bowsers defeated the Turners by the score of 4 to 3 in one of the fastest games ever seen in League park. The game was the first in the elimination contest for the first half shop league championship. Next Saturday the Bowsers will play the Western Gas for the title and everything should give the fans a rip-snorter of a game.

Looked Like World Beaters.

But to get back to the game. The Turners started out like world beaters, grabbing off two runs in the first frame. Two were down in the first when C. Henry singled, scoring Lowe and Oberwitte scored later on a single by J. Henry. Then the Tankmen, not to be shaded, took advantage of the opportunity when Grimes walked Weberus. The Tank "flash" stole second, took third on an out and stole home. The Bowsers added another in the sixth when two were down, Hillinger singled, stole second and scored on DeVilbiss' hit. The club men were not at all bashful about throwing scares into everybody's lap and in the seventh Wichman got on base on an error and scored on Lowe's double to left.

The Tankmen sewed up the game in the seventh when Pequignot reached first on an error, advanced to second on Weberus's single and both romped home when Bartels' double rolled to the fence.

Peter Detrich hurled fine ball for the winners, keeping the seven hits well scattered. He had a worthy opponent in Grimes, the Turner sidewheeler. Both men pitched splendid ball.

In the sixth Pequignot made a fine stop of a sizzer, touched second and executed a neat double play.

BY HAROLD JOHNSON.

Miss Helen Murray, daughter of W. P. Murray, Cleveland millionaire, handled the reins when her father's two-year-old, Cord Axworthy, trotted a mile at North Randall in the world's record time of 2:18.

It wasn't the first time Miss Murray had driven a blue-blooded aristocrat of the light harness world, but it was her initial flier into the world's record class.

"But I'm not the person to tell about it," she said. "The colt just went around the track like sixty, tearing me along behind! That's all."

Miss Murray is slim and not very tall. Her cheeks and lips are healthy red and her face is so tanned her shining blue eyes and even white teeth seem extra brilliant.

"It was so wonderful—your setting a world's record. So perfectly splendid," said admiring women friends.

"Was it?" grinned Miss Murray. "I feel sort of famous, and I don't know whether I like it or not."

"I don't know a thing about real racing—not a thing," she stated.

"But I've loved horses all my life and have ridden them ever since I was a small child."

"MATTY WILL SUCCEED," DECLARES TY COBB.

Boston, July 24.—"I'm strong for Matty," said Ty Cobb when asked for his opinion of Christy Mathewson's fitness for his new birth as manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

"He'll be a success. He's tactful, knows baseball, and, above all, is a good balance wheel.

"What do I mean by a good balance wheel? I mean by that that Matty is a great steadying influence, and that he is one of those fellows who just can't help instilling confidence into his crowd. Confidence, the mental attitude, is 60 per cent of the game as I see it. So you see what it means to be a balance wheel.

"Now, Matty will need time in Cincinnati. But I'm sure he would not take the management of that team unless he had a chance to have enough time to make good. He may not be an immediate success, but he will eventually be a success.

"Of course, I like Matty. Who doesn't? I remember in that eighth game of the 1912 world's series I was rooting for Matty, yet I was rooting for the American league even more than I was for Matty.

"I never felt as sorry for a ball player as I was for Mattye after that game. But, as has always been the case, I was pulling for the American league to beat Matty.

"Any one who says I ever pulled against the American league team in a world's series isn't telling the truth."

NO MORE POP BOTTLES FOR FANS AT TOLEDO

Toledo, July 24.—The assault on Umpire Johnson at the local park yesterday will result in the elimination of the pop bottle according to plans underway according to Manager Bresnahan and other stockholders of the club it was announced last night. A paper substitute will be used it was said. Johnson was knocked unconscious by one of fifty or more bottles thrown from the stands when the spectators were dissatisfied with a decision which meant defeat for the home club. The arbiter left the hospital this morning with several stitches in the back of his head, where the missile found its mark.

Six shooters broke 99 targets and six more shattered 98 in the Ohio State championship event. On the shoot-off for first place M. S. Hootman broke 60 straight.

Indications are that there will be at least 60 women trapshooters among the entrants of the Grand American handicap in St. Louis in August. The fair Dianas have not turned out at state championships as well as expected, but they all promise to be at the blue-ribbon event.

F. W. Markham, of Toledo, O., won the Mallory Cup in the Indians' shoot at Cedar Point, O., with 49 breaks in 50 tries. M. S. Hootman and F. T. Fox also broke 49, but declined to oppose Markham in the shoot-off. In this tournament Fred Harlow, of Newark, O., had a run of 211.

In the Illinois state championship tournament one squad, comprised of Billy Hoon, Johnny Jahn, Mark Arie, L. B. Clarke and G. A. Graper, broke 493 out of 500 targets. Hoon broke 98; so did Graper and Jahn; Clarke smashed 99 and Arie 100.

Hand traps are getting to be so popular that many dealers are now hiring them out. Many parties do not wish to purchase a trap for two or three outings, and dealers, realizing this, now offer them to hire.

It is interesting to note that the first shooting done was at glass balls. Then came the first clay targets—the Ligowsky birds, which long since passed to the discard, and now would be objects of curiosity. After the Ligowsky target there was adopted in turn the American, Clay Bird, the Peoria Black Bird and the Blue Rock targets. It is safe to say that many of the present-day shooters never heard of the first three brands of targets mentioned.

HE OUGHT TO KNOW.

Sir Steven Orlowsky von Orlow, Ritter von Lubiz has tried his hand at every sport.

He is the star swimmer of the Detroit yacht and athletic clubs.

He also skips a catboat for the Detroit Yacht club.

He holds the pole vaulting record for Michigan, made in 1912, when he cleared the bar at 12 feet 9 1-4 inches.

He holds many tennis trophies won in Hungary, the country whence he gets his title of noble birth.

He played goal on a football team which was undefeated on the continent and in England for two years.

He is his native country's best fencer and will compete in this sport in the championship events next winter in New York.

He is a gymnast, having represented a Berlin university after winning several medals in competition.

He has won 155 medals in swimming in this country and abroad.

And besides all this he's married to the holder of the woman's swimming championship of the Caddilacqua, one of the greatest of lake swimming titles.

But with all his experiences in sport De Arlow, as he is known, says the palm goes to motor-boating, the most thrilling pastime under the sun. He attended the Interlake regatta at Put-in-Bay, where Miss Minneapolis, the sensational new power speed craft tore through the water at a 66½ mile an hour pace.

DRIVER WAS NOT A LICENSED CHAUFFEUR

Cornorer J. E. McArdle has returned a verdict in the cases in which Russell Pettit and Charles A. Hepker lost their lives. In the former case the coroner found in his investigation that the man in charge of the electric truck at the time Pettit lost his life, was not a licensed chauffeur.

In the Hepker case Dr. McArdle finds that the accident was unavoidable, and that it was partially due to the dangerous crossing. He recommends in his report that such steps as are necessary be taken to have the high bank at the intersection of the street and railway removed.

The Finding in Full.

The finding in full in the case of Russell Pettit follows: "I find that a ruptured abdominal aorta caused the death of Russell Pettit. The injury came as a result of being crushed between an electric truck and trailer at the plant of the Berghoff Brewing company on July 20. I further find that at the time of the said accident that the truck was being operated by one, A. R. Brown, who is not a licensed chauffeur.

Report in Hepker Case.

In the case of the accidental death of Charles A. Hopker, the coroner makes the following report:

"Injuries received as a result of a Fort Wayne & Northwestern railway interurban car striking an automobile in which decedent was an occupant, said accident occurring on the Harrison street crossing of said railway on July 5th. I further find that both the interurban car and automobile were traveling a a slow rate of speed and that said interurban car whistled for the crossing before approaching same. I further find that the said crossing is a very dangerous one owing to the fact that there is a high bank of ground just west of the street and north of the track which prevents persons coming from the north of Harrison street from seeing a car approaching from the west until they are within a few feet of the track. For the safety of the public using this crossing I would recommend that such steps as are necessary be taken to have this bank removed and the crossing rendered more safe for the traveling public."

TOWNSEND ASSAILS THE MOBILIZATION

Charges Guardsmen Were Sent to Border Under False Pretenses.

Washington, July 24.—Charges that the national guard was sent to the Mexican border under false pretenses were made by Senator Townsend today during debate on the army appropriation bill. He urged that the military forces not in actual service ought to be sent home.

"It now is apparent to everybody that the national guard is not going to Mexico and they were mobilized under false pretenses," said the senator. "Diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Mexico discloses that there never was any intention of sending them into Mexico."

Heavy reduction in army bill items made Saturday were not continued today. A reaction of sentiment apparently had set in. Several senators urged that retrenchment should not be carried too far because of the present favorable aspect of the Mexican situation and a proposal to cut in half a $5,000,000 appropriation for small arms drew protests from Senators Cummins, Jones, Townsend and others.

"There can be no mistake in appropriating liberally for the manufacture of small arms," said Senator Jones. "We read of improved conditions on the border, but notwithstanding this an outbreak may occur almost any moment that will make it necessary for us to send more soldiers into Mexico." The senate, however, by a vote of 25 to 23 agreed to cut the appropriation to $2,500,000. Senator Reed insisted a majority did not know what they were voting for and gave notice he would ask for another vote when the bill got out of the committee of the whole.

SEARCH FOR SHARPERS.

Michigan City Police After Men Who Victimized Farmer Jones.

Michigan City, Ind., July 24.—Search for information which might result in the arrest of men who induced Frank Jones, a farmer, of Manchester, Mich., to sell his farm for $6,000 and "invest" it in a scheme by which he could win $60,000 was continued today. Jones reported to the police yesterday that his $6,000 was gone and he feared his chances of winning also had vanished. Jones was a patient in a Battle Creek hospital when he met the men. They gave the names of Jones and Taylor.

HIGH DIVER BADLY HURT.

William Rae Has Slight Chance to Live After Accident.

Jeffersonville, Ind., July 24.—William Rea, 23, a high diver, was injured seriously late last night when he failed to make a proper turn during an eighty-five foot jump into a net. He fell on his head and shoulders. It was said today he had slight chance to recover.

MUST SEE PROSPECT OF AGREEMENT ON IT

No Irish Bill Without Indication That It Will Be Approved.

London, July 24 (2:06 p. m.).—Premier Asquith today told John Redmond, leader of the Irish nationalists, in the house of commons that the British government did not propose to introduce an Irish bill in regard to which there did not appear to be the prospect of a substantial agreement by all political parties.

Mr. Redmond obtained leave to move the adjournment of the house in order "to call attention to the rapidly growing unrest in Ireland owing to the fact that the government did not propose to carry out in entirety the terms submitted for the temporary settlement."

Mr. Redmond asked amid nationalist cheers whether the government had decided to depart from the terms of the agreement arrived at by the Irish party and based upon the proposals made by the secretary of war, David Lloyd George; whether the government had determined to insert in the bill new proposals at variance with the agreement without consulting the nationalists, and whether the premier had received any intimation that a bill so framed would be vigorously opposed by the nationalists.

Premier Asquith in reply pointed out that the agreement was subject to the approval of any revision by the cabinet. Two main points, he said, had emerged from the agreement and these had been accepted by both sections of the cabinet, unionists and home rulers. The unionists, the premier said, influenced very largely by the attitude of Mr. Redmond, had agreed that home rule should be brought in to immediate application while the home rule section had agreed that the six Ulster counties should not be brought in without their consent.

MAY REFUSE APPEAL IN CASEMENT CASE

London, July 24.—(12:30 p. m.)—Sir Frederick E. Smith, the attorney general has intimated to Roger Casement's solicitors that he is unable to grant his fiat which would enable Casement's appeal against the death sentence passed on him for high treason in connection with the Dublin rebellion to be carried to the house of lords.

ADVERSE TO EXECUTION.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—Through official sources in Washington the British government has been informed that much public opinion in America is adverse to the execution of Sir Roger Casement. There have been no formal requests from the United States government for a pardon or commutation of sentence. There are intimations, however, that conditions at present indicate that clemency will be shown.

HEALEY PUTS CHICAGO REDS UNDER A WATCH

Chicago, July 24.—Chief of Police Healey, in an attempt to discover whether the plans for the anarchist explosion at San Francisco, during the preparedness parade, was conceived here, issued a special order today that all anarchists and persons seen lately at anarchist meetings be kept under surveillance.

For a week or more police stenographers have been attending anarchist meetings taking down what the speakers say. These utterances, shown to Chief Healey, brought today's order. State's Attorney Hoyne today began an investigation into the illegal importation into the state of dynamite and other explosives.

DEFENSE STILL AFTER YOUNT.

Seeks to Discredit His Testimony in Muncie Case.

Muncie, Ind., July 24.—When the trial of Mayor Rollin H. Bunch, charged with conspiracy, was resumed in the Delaware circuit court today, interest was centered in whether he will take the witness stand in his own behalf. It was said he probably will do so early this week. The case is expected to end about the middle of the week. The witnesses called today were questioned as to the reputation of Lloyd Yount, one of the state's chief witnesses. The defense by its witnesses is attempting to discredit the testimony given by Yount.

LEAGUE CHARTERS CAR.

Woman's Loyal Society Will Spend Tuesday in Huntington.

The Woman's Loyal league of this city has chartered a special car to Huntington Tuesday, July 25. The league will leave at twelve o'clock and will stay in Huntington until the initiation work is completed. J. A. Greenland, of the traction company, states that there will be a number in the party. Mrs. Edward Smith, 3419 Broadway, has the arrangements in charge, and all those of the league who intend to go should make arrangements with her for the trip. The Fort Wayne ladies will be entertained in Huntington and after the work will return to this city.

ARMY OF TORRID RAYS CAMPS IN FT. WAYNE

Heat Minions from Hostile Fire Land Are Sent Among Citizens.

Fort Wayne lost its "pep" Sunday. It ambled along the shady side of streets. It lingered beneath the spreading branches of park trees. It read the papers in its stocking feet. It was too hot to maintain its business reputation.

Both on Sunday and Monday the heat record for the summer was equaled. Each day the mercury, resting in the shade at the weather station, climbed to 93 degrees. That is ten degrees better than "Old Sol" was going a year ago this time.

There were several near heat prostrations Monday. Two women were rendered slightly ill at the transfer corner during the morning. Horses working on the streets, which hurled the burning rays into their faces, suffered from heat. Business blocks seemed to be playing a game in which they battered the scorching fireballs from one office window to another. Electric fans, catching up the scorched air, afforded little relief.

Business men took on the "I don't care" attitude about their dress. Handkerchiefs were tucked about collars, coats were off, sport shirts of last year's model were in evidence. The desire for a degree of comfort crowded out style.

Many offices were completely deserted. The heads of the establishments were out looking after "affairs." In reality they had joined the congress of heat sufferers who assembled in the parks to keep cool. Street cars to Robison park were crowded during the afternoon, the record attendance of the year being rivaled. Swinney park was well filled with people.

The parks were literally jammed on Sunday. Thousands of Fort Wayne citizens slept out doors Sunday night. Front and back porches nearly all held a few heat sufferers.

There is slight relief ahead. Monday night will be cooler. Tuesday will be fair, but may be slightly cooler.

Traffic Is Heavy.

J. A. Greenland, general passenger and freight agent for the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, stated Monday that traffic Sunday on the interurban lines to and from Fort Wayne was unusually heavy. Saturday and Sunday the cars carried almost their capacity on almost every trip. The cars Sunday were rushed all day to make their schedule times.

The city lines were also busy Sunday, many people traveling to the various parks or other places in search of a cool spot. It is estimated that 6,500 people were hauled to Robison park.

URGES SCHOOL HOUSE REPAIRS BY SEPT. 11

In a letter to D. O. McComb, county superintendent of schools, Charles M. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction, asks that the Allen county school head direct repair and cleaning up of all county schoolhouses through the office of the township trustees before the opening of county schools Sept. 11. A report on the condition of all schoolhouses in the county will be asked for file by the state school head before school opens in the fall.

Basements must be cleaned and also whitewashed after debris is removed. Desks must be put in proper order, redressed and varnished, if necessary. Libraries must be inclosed in study rooms in good cases and locked. All concrete floors should have two coats of concrete paint, and floors should be scrubbed and desks washed.

EXTEND GREETINGS TO POPE.

Collecting Agents of Prudential Threaten to Tie Up Business.

New York, July 24.—Two thousand collecting agents of the Prudential Life Insurance company went on strike today. The walkout followed a spirited mass meeting here at which it was said the strike would tie up the company's collecting business as far west as Chicago unless the men's terms were met.

Chief among the grievances named was the refusal of the company to confer with the men. Officials of the International Insurance Agents' union which is only two weeks old, declared that the failure of the Prudential company to reinstate fifty agents here and about half that number in Philadelphia who were discharged for organizing the union would likely result in the calling out of collecting agents in cities in the east and middlewest.

SUFFRAGE BEFORE PARTY, SAY WOMEN

Washington, D. C., July 24.—A delegation of women suffragists called upon President Wilson today to tell him a large number of women voters were waiting to decide for whom they will vote and wanted to know how he and Charles E. Hughes, the republican nominee stood on the Susan B. Anthony constitutional amendment for nation-wide woman suffrage. The president did not commit himself.

Members of the delegation have already seen Mr. Hughes and other women affiliated with them plan to see him again. They declared that the great majority of women voters in western states will vote for the candidate who definitely commits himself to the federal amendment.

The women today said they desired to vote the democratic ticket but put suffrage before party.

Taxi Traffic Will Be Only Subject Before the Council Body.

The city council, assembled as a committee of the whole, will warm up Monday night on what it hopes to be the final discussion of the jitney law. A special meeting of the council as a committee has been called to receive the report from the five men who have reconstructed the first taxi ordinance.

The code as drawn up by the last committee will provide for an annual license fee of $50, but no cash bond for jitney drivers. It will establish regular runs for the automobiles and force the drivers to keep a schedule. It demands that jitney operators work seven hours a day. It will establish a special traffic officer to be paid from the license dues.

Representatives from the jitney operators are expected to attend the session of the big committee.

WILL TURN TO RIGHT.

All automobiles and other vehicles will be ordered by traffic officers to stay to the right at the approach of all downtown crossings.

Pedestrians will no longer be governed by the warning on police semaphores. The public is supposed to know that traffic ordinarily turns to the right. Those who walk will be expected to look out for their own safety at the corners and not wait for the word "go" at the crossings, the committee has decided.

FLOWER-DECKED CRYPT FOR REMAINS OF POET

Indianapolis, July 24.—Instead of placing the body of James Whitcomb Riley in a bleak vault it will rest in a flower-decked and decorated crypt. Rugs will be placed on the floor, and flowers will be so arranged as to take away the dismal appearance of the ordinary vault.

The decision to follow that plan was reached today by the executive committee of the committee of 100 which planned and carried out the arrangements for the Riley celebration Oct. 7, 1915.

The pallbearers to act at the funeral of the poet had not been selected this afternoon. Several of his intimate friends were asked to serve as a committee to assist in naming the pallbearers. The selection will be made from men who knew Mr. Riley intimately.

The wireless apparatus at the college has been disturbed during the last few days and this is attributed to some connection between the magnetic currents of the earth and the sun-spot activity.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

Knitting Mills Head Said to Be After Cargo of Deutschland.

Although the nature of the cargo of the German submarine Deutschland has been kept pretty much of a mystery ever since the strange craft entered the Baltimore harbor, it is practically certain that she carried dyestuffs and other chemicals to be distributed in this country, and it is barely possible that the Wayne Knitting mills may receive a share of the badly needed coloring matter.

Theodore F. Thieme, president of the company, is now on a trip through the east, making the fall purchases for the mill. While it may be that his trip has no significance in connection with the arrival of the steamer Deutschland, it would be no surprise if some of the dyestuff brought over by the submarine should eventually be consigned to the local factory. The officials at the mill stated this morning, however, that they were not aware that Mr. Thieme's trip to the east was for that purpose.

The nature of the cargo of the Deutschland has not as yet been ascertained for a certainty. It is now being held in the customs house at Baltimore, and is said to be consigned to a Mr. A Schumacher, of Baltimore, who will make arrangements to distribute it to American manufacturers. The dyestuff is in concentrated form and will probably have to be diluted before being used. It is because of this uncertainty in regard to the nature of the dyes and chemicals brought over that the Wayne Knitting mills officials are as yet in the dark as to whether the local factory will receive any of the cargo.

AT INDIANAPOLIS.

Eight-Hour Day Demonstration Staged Yesterday.

A great demonstration was made Sunday at Indianapolis in favor of the eight-hour working day for trainmen. S. Habecker, of the Nickel Plate; R. E. McNally, of the Wabash; R. A. Puff, of the Pennsylvania, and P. Collins, of the Nickel Plate.

At 1:30 a big parade was held, in which thousands of railway employes took part, representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; Order of Railway Conductors; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. After the parade a mass meeting was held in Tomlison hall. The delegates to the convention represented all sections of the country and it is thought that this demonstration will be very effective in the movement for the eight hour day.

CLOGGED LIVERS MAKE TIRED, NERVOUS PEOPLE

A Wineglassful of Tollo Water Before Breakfast Cleans Out the Bile and Gives Relief in Half an Hour.

Thousands of tired, nervous, run-down people have been built up by drinking a wineglassful of Tollo Water every morning. It has the property of cleaning the liver and restoring it to normal activity.

Tollo Water is concentrated and bottled at Dawson Springs, the famous Kentucky health resort. Get a 15-cent bottle from any drug store and derive all its benefits in your own home.

Stop taking Calomel and drugs that salivate, gripe and sicken. They are dangerous and their effect is only temporary. Tollo Water is nature's liver and bowel cleanser. It flushes and bathes the bowels and stomach in thirty minutes. Its action is mild and pleasant. It stimulates the liver to do its work and relieves constipation in a natural way.

When your liver is natural and unobstructed all the waste matter is carried out of your body and your food enters a clean, sweet stomach from which the nourishment is sent to every tired, nervous muscle.

An occasional Tollo Water Liver bath will keep the bowels regular and the whole system strong and healthy.—Advertisement.

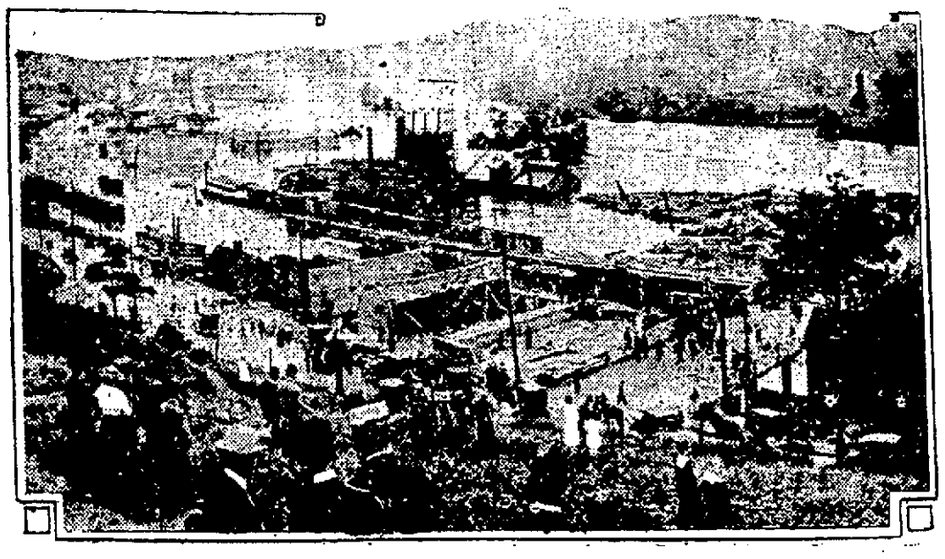
FLOOD ISOLATES CITY FROM REST OF THE WORLD.



Torn from the world by the Carolina floods, Asheville, N. C., was in darkness and without ordinary transportation facilities. Factories and other buildings, as shown in the picture, are floating down stream. The gas and electric plants and railroad yards were flooded. Families have been driven from their homes.

The property loss will run into the millions. Asheville bears the brunt of the disaster. Other towns in the territory were wrecked.

Case of Ohio Guards Typical of Entire Nation's Militia.

Columbus, O., July 24.—About 10,000 citizen soldiers are in one huge camp here and Uncle Sam cannot use a single one of them!

This staggering fact confronts an investigator at Camp Willis, where the national guard of Ohio is concentrated. The same fact can be discovered at almost any state camp in the country. The Ohio camp is taken as an example because of its size and central location.

The great tented city here is a living example of the reasons the national guard cannot "rush to arms," why state militia never has been able to get into any fight quickly, why citizen soldiers under state control never will be able to reach the efficiency the nation blindly expects its defenders to attain.

To the civilian visitor, Camp Willis seems ideal. It is high and dry, has real sewers, running water, shower baths and electric lights. There are never more than half a dozen men in the hospital tent at a time.

"Isn't it perfectly wonderful!" exclaimed a girl who saw the great camp for the first time. "All these men ready to fight for their country!"

She should have said "willing" not "ready." There is not one among thousands of militia boys who are not patriotically willing to give his life for the flag, but the tedious process of "mustering in" stands between him and real service, not to mention the drill and other training he must undergo after Uncle Sam has accepted him.

It is the mustering of troops from state service into federal service that shows up the defects of the whole state-controlled national guard system. Every officer and man from the brigadier general to the rawest rookie must pass under the eye of the federal surgeons. Until every man of every company has been thus examined a regiment cannot be transferred from state to federal service—in other words, cannot become a part of the national fighting force.

Until a regiment is mustered in it cannot get the government equipment it so sorely needs. Its recruits must drill in clothing totally unfit for wear at camp, in civilian clothes or such nondescript military togs as they have managed to pick up.

All day long lines of men pass through the surgeons' shacks where the "sheep" are separated from the "goats." And all day long there is a line in front of the paymaster's office where the "goats"—the physically unfit—receive money to take them back home.

If these men had been given a real physical examination when they enlisted in the guard the tedious process of re-examination would not be necessary. If the federal surgeons could trust the accuracy of national guard physical tests, mustering in would become a mere ceremony to be dispensed with in a day or so.

But the United States army surgeons do not trust the guard, they know that for years national guard organizations have accepted thousands of men below the physical standard. These must be weeded out before the troops become a part of the federal service. This weeding out process is long and tedious, and in the meantime the rest of the nation wonders why it takes our troops so long to get busy.

It is a simple matter to give a man the United States army physical tests. Almost any one can do it—certainly any physician is competent. If these tests were applied to all national guard recruits when they first enlisted the United States army surgeons would not demand a re-examination.

But they have no right to demand that the state surgeons apply the tests thoroughly. The national guard surgeons are answerable to the state authorities and not to the federal authorities.

Until the citizen forces are taken out of the hands of the states this condition will always exist.

A woman can do a tremendous amount of good when she tries. Here is an instance and there are many such. Mrs. F. F. Smith, Gloversville, N. Y., writes: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what Chamberlain's Tablets have done for me and for many others that I have told about them. For over three years I have been troubled with my liver and have been under the doctor's care most of the time. I have tried many other medicines, but have not found anything that helped me as much as Chamberlain's Tablets." Obtainable everywhere. —Advertisement.

THE BEST DIARRHOEA MEDICINE.

"A customer came into my store the other day and said to one of my clerks, 'Have you anything that will cure diarrhoea?' and my clerk went and got him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and said to him, 'If this does not cure you, I will not charge you a cent for it.' There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BODY IS LAID AWAY WITH MILITARY HONORS

Funeral of Private Floyd Wolf Was Attended by Many Veterans.

The body of Private Floyd Wolf, member of Company E, who was drowned at Llano Grand, Tex., while in the service of the United States, was laid away in Lindenwood cemetery, Sunday afternoon, with military honors. Hundreds of veterans of many wars and comrades of Company E and members of other military organizations united in paying the last tribute to the boy-soldier.

The funeral cortege moved from the residence, 1026 East Wayne street, to the First M. E. church, where it was met by the G. A. R. veterans, Spanish War Veterans, Sons of Veterans, members of the newly organized Company D and ex-members of Company E.

Following the services at the church where a quartet of the W. R. C. rendered several beautiful selections and an impressive sermon by Rev. D. H. Guild, the procession moved slowly towards Lindenwood headed by the Electro-Technic band in charge of Gart Shober.

The line of march in Lindenwood was bordered by hundreds of spectators who watched in silence as the flag-draped casket was being borne to its last resting place. A squad of ex-members of Company E fired three volleys of shots over the casket and Trumpeters Harry Weisbecker and Charles Fesselman, of the United States regulars, sounded taps.

BETHMANN HOLLWEG HAS LIVELY FOES

Reichstag Session Which Has Just Closed Made Fact Very Clear.

Berlin, June 30.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—The reichstag session just closed was marked by interesting developments in the relations between the government and the various political parties. One result was to bring out more sharply than hitherto the opposition of the conservatives to Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg.

The conservatives represent the old aristocratic traditions of Prussia, and their social and political influence is so great that they usually succeeded under previous chancellors in shaping the course of the government. They have ever taken the lead in opposing all socialist and democratic tendencies in the state; and before the war one of their chief lines of policy was war upon the socialists as an element dangerous to the monarchy and the present order of society. Since the war has been in progress, however, the government has quite changed its attitude toward the socialists. The chancellor has steadily acted in the spirit of the emperor's declaration, made just as the war was about to begin, that henceforth he knew no parties, but only Germans.

The loyalty with which the socialists have stood by the government and helped to fight the country's battles has been more than once recognized by Bethmann-Hollweg in his speeches in the reichstag, and he has clearly admitted this fact must lead to some political readjustments after the war is over. This has never pleased the conservatives. But the chancellor has gone on his way making friends of the socialists and inviting their support for government measures. The conservatives looked on coldly at all this, for they saw that their best argument for keeping the government rigidly conservative was being wrested from their hands.

Besides this, the conservatives have taken offense at the government's taxation policy. They are fully committed to the view that the empire must collect its revenue taxes through indirect taxation, like customs duties, and internal revenue taxes of various kinds. Especially do they urgently insist that direct taxes—income, general property and inheritance taxes—should be reserved for the federal states. The huge problem, however, of raising revenues to pay interest on the war debt, to pay pensions, and meet other expenses growing out of the war, cannot be solved without resorting to direct taxation—there are not enough indirect taxes in reach to meet the requirements of the situation. Hence along with the various indirect taxes proposed this spring by the government was a direct tax on war profits. In working out the details of collecting this tax, however, it was found by the budget committee that it would be practically impoossible to distinguish between profits due to the war and profits not due to it. Hence an all-round property tax of one mill on the dollar was proposed by the committee and accepted by the government. Some of the conservatives finally voted for the tax, but their two leaders, Count Westarp and von Heydebrand, voted against it to the bitter end. In this, curiously enough, they found themselves alone with the small group of socialists who split off from the main body of the socialists last March.

In the debates on these tax measures and on the press censorship the conservatives were very severe in their criticisms of the government and of the chancellor. They resent it in particular that their newspapers were not permitted to say what they pleased about the United States in the height of the submarine controversy between Washington and Berlin; neither can they forgive the chancellor for having yielded in modifying the form of submarine warfare.

Several days ago the chancellor spoke with unusual passion in exposing the false statements put forth in an anonymous pamphlet written to attack him, a pamphlet evidently emanating from conservative quarters; and he also had some sharp things to say in replying to another pamphlet by Herr Kapp, an influential conservative politician. These pamphlets made the impression upon the country that the conservatives were beginning a systematic campaign for the overthrow of Bethmann-Hollweg. Some of the national liberals are also dissatisfied with the chancellor and are known to sympathize with these attacks upon him. In proportion, however, as the ultra-national elements turn away from the chancellor he is finding all the warmer support from the other parties in the reichstag, including the old socialist party. It was a curious unwonted spectacle, during the chancellor's speech of June 6, to see the conservatives listening with mute dissent, along with the seceding socialists, while all the other parties in the house applauded him to the echo.

When man breathes he uses his muscular strength to draw in the air and it is afterward forced out automatically. With insects, as a German investigator has just discovered, this process is just reversed.

GUAYMAS A PORT OF VAST IMPORTANCE

West Coast Mexican Point Scene of American Warship Exploit.

Washington, D. C., July 24.—Guaymas, the scene of a reported exploit of the American cruiser Cleveland in releasing the steamer Sonora recently, is described in today's National Geographic society bulletin as the port of second importance on the Mexican west coast.

"As the chief outlet of the wealthy state of Sonora, Guaymas is a seaport of vast possibilities," says the bulletin, "for it has a naturally fine harbor, affording anchorage in its present little improved condition for vessels drawing from fourteen to twenty feet of water.

"The Southern Pacific railway, of Mexico, running through the state capital, Hermosilla, connects Guaymas with the American border city of Nogales, 230 miles to the north. This road's extension along the coast to the south has been retarded greatly by the political conditions, and according to the company's report the losses on account of interruptions to traffic from the beginning of the Madero revolution to June 30, 1913, amounted to $3,000,000 (gold).

"Guaymas is not a pleasant place in which to live at this time of the year, for from July to September (the rainy season), the atmosphere is hot and muggy. The winter climate is very agreeable, however. The town stands on an arid peninsula, back of which rise hills 1,500 feet high which serve as giant heat reflectors. To overcome this, many of the houses have extraordinarily thick walls, like many of the homes in the hot countries of the near east.

"There is excellent fishing for the visitor to Guaymas, the big Colorado river salmon being especially plentiful, while lobster-spearing is one of the popular sports. It is not a safe bathing resort, however, on account of the sharks which infest the waters.

"Mazatlan, some 400 miles to the southeast of Guaymas, is gradually forging ahead of the latter city, due largely to the fact that it is much nearer to the American ports of the Pacific coast. Steamers loading at Mazatlan save the long voyage up the Gulf of California. According to the latest available figures of Mexico's foreign commerce, Guaymas showed a decrease of half a million dollars in imports compared with the preceding year, while Mazatlan's loss was only half as much, whereas in exports Mazatlan gained more than a million dollars and Guaymas remained practically stationary. Guaymas received a little more than one-fifth the total imports of Mexico's Pacific ports, and is slightly surpassed by Mazatlan. Less than one-fifth of the export trade is controlled by the more northerly port, while Mazatlan enjoys nearly a fourth of it. Three years previously the trade percentages of the two ports was reversed.

"Consular offices are maintained in Guaymas by nine foreign countries—the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Norway, Honduras and Bolivia."

THREE DOCTORS FIGURE IN SHOOTING—ONE CLAIMS WRONG IS AVENGED.

Dr. Atwood said, according to the police, that he and Dr. Adams were engaged and that he learned from her just before she died after swallowing poison, that Dr. Harris had placed a barrier between them and happiness.

The police say Dr. Atwood stated he went to Dr. Harris' office with a revolver and razor; and when he found persons in the office he gave up the idea of cutting and fired three bullets at Dr. Harris. At Emergency hospital physicians hold little hope Dr. Harris will recover.

THE NEW TRANS-ATLANTIC SUBMARINE

Product of German Ingenuity, Designed to Replace Vast Fleet of Merchant Vessels Which Plied Between Two Countries Before War Began and British Warships Stopped Trade.

FROM Cuxhaven to New York—one of the longest distances across the Atlantic Ocean from Europe to North America—is a trip that, at this writing, is being undertaken by the smallest ocean liner that ever took a cargo aboard. She is a submarine, the product of German ingenuity and necessity, and is designed to take the place, to her limited capacity, of the vast fleet of merchant vessels that plied back and forth between the two countries when the world was at peace.

Several of these little liners, or gigantic submarines, which ever one prefers to call them, have been built, according to press dispatches. The one under way is 400 feet long, with a surface speed of eighteen knots, and with sufficient fuel capacity to carry it 6000 miles. It is an oil burner, the latest type engines have been installed, and it is armed only with two small guns, "for defense purposes only." The complement of men, necessarily, is small; in fact, the entire crew would not furnish enough stewards for the ordinary Atlantic liner.

That the scheme of carrying mails and valuable products between the two countries in these boats is practical and could be made profitable to the owners, presumably the German Imperial Government, is conceded generally by all authorities on the subject of maritime transportation. While the cargo space is exceedingly limited and the trip would require several weeks, it is believed that the high cost and great demand for certain products in each country would make it possible to charge enormously high rates for tonnage, while at the same time the cost of operation would not be excessive.

What advantages could not the German Government have by establishing direct communication with the United States? The fact that the papers of German representatives have been seized a number of times by British authorities, points to the conclusion that valuable information may have been placed in the hands of an enemy by the fact that such communication as exists has been subject to surveillance by the British. The establishment of direct communication, by eliminating this feature of existing conditions would enable the German representatives and agents in this country to forward information that cannot be trusted to mails going through neutral countries, or to wireless codes.

The need of gold is one of the greatest in Germany. The only place that she can obtain a supply of the metal is in the United States, or from some of the neutral countries of Europe. The European neutrals, in most cases, are hard pressed themselves for credits, which are based on gold, and those that have gold to spare, probably have too much respect for the power of the allies to aid the Teutons any in this respect. The United States, however, has gold; also, she needs German products, and is willing to pay enormous prices for some of them.

Chemicals and drugs form the bulk of these needs. Small amounts of drugs and dye-stuffs will replenish the supplies in this country, and such quantities can be transported on the submarine. One point that is worthy of note is this: The fewer pounds of any product that Germany sends to the United States, the greater will be the price paid for them until after the ending of the war. Then, with the great jump in importation that is certain to take place, a great dropping in prices can be expected. Germany, by getting even small quantities of her exclusive products to this country while the war lasts, can reap enormous profits, which will be of material aid to her in paying the enormous cost of the warfare and the equally tremendous sums that will have to be expended at the restoration of peace in re-establishing normal conditions.

There are certain products that Germany has equally great need of, and which she has been unable to obtain because of the British blockade of her coasts and inspection of imports in neutral countries adjacent to Germany. These will constitute the return cargoes of the submarines—always providing that they are successful in reaching the ports of the New World—and it is likely that Germany will be able to obtain some products of which she has had need to assist her in carrying on the war; for, while synthetic imitations of most of the necessities have been developed by the scientists of that country, the demand for the originals still exists.

The arrival of the merchant submarine at a United States port, according to experts on international law who have discussed the question, is likely to develop several questions of international procedure that may involve the United States in disputes fully as grave as that with Germany over the sinking of unarmed merchantmen without warning.

First of all, it will be necessary to prove that the ships are strictly merchant vessels. This question, however, need not cause any great trouble, according to those who have considered the question, for it will be easy to demonstrate that the submarines are not equipped with torpedo tubes and that they actually carry cargo. This point being established, the vessels will be entitled to remain in any United States, or other neutral port, for such length of time as is necessary for them to discharge and take on cargo and supplies. It will also entitle them to take such provisions and fuel as they need to make a voyage, and to make any repairs that may be required on the machinery or hull of the vessel.

Next will come the question of the two guns which are said to be mounted on these boats "for defense purposes only." This question already has been considered and decided in the cases of certain Italian and British liners which entered United States ports with guns mounted aft for purposes of defense; so it is considered likely that these vessels, if armed similarly, will be given like consideration. It is felt that the allied nations can make no protest over this feature, because they themselves were the first to claim and exercise the right to so arm their ships.

It is on the high seas that the most important question probably will arise. These vessels will have to run the gamut of the entire British fleet in their progress across the ocean; and, while they have extraordinary means of escaping from a pursuer because of their submersibility, it always is possible that an enemy may come upon them unexpectedly and destroy them. When the first of these ships is sunk, the German Government undoubtedly will insist that, in as much as they are merchant vessels, the enemy must stop and search them before sinking them. This point, the United States will be obliged to uphold, because it formed the crux of the controversy with Germany over the sinking of English, French and neutral vessels. The United States will be brought into whatever situation arises, because some of the products carried by the ship undoubtedly will be the property of, or destined for, United States citizens; also there is the possibility that United States citizens may be aboard, in as much as it has been announced that the vessels will carry a limited number of passengers at approximately $5000 the voyage.

The similarity of these ships with the ordinary type of destroying submarine, undoubtedly will make it practically impossible to distinguish one from the other. If the British ships are compelled to stop and search such vessels before destroying them, it forces the former to take chances of stopping an enemy which will attempt to torpedo them; if the vessel called upon to stop really is a merchant submarine, unarmed, she can submerse and escape while the Britisher is attempting to carry out this provision of unwritten international law. There appears to be an unsolvable problem that soon will exhaust the patience of the allies and lead them to take any measures to break up the commerce, if it be established.

Undoubtedly the arrival of the first submarine merchantman in New York harbor will be the signal for the assembling of a large fleet of allied warships, destroyers and other war craft just outside the harbor, to lie in wait for the German to reappear. When she sights the Britishers, of course, the submarine will sink below the level of the waves and endeavor to remain under water long enough to slip past them. But the other vessels are certain to pursue her, and, when she comes to the surface to "breathe," will make an attempt either to destroy or capture her.

Just what action will take place then is impossible to predict. The battleship may fire upon the submarine and so destroy her, which is the only certain course for the Englishmen to adopt; or it may call on the German to stop and submit to capture, in which event the latter undoubtedly will lose no time in getting beneath the waves again. This course of procedure could be continued for the entire distance across the Atlantic and eventually end in the arrival of the merchantman at a German port. Submarines could not find her beneath the water, for boats, like men, are blind under the waves and simply stumble along at reduced speed.

The surface speed of the new submarine merchantman is given as eighteen knots. But under the water she would be unable to make anything like as great a speed. Consequently, if she were obliged, by the presence of an enemy vessel, to keep almost constantly submerged, she might not be able to make a safe port because her supplies of fuel would run out if she were obliged to travel far out of her course or to cut down her speed to any marked extent.

The trip of such a boat across the Atlantic would be one fraught with great danger, although it is reported that an English submarine made a trip of forty-eight days without touching port and keeping in motion all the time. But it is in dodging the naval patrols in the North Sea and along the routes of commerce that the danger for the German vessels lies. Coming out of Cuxhaven, it soon would be necessary for the vessel to submerge, in order to avoid the English and Russian fleets near that port. If she submerges, she is threatened with the danger of poking her nose into one of the antisubmarine nets that have been stretched in many parts of the seas surrounding the British Isles, and, once caught in such a net, there would be little hope for her escape.

These nets are of heavy steel wire, woven in a large mesh, which yield, to a certain extent, to the pressure that a submarine exerts when coming in contact with them, but gradually will slow up and stop the boat. The submarine, being blind, is unable to tell just how she is caught. The natural way to escape seems to back out, but the loosely hanging net may have thrown one of its folds to the rear of the vessel. In that case a retrograde movement only serves to entangle the screw of the vessel in the net and make any further attempt at escape absolutely impossible. And, even though the sea should be clear to the rear, it is almost impossible to maintain a steady course backward; deviating from the straight line, which might mean safety, the submarine again and again would come in contact with the net until she was completely enveloped, and, practically, "strangled."

If she did not go deep enough to encounter the nets, the little vessel might run afoul of a mine, either a drifter, or one of the anchored bombs in the mine fields that infest the seas off the European coasts. In that case, of course, it would be fatal for all on board.

Even while swimming along on the surface this danger from drifting mines always would menace the little craft, just as it does the bigger vessels. It probably would be ever harder for a submarine of this class, low in the water as she necessarily must be, to distinguish from a safe distance a floating mine. When it seems to be almost impossible in many instances for large ships, with a wide range of vision, to discern these deadly objects in time to swerve from their course, how much harder must it be for a small boat with a far more restricted range of vision to distinguish them in time?

Of course, it probably would be possible to handle this type of vessel much easier and quicker than the large merchantmen, and this would alter the case somewhat; but there are instances related of mines floating in such a manner as to be practically indistinguishable until very close by, and in such a case even rapid maneuvering might not save the craft from contact and destruction. On foggy days and at night, this danger would be so great that it would be enough to deter almost any civilian from attempting the trip.

The machinery of the vessel would have to be the acme of perfection. Engine trouble frequently develops on ocean-going vessels, and in many cases it is necessary to stop for repairs, or to limp to the nearest port; or even, in extreme cases, to wallow in the seas until the wireless can summon aid. The merchant submarine would be at a terrible disadvantage should anything happen to her motive force; on the surface while making repairs she would be at the mercy of any vessel, either warship or enemy merchantman that might come across her; neither could she limp to any port, because practically all ports within striking distance of a small vessel so disabled would be closed against her. Should she attempt to make her home port, she would be inviting certain capture and destruction in attempting to pass through the English fleet and the mine fields while exposed to view.

The worst case would be if such engine trouble should develop while the craft was submerged. In that event, it is possible, she would be unable to regain the surface of the ocean, and would be a total loss with all her crew and merchandise; for, while the men might be able to escape from the hull by some device prepared for such an emergency, they would find themselves adrift on the high seas without food and lacking water, and the strongest among them could not survive for any appreciable length of time.

Yet, despite all these possibilities of destruction, the Germans say they will succeed. They have announced that a vessel of this type has left Cuxhaven for New York, and the early arrival of the craft is expected. By some this is construed as an illustration of German pluck, determination and endurance; by others it is taken to indicate a dire need in Germany.

As indicating the commercial advantages to be gained by so transporting even a small cargo, quotations on a number of exclusive German products have been given. Among them are: German chemical homatropine, hydro bromide, $2376 per pound; atropine, $1550 per pound. The former is more than three times the price for which it sold before the beginning of the war, while the latter has increased in price until it now is about fifty times its normal value. There are other small and valuable articles that are expected to be included in the manifests of the new liners which can be included at a great profit both to the manufacturer and the carrier.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, July 24.—Cooler weather that tended to allay fears regarding black rust gave an advantage today to the bears in wheat. The opening, which ranged from ½c off to ¼c advance, with September at $1.18½ to $1.19¼ and December at $1.21½ to $1.22⅛, was followed by a moderate general upturn and then a sag all around to below Saturday's finish.

Hot dry weather in the corn belt brought about an early rise in the price of corn, but the market reacted. After an opening which was ½c to 1c higher, nearly all of the gains disappeared, and in same cases were replaced by a net loss.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, July 24.—Trading in broad volume and higher prices marked the resumption of operations today, last Saturday's advancing tendency making further general headway. United States steel led the movement, soon advancing ¾ to over 87 on free absorption. Other similar industrials, including Lackawanna steel, the equipments, General Electric, munitions and zinc stocks were higher by substantial fractions to a point. Motors were again extremely active and strong, especially Maxwells. United Fruit was prominent among the shipping group and rails gave promise of awakening from their recent sluggishness.

The pace of the first half hour was too rapid, realizing sales soon causing a shrinkage of values. Industrial alcohol was again a disturbing feature, making an extreme decline of more than 8 points on rumors of a hitch in foreign contracts under negotiation. United States steel showed more resistance than other leaders, although yielding more than one-half its advance. War issues succumbed to pressure and motors reacted with Mexican petroleum. Tobaccos and a few high priced unclassified specialties scored substantial gains. Bonds were irregular with considerable activity in Anglo-French and the new French issues.

GIRL IS BRIDE IN NEW AIRSHIP ROMANCE

Skill of Airman Roberts Won Heart of Miss Rogers.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 22.—A romance beginning on an aviation field in Washington state has brought happiness to Miss Grace M. Rogers, of Elma, Wash.,

MRS. JAY M. ROBERTS.

and Jay M. Roberts, daring aviator, who made her his bride recently.

Miss Rogers with her uncle, Col. Charles H. Rogers, U. S. A. retired, and now deceased, was viewing the thrilling flights of birdmen on the aviation fields near Seattle two years ago when she was attracted by the daring and skill of one of the younger aviators.

A chance meeting with the aviator at the close of the exhibition afforded Dan Cupid an opportunity. The chance meeting ripened into an engagement.

While Miss Rogers was visiting friends here recently she learned that Roberts narrowly escaped death while making an exhibition flight in Venice. The hose leading from the engine to the radiator of the biplane burst while Roberts was more than 2,000 feet above the field. Although scalded by the escaping water, Roberts volplaned to earth.

She hastened to his side and while he was still on a cot in a hospital plans for the wedding were made.

BABY BONDS TEACH BOY THRIFTY HABITS

A local business man, the father of a husky sixteen-year-old, whom he requires to spend the vacation months in working at the business which the parent expects to pass over to him in the future, states that he pays the son double the amount which he could be expected to receive for the same work outside of his father's establishment, but only on the condition that half of his salary be invested in Baby Bonds. In this manner the father expects to teach the son thrifty habits which he says will be of greater use to him in after life than anything else he could learn.

Baby Bonds come in $10 denominations. Bear 6 per cent interest and are secured by first mortgages on local real estate. There are also a number of larger bonds in $500 denominations, which bear the same rate of interest and are secured in the same manner. For further details regarding either, see the Wildwood Sales company, Shoaff building.

Staggering Figures Given by Premier Asquith in Commons.

London, July 24.—In asking the house of commons for the new vote of credit of £450,000,000 today, Premier Asquith said that since the outbreak of the war there had been 12 votes of credit, totalling £2,832,000,000. The present vote was substantially larger than its predecessors but this was not because any great extension of expenditure was anticipated in order to make provision for a longer period and the covering of any necessary results.

Explaining the statement of Reginald McKenna, chancellor of the exchequer, that the war expenditure had reached £,000,000,000 daily, Premier Asquith made the same statement as did the chancellor in regard to the purchase of American securities which he said was not a true expenditure but merely a transfer of assets from England to America.

After expending £559,000,000 between April 1 and July 22, continued the premier, there was a balance on hand of £41,000,000, which was sufficient to carry on the services to the end of July instead of the first week in August, as he had estimated. The daily average of expenditure had risen from £4,820,000 during the period from May 1 to June 30 to £5,050,000 during the period from June 22 to July 22, or an average over the two periods of £4,950,000. The principal causes of the increase were the army and navy munitions.

Tests have shown that as little as 1-4 of 1 per cent. of sugar will prevent cement setting, while from 1 to 2 per cent. will make it set quickly, but later disintegrate.

WEDS A FORT WAYNE MAN.

Mrs. Earl Hapner, who secured a divorce from her husband, Earl Hapner, on Monday of last week at Columbia City, was united in marriage to John Koenig, of this city, Wednesday. After getting her decree she came to Fort Wayne and from here went to Hillsdale, Mich., with her fiance, where they were married. Mr. Koenig owns a grocery store in this city.

ARRIVE ON LAFAYETTE.

New York, July 24.—Among the 255 passengers on the French line steamship Lafayette, which reached here today from Bordeaux, were James Gordon Bennett and wife, and Lieut. Col. F. Bentley Mott, formerly military attache of the American embassy in Paris.

DIES AT ARGOS.

Mrs. Mary Cadwallader died Sunday at Argos, Ind., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Sarver. She was born and reared in Fort Wayne and went to Argos only a few weeks ago. She was seventy-nine years old. She is survived by a son, Charles, of Toledo, and two brothers, Henry Seibert, of Oliver street, and Frank, of East Lewis street. The body will be taken to New Haven for burial Tuesday in Odd Fellows' cemetery.

Fred Schnitker, deputy county clerk, spent Sunday in Rome City.

BURIED AT ARLINGTON.

Remains of Col. Butler, Victim of Spannell's Bullet, Interred.

Washington, July 24.—The body of Lieut. Col. M. C. Butler, of the Sixth United States cavalry, who was killed at Alpine, Tex., Thursday by Harry J. Spannell, a hotel manager, was buried in Arlington cemetery today. Spannell also killed his own wife, shooting the two as they sat in Spannell's automobile in which Spannell had invited Col. Butler to ride.

Mrs. D. E. Butler, Mrs. H. A. Popp, Mrs. J. A. Foster and Miss Lavon Chapman, all of this city, are spending this week at Winona Lake.
